If Prohibition Went.
Only Negro Dismissed.
National City Tale.
Remorseless With Cotton.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE President, according to Washington reports, agrees with Mr. Wickersham that all of the states should share in prohibition enforcement. Prohibition machinery must be made stronger, with state and national governments standing loyalily behind it.

ON THE other side of the fence, the war against prohibition continues. An organization of young "crusaders," with headquarters in Cleveland, has vowed that prohibition shall go. There are many interesting names among the young crusaders, not dismayed, evidently, by the sad fate of some crusaders of old.

SUPPOSE, "just for the sake of supposing," that anti-prohibition should win and prohibition be eliminated.

How would the bootleg crime army be absorbed?

At least 50,000 determined and desperate men are in that army. They have become hardened to quick shooting and accustomed to very "easy money."

WHAT would they do if bootlegging, with its hundreds of millions of annual profit vanished overnight?

Does any one think the army would peaceably disband, returning to dull hard work for small pay?

Hardly. For the first few years, when, if ever, prohibition takes wings, hire for your business and home extra watchmen. They will be needed.

THE only Negro student at West Point is dismissed "honorably," for deficiency in mathematics.

Sixty-three white men failed in examinations with him and were also dismissed.

PREJUDICE had nothing to do with it, although Lonzo Souleigh Parham, the Negro cadet dismissed, is the fourteenth to enter the Academy and the eleventh to be dismissed at the end of six months.

IT IS no reflection on any race to say that capacity for intensive mental effort, such as West Point demands, can hardly be acquired in two or three generations.

A fast-running horse, and a man thinking clearly, go back through many specialized generations of running and thinking.

Why are Jewish boys and girls, usually, leaders in our public school classes? Because their ancestors were studying when ours were running over the British Isles, their stomachs painted blue with woad.

"MARK now how a plain tale shall put you down," is the substance of President Charles E. Mitchell's report on the National City Bank for 1929.

Earnings were more than twenty-six millions—five and a half millions more than in 1928.

THREE millions went to a contingency reserve, $9,406,327 was added to undivided profits, stockholders got $13,510,000. Quite a business for one bank.

The number of shareholders was multiplied by three in the year, which ended with new high records in resources, deposits and invested capital.

Mr. Mitchell says he is optimistic about the future. He might be.

A SENATE committee, investigating cotton exchanges, is told that a small group of big buyers — Sears-Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Woolworth and Henry Ford among them—keep down the price of cotton, "their buyers remorselessly using every expedient to drive down the price of cotton fabrics."

The four firms mentioned use one-fifth of all cotton goods manufactured.

BUYERS, naturally, buy as cheap as they can. But they must buy—they cannot confiscate.

Government, state and national, and cotton growers should find some way "remorselessly" to drive the price of cotton up.

Big buyers must have cotton; growers and their friends have the whip hand, but don't know how to use it.

FROM Portland to San Francisco, Air Mail Pilot Ralph Virden flew at an average speed of 201 miles an hour, breaking records, and climbing 12,000 feet up to get the desired "fast tail wind" to drive him along.

THE Postoffice has done more to develop American aviation than all other agencies combined.

President Hoover and Postmaster Brown, and the brave, brilliantly able mail pilots, deserve the public's thanks.

AT ST. BONAVENTURE College, Olean, N. Y., young "Swede" Gustafson fought a prize fight with Augie Carlson. It was "a bootleg fight," not authorized by the Amateur Athletic Union or the New York State prize fighting commission.

IT WAS none the worse for that. Neither union's nor commission's approval could

COUNTY TAX INCREASED ONE MILL

Raise Needed to Pay Bond Interest, Armstrong Says; McGovern, Babcock Clash

The county taxes were raised one mill today despite the recent objections of taxpayers and representatives of business interests.

Against the objection of Commissioner C. C. McGovern, the County Commissioners raised the tax from 8⅞ mills to 9⅞ mills.

Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong explained that one of the reasons for the raise was the expense of paying interest on $55,000,000 worth of bonds authorized in recent years.

Before the board raised the tax McGovern suggested selling old City Hall in Smithfield street to supply funds.

VERBAL CLASH RENEWED

Commissioners McGovern and E. V. Babcock tangled once more in their verbal war.

"You're the cheapest politician that ever held office in Allegheny County," Babcock described his colleague.

"And you're the most stupid," McGovern retorted.

McGOVERN CAR RIDICULED

County Commissioner McGovern's automobile was declared to be "a disgrace to the county" by Howard Allen, superintendent of the county motor vehicle department, when he was questioned at the budget hearing.

McGovern had been questinoing Allen on a $59,000 item for insurance on the county garages and automobiles. He asked Allen if the figure could not be cut down. Allen said that it might be if everybody reported accidents and the county was covered by a blanket insurance policy. Allen told the commissioner that he has failed to report several small accidents in which his car was involved, and that he "would not even have a door hinge replaced on it, refusing to allow the repair to be made when we offered to do it."

McGovern drives a dilapidated sedan which was bought originally for former Commissioner James Houlahen.

'Life for Pint' Sentences Commuted

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Gov. Fred W. Green today wrote the final chapter in Michigan's famous "life for a pint" law, when he commuted the life sentences of five prohibition violators.

The commutations bring the sentences of the five to a term of 7½ to 15 years to comply with the new amendment to the state criminal code.

The five affected are: Frank Baker, Muskegon; Mrs. Etta Mae Miller, Lansing; Alonzo Noyes, Ionia; Fred Palm, Lansing, and Tony Popish, Schoolcraft County.

All of those whose sentences were commuted by the Governor were convicted under the Michigan habitual criminal act which provided a life sentence upon a fourth conviction on a felony charge. The fourth offense in each case was on a liquor law violation charge.

"I do not believe it was the intent of the framers of the criminal code," Gov. Green said today, "that life sentences should be given those whose fourth offense was violation of the prohibition laws."

KIP AND FILM STARS SAFE

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Jan. 15.—(INS.)—Leonard Kip Rhinelander, of the wealthy New York family, was content today with the simple and quiet life offered by a small western town.

Marooned by the record snow storm on Mount Charleston, 35 miles distant, since Friday, Rhinelander and his party reached Las Vegas last night. They reported no suffering but were wet to the skin from encountering snowdrifts returning down the mountain.

The rescue party sent out by Rhinelander's lawyer reached them Monday night.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Although continued snow flurries are predicted today for the San Bernardino Mountains, forest rangers declared little danger existed for nearly 200 persons snowbound in the Lake Arrowhead district. Rangers yesterday pushed through on snowshoes, and reported that the marooned families were supplied with provisions and fuel.

A party of seven motion picture folk, including Marie Prevost and Buster Keaton, arrived in Hollywood last night after being snowbound since Friday in Fraser National Park. The party was on a hunting trip when the storm hit.

With provisions for two days, members of the party said, they shot ducks for food until they were able to make their way through to Bakersfield and Tehachapi.

Income Tax Deadline Extension Granted

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—INS.)—Taxpayers who can show "good and reasonable cause" will be granted an extension of the midnight, March 15, deadline in filing their income tax statements.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue announced today such requests for additional grace must be filed with the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and "accompanied by a tentative report and one-fourth of the estimated tax due."

Concern Over Child Traps Blonde Into Admitting Identity to Captors

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 15.—Irene Schroeder, alleged blonde "trigger woman," was in jail here today, more concerned with news of her son, Donnie, 4, than with her own future.

A posse of deputy sheriffs and citizens captured her in the desert wastes near Laveen, Ariz., late yesterday, together with two men, one said to be Glen Dague, Wheeling automobile salesman, and another, believed to be Jimmy Wells, Texas desperado.

"Have you heard lately from Donnie?" a reporter asked her as they rode over the desert into Phoenix last night. Up to this time she had not admitted her identity.

"Something's wrong with him?" came the quick response. "Tell me, what is it? What's wrong with my boy?"

"Then you are Irene Schroeder?"

"I am Irene Schroeder. Tell me, what of Donnie?"

DEFIANT AFTER QUIZ

People in Phoenix know little of Donnie. The police had heard of him, but that was all. The "trigger woman" got little news of her boy. She became silent.

Today, after a night of grilling, Irene, sought for three weeks in connection with the slaying of

SNOW, COLDER OUTLOOK HERE

Snow flurries and a drop of at least 10 degrees in temperature were expected here today by Weather Forecaster W. S. Brotzman. Last night the air was balmy but during the early morning hours the temperature dropped sharply.

After reaching a stage of slightly more than 20 feet at noon yesterday, the local rivers began to recede slowly. The flood stage here is 25 feet.

Mild weather prevailed east of the Mississippi yesterday while colder weather was felt in the West.

New Radio Station Here Seeks Permit

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Wyant, of Pennsylvania, appeared before the Federal Radio Commission today in behalf of the Olympia-Oakford Park Company, which is asking permission to operate a new local broadcasting station in its two large amusement parks. Wyant said such a station would serve a large industrial population in the vicinity of Pittsburgh, now without local radio service.

Coast Guard Cutter Wrecked, 8 Rescued

WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 15.—(INS.)—Coast Guard cutter No. 111 was wrecked on the jetties of Reedy's Island at the mouth of the Delaware-Chesapeake Canal during a dense fog early today. The boat sank, but the crew of eight was reported rescued.

8 MEN BEATEN IN TAXI RIOTS

Eight taxi employes, five drivers and three guards were reported attacked today as the Yellow Cab Company announced that 20 drivers had returned to work, and that steps had been taken to start more cabs out in a short time.

Two drivers were reported beaten near the Yellow Cab garage in Ross street, and another driver and a guard were reported attacked at the Boulevard of the Allies and Smithfield street. Another driver and a guard were beaten at Liberty avenue and William Penn way.

NAMES WITHHELD

Reports reached the Yellow Cab garage that at noon today a driver and his guard were set upon at Boulevard of the Allies and Grant street and beaten on the head by a group of strikers' sympathizers who had forced the cab into the curb.

WOMAN, WITH 2 MEN, TRAPPED BY POSSE; KIDNAPED OFFICER

By CHARLES H. WRIGHT,
Sheriff of Maricopa County, Arizona.

A vivid, eye-witness account of the capture of Irene Schroeder, 23-year-old blonde—wanted for the slaying of Corp. Brady Paul, of the Pennsylvania State Highway Patrol, near New Castle, December 27—and two male companions was related to the Sun-Telegraph via long distance telephone today by Sheriff Charles H. Wright, who is also keeper of the jail at Phoenix, Ariz.

(Copyright, 1930, by the Sun-Telegraph.)

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 15. — Irene Schroeder, captured with two men, after an hour's battle in which she was slightly wounded in the neck by a bullet on the Pima Indian reservation, 24 miles southwest of Phoenix, yesterday afternoon, is behind jail bars here today.

The bobbed bronze-haired young woman is held by a leash chain, one end attached to her left wrist and the other end to the bars of her cell.

One of her male friends is Joe (Red) Wells, former convict, of Oklahoma. He is being held in our holdover tank. The other, we believe, is Glenn Dague, who has been traveling with her for a year. He is handcuffed in the shackle room, which is dark and steel-lined.

Blonde, Accomplice Shot

We will claim the reward offered for the capture of the slayers of the Pennsylvania patrolman.

She confessed to me that she was Irene Schroeder, with a price on her head, but she has admitted nothing in connection with the shooting to death of Brady Paul, Pennsylvania state highway patrolman.

Charges of assault with deadly weapons with intent to commit murder will be filed against the three in Superior Court today by Prosecuting Attorney George T. Wilson. These charges will allow us to keep them in custody pending arrival of Pennsylvania authorities.

Irene has a bullet burn on her neck, but she did not require medical attention.

Dague was wounded in the right leg above the ankle. Wells was unscathed.

Kidnaped Deputy Sheriff

The Schroeder woman and her companions kidnaped Deputy Sheriff Joe Chapman, at Florence, Ariz., when he questioned her as to the ownership of the car, which had a Kentucky license.

From that time this whole region had been hunting the kidnapers, and posses were scouring the waste lands by automobile, on horseback and on foot.

Chapman told me he was ordered by Irene to direct them out of the country. They wanted to go to Yuma, Ariz., which is only a short distance from the Mexican border.

"I ran them around in circles until they threatened to shoot me and throw me in the Gila River," Chapman told me.

Chapman, wounded, was dumped from the automobile after a skirmish with deputies at Chandler, Ariz. The woman and her men escaped.

Trio Fled Into Desert

Our men sighted the fugitives early yesterday. They abandoned their automobile and took across the desert about 6 o'clock yesterday morning.

Eight of my men took up the trail, with another posse including myself close behind.

The footprints of the three fugitives were plainly visible in the sand. Rain had fallen recently, and that helped make them more distinct.

WHEELER CHARGES RADIO BOARD POLITICS, DEMANDS QUIZ

UNTRAINED APPOINTEES REPORTED

Station 'Synchronization' Near, Broadcast Head Tells Senate Committee

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Investigation by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee of reports of an attempt to make a "political football" out of the Federal Radio Commission was demanded today by Senator Wheeler (Dem.), of Montana, as the committee continued hearings on the Couzens communications bill.

The Montana senator said he had received a report from a newspaperman that a man had been appointed attorney for the commission who had no experience in the radio field and that it was the purpose to appoint two Negroes from Ohio to assist him.

BROWN APPOINTED

Thad Brown, Columbus, O., attorney, was recently named attorney for the Radio Commission.

Wheeler also said he received a report that Lawrence Richey, secretary to President Hoover, had asked for information about the political affiliations of all persons connected with the commission who were drawing salaries of more than $3,000.

DEMANDS QUIZ

"It's time," he told the committee, "that we look into what's going on."

Senator Dill, (Dem.), of Washington, observed that the situation respecting the commission's attorneys was "very bad," explaining that two of them had retired while an important case was pending in the Supreme Court.

"If the Republican party," Wheeler said, "wants to pay its debt to the Negro race it ought not to put them in a place where they are going to break down the efficiency of the radio commission."

W. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company, urged the committee today to make regulations in the Couzens bill flexible enough to meet changing conditions.

The heart of better service, he continued, was the problem of cleared channels. He said radio engineers generally were agreed that small stations serving only their immediate communities could be regrouped as to wave length so that they would not be interfered with by the more powerful stations and at the same time could not interfere with each other.

SYNCHRONIZATION NEAR

Synchronization of radio stations either by wire or radio was in prospect, the witness continued, but he said it would be accomplished by wire first. He asserted that the work of the engineers toward synchronization was about 75 per cent complete.

Aylesworth's attention was called to a statement attributed to Dr. Lee DeForest, radio inventor, that advertising would destroy broadcasting. The witness replied he was opposed to direct advertising over the air except by a short, newsy statement preceding an entertainment program and not interspersed in the program itself.

The committee seemed interested in statements by Aylesworth about the political speeches it had broadcast and was informed that in the 10 months prior to October 31, 1929, exactly 245 government officials had been heard over the air.

FAVORS IMPARTIALITY

Under questioning, he maintained that the company attempted to treat everybody impartially, Republicans and Democrats alike.

Senator Dill complained that William Hard, a Washington newspaper correspondent, who broadcasts each week, was "continually boosting" the administration. He asked whether the company had considered an "antidote."

Aylesworth replied that he believed Hard covered the news with balance, but that he would inquire into it.

He also testified that Hard was paid $100 a week for his work, while David Lawrence, another newspaperman, who broadcasts Sunday nights, received nothing.

BRITAIN HOLDS HOPE IN PARLEY

International News Service.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Great Britain has high hopes for immediate and eventual results from the forthcoming five-power naval arms conference, Premier Ramsay MacDonald revealed in a conference with representatives of the British foreign press at the foreign office today.

While Britain is hopeful that the results of the London naval conference will pave the way for a general disarmament conference under the auspices of the League of Nations, the Premier said, the government also expects that the conference will produce an agreement which will be effective immediately.

Shortly before MacDonald's statement, the Hon. W. C. Bridgeman, formerly first lord of the admiralty in the cabinet of Stanley Baldwin, launched a strong attack against the disarmament plans before the Navy League.

As chief speaker before the assembled leaders of British maritime affairs, he put forth a resolution demanding that Britain should be left free to fix her own standard of naval needs.

He demanded that at the forthcoming five-power naval arms conference the British government should not agree to any reduction of the number of ships, tonnage or personnel of the British navy.

He sharply criticized any disarmament plans based on the Kellogg pact as did British Vice Admiral A. E. Taylor in a previous speech.

Dolores to Launch Big Barrymore Yacht

LONG BEACH, Cal., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—John Barrymore's $500,000 steel yacht, christened "The Infanta," awaited launching ceremonies here today. The yacht was named by Mrs. Barrymore, who is Dolores Costello, of the films.

Designed primarily for leisurely exploration of Southern Pacific waters, "The Infanta" will take its place as perhaps the most luxurious of all the craft belonging to members of the motion picture colony. Barrymore is an enthusiastic seaman.

GUSTAFSON was knocked out in the third round, taken to a hospital and died early yesterday morning.

What makes a killing legal in a "civilized" state?

Answer—The fact that the fight is called a boxing match, and arranged, usually, for profit, with politicians sharing it.

YESTERDAY the Irving Trust Company of New York laid the cornerstone of its new building at No. 1 Wall Street, probably the most valuable piece of land in the world.

In one cornerstone, Lewis K. Pierson, head of the company, deposited a history of that corner for 300 years back, and other documents.

THREE hundred years hence, men will be interested chiefly in the fact that above the cornerstone there rose the world's first 50-story bank building.

BUILDING that structure is a real service to progress. One hundred years hence, entire cities will be housed in one building, all tenants landing on the roofs from flying machines. It will be remembered then that in 1930 bankers had imagination, although a modest 50-story building will then seem like a modest igloo.

SET WASSON'S HEARING

The hearing in the disbarment action against Former Judge Henry G. Wasson and Attorney George H. Calvert has been set for February 5 at 10 a. m., according to Attorney W. Clyde Grubbs, who filed the petitions asking for their disbarment.

The hearings will be held in the Allegheny County Bar Association Rooms by the three standing masters of the Pennsylvania State Bar appointed recently. Grubbs said today that he was notified of the meeting by Attorney C. F. C. Arensberg, chairman of the Committee on Hearing Masters of the State Bar.

The standing masters named to hear the case were: Attorneys Francis B. Bracken, of Philadelphia; Thomas C. Hare, of Altoona, and Arthur W. Mitchell, of Erie.

The disbarment action was filed by Grubbs in behalf of Martha K. and Blanche Hibbert, sisters of Mrs. Eleanor H. Davidson, a lunatic, whom Wasson and Calvert were named a committee to handle her $3,000,000 estate.

Chief Justice Taft At Carolina Resort

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Jan. 15.—(AP.) — Chief Justice William Howard Taft arrived here this morning for an indefinite stay at a resort hotel.

The chief justice was accompanied by Mrs. Taft, Dr. Thomas H. Clayton, his personal physician, and a nurse. Mr. Taft seemed in high spirits as he waited to be assigned to rooms.

PARROT TRACED HERE IN FEVER DEATH CASE

Another Bird Purchased in Pet Shop Also Blamed For Zanesville Outbreak

A parrot purchased in a Pittsburgh pet shop is believed responsible for the illness of Mrs. Elmer Gray, of Zanesville, O., who today was reported suffering from the "parrot fever." This case was uncovered by tracing another Christmas parrot which had been in contact with the one which caused the death of Mrs. William Shields, of Freeport, last Saturday.

William Shields, of Freeport, who purchased the parrot for his mother at Christmas, said that there were two other parrots in the same Pittsburgh pet shop that had come in the shipment from South America. The parrot sent to the Shields home died.

SENT TO ZANESVILLE

Dr. C. H. Maits, director of the Department of Public Health investigated Shields' story and discovered that one of the birds had been sent to the home of Mrs. Gray at Zanesville. The bird was sent to Mrs. Gray by Joseph Tyler, of 420 Carl street, Pittsburgh, a son-in-law. The information was turned over to health authorities in Ohio.

Tyler said today that the bird given Mrs. Gray seemed to be suffering from a cold and died a few days after Christmas. About a week later Mrs. Gray became ill and was believed to be suffering from influenza. She was stricken with fever and her symptoms somewhat resembled those of victims of parrot fever, but after a few days she showed improvement and is now said to be recovering.

FIVE MORE DEATHS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—With a growing list of fatalities from the mysterious disease of parrot fever, or psittacosis, Federal health authorities concentrated today upon an effort to prevent any further spread of the malady.

Five deaths were reported within the last 24 hours, bringing the total number to date to eight. The most recent victims were: Roger Buchanon, Yonkers, New York; Mrs. Leon F. Swears, Johnstown, New York; one person in Queens Borough, New York, whose identity was not revealed; Miss Catherine Tierney, Toledo, O., and Mrs. William Burns, Baltimore.

2 IN TAXI TAKEN AFTER CRASH

Two men; one a driver of a Yellow Cab, were arrested at noon today following a collision with another car at Bigelow boulevard and Seventh avenue, after, police said, the cab failed to stop.

The men, Jack Davis, 25, of 4 Fernando street, driver, and Philip Davis, 46, of 621 Arch street, were charged with violating the automobile laws. The driver told police he feared the car struck was occupied by striking cab drivers.

Louis Yates, of 123 Miller street, Latrobe, was the driver of the second car, which was damaged $100. The cab driver was halted a block away by Patrolman Frank Messmer.

Runaway Girl Returned to Mother

A week's freedom from home restraint was enough for Frances Dellich, 18, of the Noblestown road, when she was arraigned on the charge of being a runaway. She said she had been induced to leave home by a girl friend. She was turned over to her mother, Mrs. Helen Dellich.

8 MEN BEATEN IN ATTACKS ON TAXIS

divulge the names of the men attacked and refused to discuss the matter.

An indication that the strike will not end soon was seen at the Yellow Cab garage today, where it was reported that the cab machinists were laid off until further notice.

HEARINGS DELAYED

Thirty taxi drivers, arrested for operating cabs without permits, scheduled for hearings in Traffic Court, failed to appear, by a representative of the company asked Magistrate William Soost to postpone the cases.

Soost complied after telling Herman Granson, the representative, that when the next hearing date arrives he wants all the drivers present.

Lawrence Keys, of 317 North Highland, whose name appeared as that of one of the drivers, told the magistrate that he had lost his cards and that some taxi driver must be using them.

STUDENTS RELEASED

Walter Laird, president of Yellow Cab Company, announced that 20 cabs were being operated today by former drivers who had returned to work. More drivers would be enlisted as soon as they obtain the permits required by the Police Department, Mr. Laird promised.

A Carnegie Tech student, arrested when driving a Yellow Cab yesterday, was discharged this morning, along with a guard, by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court. A blackjack and a piece of lead pipe were found in the cab, police testified.

The student said he was Philip Wagner, 23, of Pitt street, Wilkinsburg, and the guard Charles Malone, of 1304 Federal street.

Charles O'Hara, 25, of 128 McKean street, Philadelphia, another driver, and Charles Clark, 28, of 512 Second avenue, guard, were each fined $25 or 30 days. A black jack was found in their car also, police said.

MEDIATORS MEET

O'Hara, upon questioning, told Magistrate Rothenberg he was one of a number of men shipped here from Philadelphia by an employment bureau.

State and government mediators who are in Pittsburgh trying to bring an end to the strike, were to meet today in the office of the United States Department of Labor, according to Miss M. M. Emmilline Pitt, United States conciliator of labor.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis will come to Pittsburgh Saturday and probably will confer with Miss Pitt on the work she is doing here.

NO AGREEMENT REACHED

Both Charles O. Osgood, union organizer, and E. S. Higgins, vice president of the Parmelee Transportation Company, which controls the cab companies, denied reports that recognition of the strikers' union was the only obstacle in the way of peace. Osgood and Higgins agreed that, while recognition of the union was one of the obstacles, the two factions had not agreed on any of the major points in dispute.

Refusal of city officials to waive the city ordinance requiring drivers to have permits balked the efforts of company officials yesterday to end the strike by operating cabs with new drivers. Twenty-three drivers and guards were arrested, and all but two were released on forfeits for hearings in Traffic Court. The other two were held on suspicious person charges for alleged possession of weapons.

ARRESTED IN ATTACK

A dozen of the men arrested were attacked when they left Central Police Station yesterday by striking drivers. Stones, nuts, bolts and sticks were hurled at the men as they left the station but no serious injuries were reported.

The striking drivers held a meeting last night in Moose Temple, at which time plans were discussed and ultimatums issued to cab company officials and the drivers. Among those who spoke at the meeting were John Heinz, president of the City Firemen's Protective Association; George Siebert, business agent of the Pile Drivers' Wharf and Dock Builders' local union; Thomas G. Robertson, acting president of Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, and S. A. Richards, cab driver.

Paul O'Toole, chairman of the striking drivers' executive committee, announced that 20 automobiles will be provided free by the union for emergency calls.

When the cabs first made their appearance on downtown streets yesterday police searched all drivers and arrested those who did not have city permits. No cabs were operated last night. Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh said that he would not issue city permits to the strike-breakers.

The cab companies yesterday notified B. V. Coffey, chief deputy sheriff, that the county would be held responsible for any damage to properties of the company. Although no deputies have been requested by the companies four regular deputies were sent to the Yellow Cab headquarters yesterday.

A report was circulated yesterday that a number of private concerns and individuals would ask the Public Service Commission for licenses to operate their vehicles as public conveyances.

BECK CALLS DRY LAW 'CANCER'

No Solution Until People Realize Its Futility, He Says; Won't Head Antis

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Representative James M. Beck (Rep.), Pennsylvania, former solicitor general of the United States, in announcing today that he would not assume the leadership of the anti-prohibition bloc in the House, said he believed that no "legislative expedients" would result in the enforcement of the prohibition law.

Asserting that many of his colleagues in the House had complimented him by suggesting that he become chairman of the bloc, Beck said he had decided not to accept, but added:

"This does not imply any lack of sympathy on my part for the cause.

"In my opinion," he said, "prohibition is a cancer that is slowly eating out the moral fiber of the American people.

CAN'T BE ENFORCED

"As the problem will never be finally solved until the American people by a very largely prepondering majority have concluded that the experiment is both futile and unwise, and as the drys are not likely to reach that conclusion until every feasible method has been tried to enforce the law, it seems to me that, as it is the manifest duty of the administration to enforce the policy of prohibition, its proposals should be supported unless they clearly conflict with fundamental law."

"I share the confidence of many thinking men that no legislative expedients will ever result in the enforcement of a law which so manifestly conflicts with human nature and that the expedients now proposed and any that can be proposed will be as ineffective as it would be for a surgeon to apply a mustard plaster to a malignant cancer.

"With these views I shall be glad to serve in the ranks of the anti-prohibition group, even though I am disinclined, for many reasons, to assume the leadership."

HOOVER PLAN PUSHED

Work necessary for the drafting of legislation to carry out President Hoover's proposals for strengthening the prohibition enforcement machinery got under way today in Congress.

Two important committees of the House began consideration of the question of the border patrol and the proposal to increase the powers of United States commissioners to deal with offenders.

The judiciary committee, which will have jurisdiction over the subject of commissioners' powers, appointed a sub-committee and instructed it to act "as quickly as possible" on bills by Rep. Moore, of Virginia, and Rep. McKeown, of Oklahoma, both Democrats.

Before the immigration committee, Commissioner Hull, of the Immigration Bureau, outlined his views as to the necessities of the situation as it involved his activities. Chairman Johnson said he intended going into the questions which would confront the patrol, as well as of its powers and duties.

STEEL TOPPLES, KILLS TWO

Two youths were killed today when a 5-ton load of steel toppled from a crane and crushed them in the Ambridge plant of the American Bridge Works.

The dead are Michael Cooper, 21, of 398 Third street, and John Bohinsky, 21, of 414 Pine avenue, both Ambridge.

Cooper was operating the crane from the ground, with Bohinsky directing, when the mass toppled over on them.

Urges Girls Loaf Like Men, With Feet on Desk

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Listen, business girls! Here's advice on how to do bigger and better work: Learn to loaf like a man with your feet on the desk.

So says Dr. Olga Stastny, of Omaha, Neb., official physician to America's organized business and Professional women.

"Loaf like a man," she says. "Women will never have achieved emancipation until they can relax, at ease, with their feet higher than their heads."

Dr. Stastny has had experience in being a boss. She stoutly maintains that women will be abler executives when they tilt back in their swival chairs and place their feet on the desk during their in-between-conference moments.

"An hour or so of rest, with feet up—complete relaxation," is her professional prescription. "A chance for the heart to be relieved of pumping all the time in erect posture. Less pressure on those veins that too often become varicose.

"Less general loginess, and, yes, less thick ankles. The upward stretch will exercise the ankle muscles."

Dr. Stastny does not welcome the new long and clinging skirts which would hamper the feet-on-the-desk movement.

"The dress of the last few years has been ideal," she says.

"No corsets to cramp, no waist line to draw in. Exposure of arms and legs to the ultra-violet rays of the sun—all have tended to keep modern women in pretty good trim. With a few more vitamines to add Greek curves instead of the slat silhouette, we would have a glorious race."

Knee-Length Skirt Missed At Spring Fashion Show

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—The short skirt is strictly de trop in the spring wardrobe, judging from the 140 models exhibited before the garment retailers of America.

The creations of 43 leading fashion arbiters paraded before representatives of the trade in the annual spring promenade last night displayed skirted evening gowns and frocks for afternoon, street and sport wear with hem lines from four to six inches below the knee.

The consensus was that a certain latitude of personal preference was permitted in the skirt length rather than any hard and fast fashion ruling, but no models shown had knee-length skirts.

The natural waistline and the molded silhouette were features of the dresses for all occasions.

Spring colors exhibited featured prints and plain colored fabrics, lively, but not riotous. The plain colors seemed to predominate. Black backgrounds prevailed in the printed frocks for street and sports wear and the black and white then was frequently repeated in both afternoon and evening dresses.

Almost every frock had its wrap definitely related in fabric and numbered separate frock and coat combinations.

A pageant of bridal costumes revealed that the 1930 bride will be arrayed much as the bride of 1830 was.

Orange and brown, orange and gray, vivid blues, black and white and combinations of yellow and green and red and white were much in evidence.

TRYING TO BREAK WILL

MRS. VIRGINIA LINDSAY COPELAND

Mrs. Copeland, 22, seeking to break the will of her father, William H. Lindsay, New York, because four years after his death she discovered that he left more than $250,000, of which she was given a trust fund of $10,000, payable at $10 a week. She says her stepmother received $200,000.

Irene Schroeder's Sister Lays Trouble to 'Dope'

BELLAIRE, O., Jan. 15.—"If they had not used dope they never would have pulled those jobs—if they really did," sobbed Mrs. Ray Schroeder, sister of Irene Schroeder, when she was told that her sister and two male companions had been arrested in Arizona.

It was at Mrs. Ray Schroeder's house that Donnie Schroeder, 4, was found by the police following the murder of Patrolman Brady Paul, near New Castle, Pa.

Mrs. Walter Glen Dague, comely 24-year-old school teacher, at Viola, W. Va., the wife of Dague, said:

"Glen was raised right, had good parents, was well educated, went to Sunday school and was a model husband and father until he met Irene Schroeder. I can't believe that he did the things he is charged with."

Sergt. A. M. Long, in charge of the West Virginia state police here, said:

"I am certainly glad they have captured the trio, for I have always been fearful that others would be killed before they were finally taken."

OCCULT POWERS FAIL, MAN HELD

The supposed occult powers of Herbert Thomas, 40, self-styled psychologist and psycho-analyist, failed to enable him to answer questions satisfactorily in Morals Court today and he was held for further investigation.

Thomas, wearing a red vandyke beard, was arrested yesterday along with his reputed daughter, Helen Thomas, 23, and Bernice Smith, 19, of Indiana, Pa., after Thomas is alleged to have refused policewomen entrance to his place at 411 East Lacock street.

Magistrate Thomas D. Jones asked Thomas concerning his wife and four children, which he said were in different places. He was unable to give the names of the children.

"How do you make a living?" asked the magistrate.

"Patients I treat are so happy at being cured that they pay my bills," replied Thomas. "Sometimes my rent is paid and I don't know who paid it."

Mrs. Margaret Coppas, of 121 Mendota street, testified that she had taken her daughter, Margaret, 18, to Thomas' place in answer to an advertisement for a girl to do housework. He wanted the girl to become a subject for mesmerism, the mother said, and they refused to accept the proffered position.

"He wasn't able to mesmerise me," testified Miss Smith. "Then he got fresh and I told him to stop." She had been in his employ since Sunday, she said.

Miss Thomas and Miss Smith were turned over to social workers. Detectives will investigate Thomas' activities and he will be given a further hearing later.

Funds Gone, Biggest School Budget Voted

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—The Chicago Board of Education, whose president, H. Wallace Caldwell, recently announced the Chicago school system would have to close within a few weeks because no funds were forthcoming, early today passed the largest budget in the history of the city schools.

The 1930 budget totaled $101,786,408. The board made no attempt to keep the budget within the revenue, the members taking the position that they would rather close the schools entirely than curtail activities.

Flare Thought Signal From Missing Flier

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Waning hopes for Maurice Graham, Western Air Express pilot, a flier in the World War, who has been missing since Saturday morning, flickered anew early today following the report of a Union Pacific engineer that he had sighted a flare on a hill northeast of Caliente, Nev., in the heart of the treacherous territory where Graham was believed to have been forced down. Six planes were held in readiness here to begin another search.

POSSE TRAPS WOMAN, 2 MEN

New Castle Killing Suspect Battles Against Posse, Gives Up When Trapped

We had three Indians, one of whom was a deputy sheriff, on foot. Five other deputies, in the advance guard, were on horseback.

We used an airplane for scouting but it failed to discover any trace of the three.

The trail led to the Gila River, which is about 200 feet wide, not deep, but full of treacherous quicksand.

Irene and her companions forded this stream at a shallow place. Our men followed.

We had gone about 14 miles from the point where we took up the trail, and were a mile and a quarter beyond the river when the men in front were fired [illegible].

The fugitives were concealed behind large boulders under a large overhanging shell rock, such as are characteristic of this region.

WOUND FRIGHTENS IRENE

The order to deploy was at once given. Our men returned the fire and began scattering to cover.

For an hour the firing continued. Three of our deputies worked their way around the mountain and brought up in the rear of Irene and her companions.

They approached stealthily to within 30 feet of the trio.

"Hands up!" called the leader of the deputies to the three, taken by surprise.

They raised their hands, and we took them into custody.

"My neck was grazed by a bullet when the firing began," Irene told me, "I ducked and was afraid to put my head above the rock again."

We placed the three on horseback until we got to the place we had left our automobiles, then brought them to Phoenix.

We found that they were armed with a rifle and three six-shooters. They seemed to be well supplied with ammunition and had several boxes of cartridges left. They had fired between 50 and 75 shots.

BLONDE ADMITS IDENTITY

Irene's clothes were pretty badly torn. She was wearing a black shirt and a pair of low-heeled hiking shoes. She had left a pair of high-heeled low shoes in the automobile they abandoned.

On the way to Phoenix I said to her: "Irene, I know who you are—why don't you admit it?"

"How do you know?" she asked quickly.

"Well we have a newspaper photograph of you, and clippings giving your description," I told her.

"Yes, I'm the one everyone has been looking for," she said. "A big reward is offered for my arrest."

Later she repeatedly asked for her son, "Donnie."

She told me they had abandoned two cars on their way west.

"We got into trouble in St. Louis," she told me, "and an officer fired at us. Some of the bullet holes are in the car we abandoned."

Irene's hair was bobbed, and of a dark bronze hue. She evidently had dyed it recently.

We finger-printed the three and then locked them up. I am keeper of the jail as well as sheriff. I am sure they will not escape.

Irene ate a good breakfast. We feed them pretty well out here. We gave her cereal, coffee and fried eggs.

We had a telegram from West Virginia last night concerning the ownership of one of the automobiles which the Schroeder woman stole, but I haven't had a chance to read it.

We are communicating with Texas authorities to learn whether our three prisoners are implicated with the killing of a rancher at Coleman January 9.

The man we believe is Dague has a light complexion and blue eyes. The published description of Irene fits the captured woman perfectly.

Patrolman Moore Going To Identify Blonde

HARRISBURG, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Pvt. Ernest Moore, of the State Highway Patrol, who was wounded at the same time his fellow patrolman, Corp. Brady Paul, was shot and killed near New Castle on December 27, will be sent to Phoenix, Ariz., to identify the woman and two [illegible] held there as the slay[illegible] Paul.

Preparations [illegible]ng made, Maj. C. M. Wilhelm, deputy superintendent of state police, said today, to have Moore and a state policeman leave Butler today or tomorrow for Phoenix.

Patrolman Moore was shot when he went to the assistance of Paul, after the two patrolmen stopped the car, in the search for robbers who had held up a store at Butler.

"From all the information we have had on the case," Maj. Wilhelm said, "we believe that the woman under arrest at Phoenix who says she is Mrs. Irene Schroeder, is the one who shot Corp. Paul. Patrolman Moore, who got a good look at her at the time, will be able to determine positively if she is."

RUSH ACTION ON EXTRADITION

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Extradition papers for the return of Mrs. Irene Schroeder, of Benwood, W. Va., to Pennsylvania, were being prepared today by District Attorney John Powers.

Mrs. Schroeder will be returned here in connection with the killing of Corp. Brady Paul, member of the Pennsylvania state highway patrol, slain near here December 27. Powers said papers also would be sent for extradition of one of the men, identified as M. Glen Dague, who also has been charged with murder.

MURDER CHARGES

Formal charges of murder were made in an information prepared December 31, Powers said. Besides Mrs. Schroeder and Dague, Thomas Crawford, a brother of the woman, also has been charged with murder. Informed that one of the men with the woman had been identified as a former Texas convict, the district attorney said he probably would not ask for his extradition pending receipt of additional information concerning him.

The district attorney stated that witnesses would be sent to Arizona in an attempt to identify the woman and men as the suspects in the killing of Corp. Paul. He added that he had not decided as yet who would be sent, but that several persons were available who might furnish the identification.

LONG SEARCH ENDED

The battle near Phoenix yesterday ended a nation-wide search begun December 27, when Corp. Brady Paul was shot and killed and Pvt. Ernest Moore, of the state highway patrol, was wounded when they stopped an automobile on the Butler-New Castle highway to question the occupants.

A four-year-old boy sat on the woman's lap when the battle was waged and within 48 hours after the crime the identity of the occupants of the car was established through the child.

LINKING BURKE AS UALE KILLER

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(INS.)—The minute science of ballistics was to be enlisted today in an effort to link Fred Burke, sought throughout the country for a dozen murders, to the slaying of Frankie Uale, New York gang leader who was "put on the spot."

Burke is suspected of the New York murder as well as for participation in the St. Valentine's Day massacre here.

Bullets extracted from Uale's body will be compared today with those fired from the machine gun found in Burke's home at St. Joseph, Mich., after he killed a policeman and fled.

GUARD BRIDGE IN FLOOD THREAT

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Indiana National Guards today were assigned to guard approaches to the Hazelton bridge across White River on U. S. Highway 41, when threats were made to dynamite the approaches to alleviate flood conditions in Knox and Pike Counties.

The Hazelton bridge is an important structure on U. S. Highway 41 which is a paved road leading from Chicago into southern states. A fill three miles long was constructed to provide an approach to the bridge.

Residents further upstream have declared that the Hazelton fill was holding back floodwaters of White River, thus causing the threatened inundation of thousands of acres.

MID-WEST IN DANGER

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Mid-winter's melting snows and January rains gorged the streams of the Mississippi Valley to dangerous flood stages today while a fresh onset of winter was inflicting zero and below-zero temperatures over northwestern and central states.

Along the Ohio and Wabash rivers the high waters had passed ordinary flood stages, but a cold wave promised relief. Many homes have been vacated. Similar conditions existed in Ohio, Illinois and parts of Missouri, as well as along the Lower Mississippi.

British Battleship Pulled From Rocks

VALETTA, Malta, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—The British battleship Ramillies ran aground on a rock off the point of Fort Santa Angelo in the inner harbor this morning, but was successfully pulled off by tugs in the afternoon. She had gone aground from under her foremost gun turret to her bows.

WORRY FOR SON TRAPS BLONDE

Highway Patrolman Brady Paul near New Castle, Pa., had little to add to what she had said last night. Still defiant, but minus the mocking laugh of last night, she showed plainly the results of the night's experience.

The trio had not been officially charged by Arizona authorities early today. It isn't the method of dealing with criminals in this section of the country.

"We throw them into jail and discuss lawyers and their so-called rights later," said one official.

The capture of the "trigger woman" and her two companions sounds more like fiction than fact. It recalled the old days of the West when freedom lay in the mountains, and not all who started over the desert reached their goal.

DEPUTY KIDNAPED

"They robbed a gas station in El Paso Saturday," an official told reporters. Last Thursday one of them shot a deputy in Texas and killed him. Then they came to Arizona."

Monday saw the beginning of the end for Irene Schroeder and her accomplices. It was while standing in front of a gasoline filling station in Florence, Ariz., that Deputy Sheriff Joe Chapman approached the car and engaged the blonde in the front seat in conversation. She leaned over the wheel and sounded the horn. The two men came running toward her. Before Chapman could turn, one of them pressed a revolver against his side.

"Get into the car," he said.

Out of Florence they drove, into the desert, and as tenderfeet are prone to do, they drove for hours in a circle. Early yesterday morning the car became stalled in a shallow stream, and they worked for hours, the fugitives and the kidnaped deputy, in freeing it.

Then they drove into Chandler and down the main street of the town, Chapman in the front seat between Dague, who was driving and the woman.

GUN BATTLE IN STREET

In front of the San Marcos Hotel another car, bearing deputy sheriffs in search of the kidnaped Chapman, forced the bandit car against the curb, and the shooting began.

Which side fired the first shot is not clear. As the bullets began whizzing between the two cars, Chapman grasped the wrists of Irene Schroeder and Dague and held them up. The bullets from Dague's gun tore holes in the roof of the deputies car.

Then a charge of buckshot shattered the kidnaped deputy's wrist.

He pushed open the door of the car with his foot and threw himself out, and as he lay in the street a bullet tore into his shoulder.

Then Lee Wright, another deputy, wheeled in his tracks and collapsed. But as he lay in the street he emptied his gun into the bandit car, reloaded it and fired three times, and fainted.

As Shirley Butterfield, a third deputy, went down under the fire of the bandits, Dague recovered the wheel of his car, backed away from the curb, and sped madly away. Three blocks beyond the car slowed up, the other man took the wheel and the car disappeared around a corner. It was late afternoon.

At 6 o'clock yesterday morning the abandoned car was found in the desert, and from then on it was easy for Indian trackers and bloodhounds to follow the trail through some of the wildest country in America, to the edge of the Gila River, eight miles from where the automobile had been abandoned.

TRAILED INTO DESERT

At noon the fugitives were sighted, and after a four-hour intermittent battle, they surrendered, tattered, tired and hungry.

From behind the bars in the county jail here today the blonde "trigger woman" admitted that she and her companions were without funds.

"I'll fight extradition to Pennsylvania," she declared. Then, as an after thought—"but I'm broke."

Found Guilty Third Time in Five Years

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 15.—(INS.)—Heber Nations, former state labor commissioner and brother of Gus O. Nations, former chief prohibition enforcement officer here, on trial for the third time charged by the government with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law was found guilty of the charge today. It was the third time in five years that he was found guilty of the charge.

Cheswick Water Rate Is Reduced

Water rates in Cheswick were reduced by the borough council at a meeting last night. The flat rate of 25 cents a thousand gallons was approved by the solons, as against the minimum rate of $2.25 for 3,000 gallons, now in force. This is expected to result in a saving for consumers.

Dual-Life Bandit's Family Unaware of Slaying

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Someone must tell Albert Holtzman's aged mother that he is dead—that his body lies in the morgue with 20 police bullets in it; that he was caught in the act of robbery, that he resisted arrest, killed a policeman and was himself slain; that his life of respectability as a produce dealer cloaked a career of crime. But so far no one has been able to break the news to her.

A policeman went to her house yesterday. Policemen are calloused to tears. Breaking tragic news to families is all part of the day's work. The policeman pounded on the door.

Albert Holtzman's mother opened it. She was bent and gray.

"Your son, Albert—" began the officer, and then stopped. Words seem to come hard to his lips.

"What is the matter?" asked Mrs. Holtzman, anxiously. "Has anything happened to Albert?"

"Well, mum, Albert got—hurt. An accident. Nothing to worry about. He's in the hospital. Better not disturb him. Just thought I'd tell you."

The officer went then to the home of Mrs. Dorothy Holtzman, a sister-in-law of the dead man. He told her what had happened, and advised her to tell the mother.

"I can't," said the younger woman. "It would kill her."

"Then tell his wife," said the policeman.

Mrs. Holtzman telephoned the wife.

"Albert—" she said, "Albert—"

"Oh, he'll be home any minute now," said the voice of the widow who still believed herself wife. "The children are talking about him. What shall I tell him?"

"Nothing, nothing," almost sobbed Mrs. Holtzman. "I'll—call—again." But she didn't call, and it was hours before the widow was told, the story being broken to her by her brother.

Of Holtzman's two companions in the Jackson boulevard robbery early yesterday, one, Sam Wolfe, is dead—shot down as was Holtzman. The other, Sam Waterman, was captured unhurt. Jerry Murphy, a detective, was killed by the robbers.

Holtzman operated the produce store in Hoopeston. Two days a week he spent in Chicago, explaining that the trips were necessary for the purchase of produce.

TROPHIES BURN AT HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Trophies of intercollegiate victories, athletic equipment and the Harvard locker building adjacent to the stadium on Soldiers' Field, were destroyed by fire of unknown origin early today. The loss was estimated at $100,000.

Nearby Harvard business school dormitories, a baseball cage and buildings housing Army men attached to the school of military science were not damaged. The blaze had made considerable headway when discovered at 12:30 a. m.

Dennis Enwright, veteran trainer, and his wife and children, who lived in an adjoining house, were forced to flee. Allan Hoover, son of the President, was among business school students at the fire.

The building, 36 years old, was a two and a half story wooden structure housing a gymnasium, football, baseball and track equipment, trophies, an emergency hospital operating room valued at $25,000 and Harvard Athletic Association records. Some of the records and trophies were rescued by the hundreds of students on the scene. The Percy D. Haughton memorial stands near the entrance to the building.

MAN KILLED, BOY HURT BY AUTOS

An aged man was dead and a 9-year-old boy was in a serious condition in the Montefiore Hospital today as a result of being struck by automobiles last night.

Charles Stapleson, 65, of 125 Ridgewood avenue, West View was killed when he was struck, according to the coroner's report, by an automobile driven by Mrs. J. C. Keyser, 22, of Perrysville road, Perrysville, near his home. Mrs. Keyser, with the aid of Police Sergt. John A. Braney, carried the victim to her automobile and took him to the Suburban General Hospital where he was pronounced dead. She was released after posting a $1,000 bail bond at the coroner's office.

The boy, Edward Farrell, of 2526 Fifth avenue, suffered a probable skull fracture when he was struck by a machine operated by Adolph Solomon, 36, of Locust street, police said. The accident occurred at Fifth avenue and Boston street.

P. R. R. Force Sets Track-Laying Record

A record in track laying was made by Pennsylvania Railroad employes yesterday when one and one-fifth miles of rails were laid on track No. 4 at Johnstown between 7:45 a. m. and 3 p. m. The work usually takes three days. By the old method flat cars loaded with rails are tak to the section and the rails distributed along the track. The second day the old rails are torn up and replaced and the third day a cleanup crew removes the old rails.

Yesterday a three-section train was used, so that at the end of the day all the work needed was completed.

PAINTERS HOLD FEAST TONIGHT

Two meetings today and a banquet tonight will compose the day's program of the fourty-second annual convention of the Master Painters and Decorators' Association of Western Pennsylvania, in session at the Fort Pitt Hotel. The convention opened yesterday morning.

F. N. Vanderwalker, of St. Louis, and Dr. Henry A. Gardner, of Washington, will be the speakers at the first session today, and R. L. Hallett, of New York, will be the speaker at the afternoon session. The banquet will be held in the hotel tonight. Charles J. Casper, former president of the National Paint, Oil and Varnish Association, will speak tonight.

Tomorrow morning officers for the ensuing year will be elected and diplomas will be awarded to apprentices. About 300 members of the association are attending the convention.

Mediterranean CRUISE...

Think of it! A 73-day freedom from stock tickers and city clang and wet slush. For only $12 a day you can get away to this most beneficial adventure of all.

Here, in the Cradle of Civilization, you'll bask in the warm, renewing sunshine. You'll wander among entirely different peoples, meet entirely different customs and ways to enjoy life. You'll have two and a half months of lazy, luxurious "seeing and doing."

You can go on either one of two transatlantic giantesses which sail the complete Mediterranean horizon this winter. S.S. Empress of Scotland leaves New York, Feb. 3...S.S. Empress of France, Feb. 13. Long stays in the "must-see" capitals. Unexpected idylls in rarely visited romance spots.

ONE-WAY GO-AS-YOU-PLEASE TOURS. Those who do not wish a complete cruise ticket may purchase to any port on the itinerary, with or without shore excursions at ports of call.

RUSSIA IN GRIP OF NEW RED REVOLT

Stalin Merely Symbol of Communism, Personalities Don't Count, Says Writer

By FRAZIER HUNT.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Russia today is in the midst of a new Red revolution. It is more radical, more red, harder and vastly more uncompromising than the revolution of the intellectual Lenin. Stalin and his crowd, who sit in the Kremlin, do represent the unconscious spirit and will of the vast majority of Russia. Russia is Red and doesn't know it—but Stalin and the 1,000 leaders know it. Communism rests squarely on the unexpressed wish and will of Russia.

The Russian revolution has crystalized. It is a fact today. It is no longer a theory. No longer are there great personalities. The revolution itself has been mechanized—it is the hardened will of millions. Stalin—the one figure whose name is in common circulation—is only the symbol of Communism. It is "the party" that counts. Stalin could disappear tomorrow and the Soviet Union would roll on without a break. Gone are the great inspirers, the Lenins and Trotzkys. It is the will, the spirit that counts today.

CRUEL, INTOLERANT

Russia is still cruel and intolerant. Never has there been such a spy system, nor such an actuality of terror. Never has there been so little genuine personal freedom. Never has there been a government so centralized and autocratic. Never has life been harder and crueler. Religion is crushed and the home is in a transitory stage.

These are the facts of Russia—the trees that keep the observer from seeing the Russian forest. But the great truth and the great forest of Russia are there.

And this great truth is that Russia is booming ahea . She is a going concern. Her philosophy of Communism is a new "religion"—a forceful, vital, militant religion—and her young men and women are crusaders out to win the world.

Almost 11 years ago when I was in Moscow she thought she could do it with bayonets. Now she knows she must do it by ideas. She no longer dreams of conquering the world—she dreams of converting the world. She is training engineers, not soldiers.

TURNS TO ENEMY

And do all this she turns to her greatest potential rival and enemy.

No two countries in the world are so genuinely similar as America and Russia. They are comparable in size, in wealth of land and mines, rivers and forests; they are both dreamers; they belong to the future, to the new world. The good life for the common man is the deep and fundamental dream of both.

In one, man's individual efforts are rewarded. Man is to accumulate and store up the rewards of his personal toil and energy and wits. Differences of brains and work and will are to be proportionately rewarded.

In the other, all classes, all differences of rewards are to be abolished; the state is to own, to manufacture, and to distribute everything; every man is to be the equal and brother of every other man in the world.

And so it is that these two nations at once more closely similar and yet more distantly separated, fight for the soul of the world.

AMERICA AHEAD

At present, America is far, far ahead. She has caught the imagination of the whole world. She has developed a vastly better life for the common man than any nation at any time in history has done. She moves forward towards an unbelieveable and uncalculable perfection of efficiency at high speed.

Russia creaks on in a wooden cart on muddy roads—but she moves towards the motor car—the tractor—new efficiency—modern mechanization—new ideas of state production and ownership—new plans of state distribution—new dreams of comfort and happiness.

Russia is learning and will continue to learn tremendous lessons of machinery and personal comforts and decent living from America. But America in turn will unconsciously take certain lessons from Russia—certain ideas of state control, of production, of co-operation, of distribution.

Tomorrow they will struggle for the world.

"Kato Kago." Which one?"—Who will win?

Who can give comforts and happiness to all men—Red Russia or White America?

The one that can will win the world of the future.

Trapped Without Legs, He Crawls To Safety

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 15.—Discovering a fire which broke out in his home near Latrobe too late to attach his artificial legs, Edward Garrity, 40, pulled himself to safety by means of his hands.

Garrity's wife and their five small children, also awakened by the smell of smoke, escaped injury. The loss to the dwelling was $2,000.

'MOTHER JONES' NEARS 100

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Mary Jones, known internationally in labor circles as "Mother Jones," promised she would attend a celebration of the Chicago Federation of Labor on May Day of the hundredth anniversary of her birth.

"Mother Jones" has been ill at her home at Silver Springs, Maryland, near here, for several weeks, but she retains her cheerful attitude.

"I will be 100 years old May 1," she said, "and I am going to Chicago on that day where the Chicago Federation of Labor intends to have a celebration in honor of my century of life."

She showed pleasure today at a message sent her by Senator Borah, of Idaho, an old friend, saying:

"Mother Jones, it must be a great comfort to you in your declining years to look back and reflect upon the multitude of things you have done and the countless busy hours you have given to humanity, to those who were fighting against misfortune and adversity for better things. You have added joy to the lives of others. You have planted hope and aroused ambition among those pressed with personal cares. All this must be a great comfort and consolation in these hours."

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that was centered over Eastern Iowa yesterday morning moved rapidly northeastward to the St. Lawrence valley. It produced little precipitation over this section, but occurred over all the states east of the Mississippi. It is raining this morning along the Middle and North Atlantic coast, and snowing in Iowa and Northern Illinois. The snow is now 10 inches deep at Des Moines, 11 inches at St. Paul and 6 inches at Green Bay. High pressure, centered this morning over Northern Alberta and Saskatchewan, is spreading over the Plains states and the central valleys, and is causing a decided drop in temperature everywhere from the Rocky Mountains to the Appalachians. The tmeperature is 18 degrees as far south as Central Texas, and 10 degrees in Oklahoma. The zero line passes through Central Kansas and eastward to the Mississippi. This section will experience cold weather during the next several days.

River Conditions.

The rivers are now falling. Stage at Franklin is 10.6 feet; Lock No. 7, 12.7; Pittsburgh, 19.3; Dam No. 4, 19.9; Dam No. 6, 22.9; Dam No. 9, 23.7; Dam No. 12, 23.6. The Ohio River will fall slowly, for the Allegheny is still bank full from the headwaters to Pittsburgh.

JOHN D. HELPS AGED PASTORS

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP)—John D. Rockefeller, Sr., has made a new donation of $800,000 to the Ministers' and Missionaries Benefit Board of the Northern Baptist Convention. The announcement was made by Dr. P. C. Wright, executive secretary of the board.

Dr. Wright said Rockefeller's latest gift brought his personal contributions to that branch of Northern Baptist work almost up to $7,000,000. A special contribution of $100,000 was announced December 28.

The new gift will be applied to endowment funds, Dr. Wright said, and used to provide for aged, infirm and needy ministers and missionaries.

Rhoades Appointed Chief in Sewickley

Sewickley Borough Council named Harold D. Rhoades chief of police at its meeting held last night. Acting Chief Thomas Whitmore was retained, but his official status will not be determined until the body's next meeting. Councilmanic committees for the current year were made known by President C. D. Bevington.

Home Is Dangerous, Says Ida Tarbell

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(INS.)—Don't stay at home!

Anyway, that was the advice credited today to Ida M. Tarbell, noted writer and statistician. She told a radio audience that the home continues to be the most dangerous place in America, considering 24,000 fatal accidents occur each year in homes in the United States. She counseled safety first if one must stay at home.

MUSIC

Jascha Heifetz

SYRIA MOSQUE

PROGRAM.

Sonata in F minor.....(1736) Tremais
Adagio-Allegro, ma non presto—Aria (grazioso-un poco Allegro-Tempo I.)
Concerto.....Tschaikowsky
Allegro moderato
Canzonetta—Finale (allegro vivacissimo)
Song without words...Mendelssohn-Kreisler
Capricieuse.....Elgar
An einsamer Quelle.....Strauss
Horra Staccatto (Rumanian).....Heifetz
Presto.....Honegger
Scenes de la Csarda.....Hubay

Jascha Heifetz, one of the most popular violinists before the public today, drew a capacity audience to Syria Mosque last night, but returned no sign of the spontaneous cordiality shown him by an adoring crowd.

J. Fred Lissfelt

There is no gainsaying the fact of this violinist's stupendous technique, of the elegance of his phrasing, and, until last night, of the purity of his tone. But his playing still remains passionless, and even in such dance tunes, as Hubay wrote, his frigidity is most astonishing.

Heifetz made a good program. In the first sonata of Tremais, a most obscure writer of the eighteenth century, he was at his very best, for the delicacy of that music is second nature to Heifetz's bow. Again in the canzonetta of the concerto there was a moment of unexpected tenderness. His group of shorter numbers were original for Pittsburgh; especially attractive were the Rumanian "Horra Staccato," which had to be repeated, and the extremely modern but palatable "Presto" of Honegger of the French "Six."

Isidor Achron played unusually fine accompaniments.

All-Day Dresses

Specially Priced

$2.45

Well-named dresses, for you will want to wear them all day, so new and smart are their styles . . . so dainty and bright the prints. Long-sleeved and elbow-length sleeves comprise the group . . . and the fabrics are sheer lawns and batistes, with the heavier broadcloths, fine cotton prints and lustrous silkettes.

Pastel colors on light grounds rules for most of the prints, and there is a good selection of black-and-white designs. Sizes 16 to 46.

Belgian Linen All-Day Dresses, $3.65

An exceptional group of linen frocks with long or elbow sleeves or sleeveless. White, white with colored embroidery designs, white with pastel-colored skirts and solid pastel colors . . . all styles and qualities that are usually much higher priced. Sizes 16 to 46.

. . . Horne's, Third Floor . . .

Women Seek to Oust Head of Poor Home

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Jan. 15—Mrs. Kittie L. Rothwell, of East Palestine, president of the Columbia County Women's Christian Temperance Union, and 25 others today presented a petition to the County Commissioners asking John P. Neill, superintendent of the County Home for the Poor at Lisbon, be ousted.

Mrs. Rothwell said she was urged to head the petition by Carl Bowman, former clerk of the commissioners, and his wife.

Woman Beats Off Tarentum Youth

Charged with an attempted attack on a middle-aged woman, Joe Zenish, 20, of West Eighth avenue, Tarentum, was being held by Tarentum police today. Police said Zenish attacked the woman near her home in Tarentum and that she was forced to wield a brick in self-defense. The youth will be given a hearing tonight.

He was arrested on a similar charge three months ago, according to Tarentum police.

Babies will cry, often for no apparent reason. You may not know what's wrong, but you can always give Castoria. This soon has your little one comforted; if not, you should call a doctor. Don't experiment with medicines intended for the stronger systems of adults! Most of those little upsets are soon soothed away by a little of this pleasant-tasting, gentle-acting children's remedy that children like.

It may be the stomach, or may be the little bowels. Or in the case of older children, a sluggish, constipated condition. Castoria is still the thing to give. It is almost certain to clear up any minor ailment, and could by no possibility do the youngest child the slightest harm. So it's the first thing to think of when a child has a coated tongue; won't play, can't sleep, is fretful or out of sorts. Get the genuine; it always has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.

OBITUARY

James K. Lacock.

The body of James Knox Lacock, former Pittsburgher, who died Sunday in Miami, Fla., will be brought here for burial, relatives announced. He was born in old Allegheny, where he spent the early part of his life. As a member of the First Regiment of Texas he saw service in Cuba during the Spanish - American war. For a number of years he had made his home in Washington, where he was connected with the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. He was a member of the Masonic order and the Protestant Episcopal Church. He leaves a brother, John S. Lacock, of 2231 Shady avenue, Squirrel Hill, from whose home the funeral will be held, and two sisters, Mrs. Robert S. Boyd, of Phillips avenue, and Miss Grace Lacock, of Webster Hall.

Abram Leibovitz.

Abram Leibovitz, 62, president of the Iron City and Sanitary Cleaning Company, died yesterday in his home at 4271 Bryn Mawr road. He was founder and president of the Altiro Club and also founder of the Security Loan Association. At one time he was president of the Oher Chodosh Congregation. He was a member of David Wilson Lodge, I. O. B. A., and Greater Pittsburgh Lodge, W. S. O. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Molly Leibovitz; four sons, Samuel Joseph, Frank and Harry Leibovitz and a daughter, Mrs. Minnie Herskovitz, all of Pittsburgh. Funeral services were to be held today in his home and burial was to be in Millvale Cemetery.

Sleeman Funeral.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon for Thomas Sleeman, 71, a retired railroad engineer who died Monday in the Presbyterian Hospital. He resided at 205 Sagamore street. Services will be held in the McKees Rocks Methodist Episcopal Church and burial will be in Mt. Calvary Cemetery, McKees Rocks. He was a member of the Andrew Curtin Lodge, Junior Order United American Mechanics and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Edith Parker Sleeman and five sons, E. C. Sleeman of Detroit; W. R. Sleeman of Oil City; H. P. Sleeman of Lisbon, O.; W. C. Sleeman of Birmingham, Ala., and M. E. Sleeman of Pittsburgh.

George N. Riley.

George N. Riley, of 7225 Meade street, National Tube Company employe, died at his home last night. Mr. Riley was born in Johnstown, Pa., November 19, 1848, son of Cyrus and Nancy Fuller Riley. He was employed by the National Tube Company more than 54 years. Mr. Riley was a member of Braddock Field Lodge, No. 510, F. & A. M. nearly 60 years. He also was a member of Syria Temple and the Duquesne Club. He leaves his wife, Hannah McCleary Riley, two sons, M. F. Riley, of Hagerstown, Md., and A. D. Riley, of Crafton, and six grandchildren. Funeral services will be at the Moreland Funeral Parlors tomorrow afternoon.

Graham Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah M. Graham, who died Monday, were to be held at the home, 40 Kendall avenue, Bellevue, at 3 p. m., today. She was born May 5, 1851, at Brady's Bend, Armstrong County, and spent the early part of her life there. Most of her married life of 59 years was spent in the old Sixth Ward of the North Side. For three years she had made her home with her son, Harry T. Graham, in Bellevue. She was a charter member of Bethel Lutheran Church, North Side.

She leaves her husband, Charles F. Graham; a daughter, Clara M., of Bellevue; five sons, C. Addison, of the North Side; John W., of Philadelphia; Smiley W., Harry T. and William C. Graham, all of Bellevue; and a brother, Miles A. Risher, of Buffalo.

Edith May Round.

Funeral services for Mrs. Edith May Palmer Round, 69, widow of Benjamin Round, who died in Braddock General Hospital Sunday, will be held from the home, 10 Brown's place, Squirrel Hill, at 2:30 p. m., tomorrow. Burial will be in Homewood Cemetery. She leaves five sons, Louis B., of New Castle; Dr. Samuel F., of Braddock; Joseph F., Edgar J., and Edward F. Round, of Pittsburgh; a daughter, Mrs. Richard Mackey, of East McKeesport, and nine grandchildren.

Josiah Dalbey.

Josiah Dalbey, 74, died yesterday in his home at New Brighton. He was a member of the United Presbyterian Church and for 10 years had served as a member of the New Brighton school board. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Mary E. Dalbey; two sons, John L. and T. Everett Dalbey; two daughters, Miss Gladys E. and Miss Sarah M. Dalbey and two grandchildren.

JUDGE DENIES DIVORCE PLEA

Judge James H. Gray has handed down an opinion refusing a divorce to Stewart R. Snyder, 5251 Wilkins avenue, against his wife, Margaret M. Snyder, of Jamestown, N. Y.

In his opinion Judge Gray claims that Snyder has been moving to make a case by which the libellant could procure a divorce. The couple have three children, two of whom are in Pittsburgh and one in Jamestown.

Judge Gray reviews the testimony and says it shows that the libellant was evidently not willing to provide his wife with a suitable place in which to live. The couple had lived for a time in quarters above his mother's garage at Fifth and Wilkins avenues, after the couple's return from Jamestown.

Acid Stomach

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer, when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

Terrible Eczema Goes Quickly

There is one simple and inexpensive way to reduce the danger of swollen veins and bunches, and get them down to normal, and that is to apply Moone's Emerald Oil night and morning. People who have painful enlarged veins should not neglect them, for they sometimes burst and cause much misery and loss of time.

Moone's Emerald Oil besides being so marvelously antiseptic that it at once destroys germs and poisons caused by germs is such a remarkable healing agent that eczema, barbers' itch, salt rheum, and other inflammatory skin eruptions go in a few days.

For years it has been used for boils, ulcers, abscesses, and open sores, and with the most perfect success.

May's & Liggett's Drug Stores all over Greater Pittsburgh and every good druggist guarantees Emerald Oil to end your skin troubles or money back.

Rum Smugglers Use Cable Over Niagara

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Report was made to Capt. Lawrence E. Stephenson, customs border patrol commander, that smugglers are using a spare cable to shunt liquor across the Niagara River from Canada. The scene of operations is a point below the power lines at Niagara Falls, near Niagara University.

The apparatus consists of a specially-made basket, capable of holding three or four cases of whisky, controlling wires, pulleys and tackle. The cargo is pulled across by operators stationed on the bank of the river.

TWO ADDRESSES ON PRINTING

Two addresses on the art of printing will be given tomorrow. Prof. David Gustafson, head of the printing department at Carnegie Institute of Technology, will speak at the annual Ben Franklin dinner given by the local chapter of the United Typothetae of America in the evening at Hotel Schenley.

Walter J. Berg, president of the Crescent Printing Company, of Cincinnati, O., will address the students and faculty of the department of printing at Tech, in the afternoon. His subject will be "Printing Fundamentals."

Four Men Held In Lottery Drive

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 15.—Four alleged agents of the clearing house lottery were arrested en route to Pittsburgh. Those held are George Disney, 32, of Houston; James Boulware, 24, Canonsburg; Homer Webb, 24, Washington, and Lee Vactor, 35, also of Washington. All are Negroes.

INTEREST PAID FOR OVERBROOK

Council has affirmed payment of $2,125 for interest due last January on bonds issued by the former Borough of Overbrook and $1,575 for interest that will be due February 1.

During a discussion yesterday of the former borough's financial affairs, City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt explained that the city had stopped all work on contracts let by the former borough officials after the borough's borrowing limit had been exceeded by $23,000.

Replying to a question, Waldschmidt declared that the former borough councilmen were liable to a $10,000 fine and a year in jail if they were proven guilty of "willfully" incurring debt by awarding contracts after the legal borrowing margin was exhausted.

This is what we mean by the perfected loaf

WHEN we announced to you last week that Mother Hubbard Bread has been so highly developed by our master bakers that it has been called "the perfected loaf", we did not give you the details of this perfection.

By perfected we mean a loaf that, in every important feature, is all that bread can be—a loaf faultlessly good in all respects.

Crust: Mother Hubbard has a rich golden brown crust. Never too pale, never too brown, and always uniform in its firm crispness.

Texture: Mother Hubbard has a tender yet well-knit texture that makes it butter easily, even when at its very freshest. It is finer grained and slices perfectly.

Taste: Mother Hubbard tastes like bread—bread at its very finest. Flavorful, but not too much so. It does not try to compete with the butter you put on it, or the filling of the sandwiches you make of it. The taste alone will tell you that Mother Hubbard is indeed the perfected loaf.

Toasting: Mother Hubbard browns quickly and evenly over the entire surface of each slice. Crisp and crunchy on the outside, soft and tender on the inside. That's what makes perfect toast.

We are very sure that you, like thousands of other particular women, are going to find Mother Hubbard your idea of perfect bread. And we are equally sure that when you have tried it, you will not be satisfied with anything less than the perfected loaf for your family.

Get Mother Hubbard bread from your dealer today.

How Women Lose Fat In England

GAIN PHYSICAL CHARM

How would you like to lose 15 pounds of fat in a month and at the same time increase your energy and improve your health?

How would you like to lose unhealthy fat that you don't need and don't want and at the same time feel better than you have for years?

How would you like to lose your double chin and your too prominent abdomen and at the same time make your skin so clean and clear that it will compel admiration?

How would you like to get your weight down to normal and at the same time develop that urge for activity that makes work a pleasure and also gain in ambition and keenness of mind?

Get on the scales today and see how much you weigh—then get an 85 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts, which will last you for 4 weeks. Take one-half teaspoonful every morning in a glass of hot water and when you have finished the first bottle weigh yourself again.

Now you can laugh at the people who pay hundreds of dollars to lose a few pounds of fat—now you will know the pleasant way to lose unsightly fat and you'll also know that the 6 vitalizing salts in Kruschen (Salts that your blood, nerves and glands must have to function properly)—have presented you with glorious health.

After that you'll want to walk around and say to your friends,—"One 85 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts is worth one hundred dollars of any fat person's money."

Leading druggists America over sell Kruschen Salts—you can always get it at May's & Liggett's Drug Stores.

Target for Shoes, Jelly, Husband Says, Sues

Throwing things at him was one of his wife's pastimes, it developed in the bill of particulars filed in court by Kenneth Bleakney, Princeton avenue, Natrona Heights, who has filed a libel in divorce against Pearl Elizabeth Bleakney.

A lemon squeezer, jar of jelly, old shoes, dishes, vases and a knife were among the things hurled, together with dishes which Bleakney says he managed to dodge.

Bleakney also alleges that on one occasion his wife struck him in the face and checked out $500 of his bank account. The couple were married December 21, 1927 and lived together until March of last year.

COUNCIL RAPS POLICE CARDS

Council, in budget session today, tentatively approved an estimated expense of $200 for miscellaneous printing charges for the general office of the safety department.

Robert Brown, chief clerk in the safety department, explained that the larger part of the expense expresented in printing about 15,000 cards supposed to entitle the holder to "the courtesy of the police bureau."

John S. Herron inquired, "What good are the cards. Do the holders believe they are in a preferred class?"

"It probably means 15,000 votes," observed Robert J. Alderdice, former safety director and police superintendent.

Brown reserved comment.

SHEA'S ESTATE WORTH MILLION

An estate estimated to be in excess of $1,000,000 was left by Joseph B. Shea, chairman of the board of directors of the Joseph Horne Company, who died January 6, it was shown in the will which was filed for probate in the office of the register of wills late yesterday. Beneficiaries are the widow and two sons.

Mrs. Shea and a son, C. B. Shea, vice president of the Joseph Horne Company, are named as executors. The other son is Sidney M. Shea, headmaster of Lawrenceville Academy, at Lawrenceville, N. J. William E. Fulton is counsel for the estate.

DEMANDS DOPE WITH GUN, HELD

A demand for morphine, emphasized when she pointed a revolver at him, was charged today by Dr. David L. Cooper, of 623 Arch street, testifying against Mrs. Betty Gannas, 27, of 611 Buhl way, when she was arraigned in Morals Court.

The physician fouled the gun, which he later found to be unloaded. The woman was held for mental examination.

Dr. Cooper told Magistrate Thomas D. Jones that he had examined the woman four years ago with other physicians and that she had been declared mentally unsound and sent to Mayview. Four weeks later Mayview released the woman.

Cruelty Charged To Wife in Suit

Seremus Q. Ebert, 219 Bertha street, charges his wife, Agnes I. Ebert, with cruel and barbarous treatment in a divorce libel filed in Common Pleas Court. The couple wed in July, 1915.

Trustee Is Asked For Church Property

Attorney Mark R. Craig presented a petition in court requesting that the presbytery of Pittsburgh be appointed trustee for the East End Presbyterian Church property. In 1914 the East End church conveyed property to the Waverly Presbyterian Church. The year following a petition was presented to Common Pleas Court for the dissolution of the East End church, hence the recent proceeding. The church property is at Peebles and Waverly streets.

Court Holds Suspect For Cleveland Police

Walter Bryant, Negro, of Cleveland, O., was ordered held in jail today by Judge A. B. Reid, pending the arrival of Ohio officers with extradition papers. Attorney R. L. Vann had sought Bryant's release, contending that Bryant was not the man Cleveland police want.

Crafton Confirms Utz as Fire Chief

Election by volunteer firemen of William Utz as their chief was confirmed by Crafton Borough Council at its meeting last night. Carl Hermann was re-elected a member of the board of health. President T. J. Fitzpatrick presided and announced the new councilmanic committees.

CITY TO APPEAL N. S. AWARD

Council has adopted John S. Herron's motion directing the city to appeal from a board of viewers' award of $212,000 for 20 feet taken off the Martin Building at Federal street and West General Robinson street to permit the widening of Robinson from 50 to 70 feet.

City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt advised Council that the law department had appraised the total damage to property resulting from the entire widening from Scotland street to Federal street at $210,000.

Chief Thomas C. McMahon, of the board of assessors, said the building was bought by the Buhl Foundation, the present owner, for $375,000. It appears on the city's books with an assessed valuation of $197,000 on land and $50,000 on the building.

McMahon said the owner's representative had offered to sell the building for $250,000 when the last assessment was made.

Replying to Herron, McMahon declared he believed the viewers' award was "too much," and that Council "would be foolish to pay it without a fight."

$141,568,516 Estates Handled by Mackrell

Joseph N. Mackrell, register of wills, submitted his report to Orphans' Court showing that the total value of estates handled by his office in 1929 totaled $141,568,516. Wills probated totaled 2,771, and inventories filed numbered 3,335. A total of 3,852 decrees and amended decrees of distribution were placed on the record. The number of marriage licenses totaled 10,294. Other items show that there were 147 adoptions, 3,664 accounts confirmed as well as a large amount of other business disposed of.

20 Pittsburghers to Address Engineers

Twenty Pittsburgh electrical engineers are scheduled to address the winter convention of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers to be held in New York from Monday, January 27 to January 31. Four of the engineers are on the staff of the Duquesne Light Company; while the remaining 16 are employed by the Westinghouse Electrical and Manufacturing Company.

ASTROLOGY
What the stars foretell for 1930

Prof. A. F. Seward
World's Foremost Astrologer

I want to send you the most remarkable Astrological Reading that you have ever read. Dealing with business and social affairs, such as signing papers and contracts, seeking employment, speculation, stocks and bonds, travel, love, courtship, best days for marriage, health, accidents, lucky days, etc.

The stars have been in bad aspect and not favoring the destiny of those born in June, July, September, October and December, 1930 should be a turning point for those born in January, March, April and November.

What a great comfort it would be to have a lengthy, Astrological Reading close at hand, to obtain advice on so many of the affairs of life—one that you could consult today and prepare for what is coming tomorrow.

My fee for a Reading, covering 17 pages, is $1.00. Order now. It may change the whole course of your life. Send one dollar with your name, address and birth date. You will be more than pleased.

Lovely COMPLEXION that nothing will remove

WOULD you like a lovely skin? A complexion that won't come off—a radiant color all your own? If constipation is the cause of your troubles give your system the little calcium that it needs—and note the immediate improvement.

Five days will very often transform a muddy, blotchy, sallow complexion resulting from this condition. From the very first day, you should see and feel the difference.

Tiny, gentle, Stuart's Calcium Wafers help Nature to quickly rid the system of impurities and poisonous wastes that cause pimples, blotches, acne and other skin blemishes. A week-end's use will frequently work a wondrous change.

A FEW DAYS' TEST WILL TELL

Bright, sparkling eyes! Clear, satin-smooth skin free from faults! Nails and hair alive and glossy with sound growth! And a warm flush of natural color radiating from within—refreshingly lovely color that no rouge can imitate, and nothing can remove. Try this week-end test.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Folk Go to Hear Heifetz

IN spite of all this sighing over the departed season with all its gaiety, society folks are surely occupied even though it's mid-January.

Last night there were ever so many folks at the Heifetz concert at Syria Mosque, one of the largest audiences I've seen at a concert this winter.

And in the intermission everyone was talking animatedly with everyone else about the artist and about winter resorts. And never have I seen folks so reluctant to leave a concert hall, and seldom has an artist been more generous with encores.

Among the last to leave was Mrs. George H. Love, wrapped in a coat of ermine. Her dress was of black net. And I caught sight of Mrs. George L. Collard, too.

Talking with Martha Edmondson and a group of friends was Betty McCance, who wore a simple gown of green moire in the princess mode. Martha wore a green crepe dress, with a low, v-shaped back decolletage.

And Mrs. George P. Bassett was there, wearing maroon velvet. Waiting for her car I saw Mrs. Elizabeth Reed Brown, wrapped in a mink coat.

During the intermission I saw a small group of buds of this winter talking things over. Ruth Drake was one of them, wearing a beige lace gown, fashioned with a long, sweeping skirt, and a high waistline. Melus Rhodes and Emily Frew and Mary Black were among the animated conversationalists. And I saw Dorothy Jarvis, too, wearing black velvet, and Lydia Irish.

Walking up and down in the corridors I caught sight of attractive Mrs. John A. Byerly in black lace and a black velvet coat furred in white fox.

SOCIAL leaders interested in philanthropy and younger folks, members of the Junior League, had a busy day yesterday with all the many committee meetings and entertainments in connection with the visit of Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur and Mrs. Wilbur. Of course you know that Mr. Wilbur addressed a public meeting at the Carnegie Music Hall last night under the auspices of the Public Charities Association.

And last night Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., gave a dinner in the Pittsburgh Golf Club for members of the board in honor of the Wilburs, and from the dinner the guests went to the Music Hall, where a group of Junior League members under the chairmanship of Ellen McClay were ushers.

Mrs. Wilbur wore black lace trimmed with black moire ribbon; Mrs. Thaw, black and silver transparent velvet, and Mrs. Franklin C. Irish, black velvet. And I saw Mrs. William Spencer, of Erie, wearing black velvet; Mrs. Percy Madeira, of Germantown, in dahlia chiffon; and Mrs. Graham Dougherty, of Wyncote, in black velvet; and Mrs. Charles Chick, of Uniontown, black.

Ellen McClay looked charming in a gown of cinnamon brown chiffon, and Eleanor Longenecker wore black lace. Mary Shiras chose a gown of beige lace as did Mrs. Oliver Blair. And both the Totten sisters, Phyllis and Louise, were there wearing similar gowns of black lace.

Attractive Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe, Jr., wore a gown of gray chiffon embroidered in crystals, and Eleanor Evans looked distinctive in a simple gown of orange crepe. Mrs. Jack Bissell had one of the new dinner gowns of black lace, fashioned with long, tight-fitting sleeves, and a very low, v-shaped back decolletage.

Mrs. Samuel Reed, Jr., wore beige lace and Nancy Brown beige chiffon. Clarissa Reed's gown was of embroidered black net and Marjorie Kimball wore blue satin crepe.

Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner looked distinctive in a gown of black velvet with a simulated bustle effect and the low decolletage outlined in scarlet poppies.

Black lace was worn by Mrs. Harvey Childs III and blue taffeta by Mrs. James W. Brown.

Mary McClung's gown was of rose lace with the skirt trimmed with narrow ruffles of the same material. Evelyn Evans wore dahlia chiffon trimmed in bay green chiffon, and Margaret Stewart, black velvet.

AND now I happen to know the first social entertainment for the coming week is to be a hunt dinner on Tuesday night in honor of the John Ormsby Burgwins, joint masters of the Sewickley hunt. The affair will take place in the Hunt Club.

EVERY day we hear of more departures for the land of the sun. Mrs. John C. Reilly and her daughter, Miss Bertha Reilly, of the Hotel Schenley, have gone to Miami Beach, where they are occupying their Florida home. Later the John J. Harts, of Emerson street, and Mrs. D. S. Roberts, of Aiken avenue, and her two children, Anna and Mary, will go to Miami to be guests of Mrs. Reilly.

* * *

MRS. ANNA M. STIEBER, of Orchard avenue, Bellevue, announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Ruth Clara Stieber, to William Zahn, of Bellevue and Texas, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Zahn, of Waco, Tex., at a bridge-luncheon on Saturday, January 11.

PROFESSOR and Mrs. M. J. McMahon, of Ingram, frequent visitors of Atlantic City, are now stopping in the Hotel Lafayette, in Atlantic City.

THE third of a series of card parties given for the benefit of the Epiphany Church will be held in the Epiphany auditorium on Friday evening. The following are in charge of the affair: Mrs. M. J. Daley, Mrs. Catherine Egan, Mrs. Jean Cunningham, Miss Elizabeth Johnston and Miss Mary Lacey.

THE Rev. Dr. A. Gordon MacLennan will be the speaker at the Thursday Noon Club for Business Women tomorrow in the First Presbyterian Church. Miss Mary Fisher, soprano, will sing.

"HEALTH" is the discussion topic to be introduced tomorrow afternoon at the monthly meeting of the John Burroughs' Parent-Teacher Association.

Council Appoints In New Kensington

Announcement of committees for 1930 was made at a meeting of New Kensington Borough Council last night. President W. K. Clowes presided.

Talk Series Begins at Y.W.C.A.

DR. FLORENCE M. TEAGARDEN has chosen some unusual topics all in motor terminology for the series of lectures which she will deliver in the "Know Thyself" course Tuesday evenings at Central Branch, Young Women's Christian Association. The first of these lectures was given last night. Dr. Teagarden speaking on "1930 Models of Human Beings." It was an open class before which the speaker discussed whether people are alike or different and how much of the saint and how much of the criminal there is in each one. Next Tuesday "Accelerators" is the topic under which instincts will be discussed. Emotions which she calls "Spark Plugs" is the subject for January 28 and then in February, habits and adjustments will be brought up for discussion under the title, "Brakes" and "Carburetor Adjustments."

TO open the way for a glee club, dramatic society or parpticipation in Girl Scout work, the Pittsburgh Circle, International Federation of Catholic Alumnae, will hold a special meeting tomorrow evening in Cathedral High School.

MRS. SAUL LAVINE, president of the Rodef Shalom Sisterhood, will make the address of welcome tomorrow afternoon when the Sisterhood holds its annual reciprocity day.

A SOMEWHAT unusual affair in club circles will be the progressive luncheon and card party which the Outlook Alliance will have January 30 under its ways and means committee. Mrs. S. J. Corbett, chairman of ways and means, and Mrs. John Colclough, chairman of the hospitality committee, are in charge of the affair which will be held in the homes of several members.

A LUNCHEON to which chapter presidents are invited, will be held at the Congress of Clubs Friday, January 24, by the executive board of the Pennsylvania Division, Service Star Legion. Mrs. Albert Oskin is chairman for the luncheon which will be followed by a business session. Mrs. Olive M. Horne is state president.

* * *

INSTEAD of the usual open house afternoon at the clubhouse today (the clubhouse is being remodeled) four members of the Mothers' Club of Carrick are opening their homes for cards. These hostesses are Mrs. Ellsworth Trott, Mrs. Carl P. Kerr, Mrs. Jacob Fuchs and Mrs. Albert Tillett.

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT CLOTHES FOR THE YOUTH

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—Youth must be served—but by somebody who understands it—when it goes out shopping for clothes. The very new lines of this season's frocks with their air of sophistication achieved through the medium of fabric, silhouette and design, are not for the sub-debutante, however much they may appear to suit her. The wise mother and the clever daughter will conspire to achieve smartness without sacrificing one iota of the charm and simplicity of youth. Such smartness is the outcome of clothes chosen to express the vibrant personality, slim form and ingenuous appeal of the girl who is just standing at the threshhold of womanhood, rather than a smartness designed to express sophistication, subtlety and other worldly charms and graces.

Such clothes should of course be the mode, but all extremes should be definitely avoided. Sumptuous fabrics, skirts with very long, irregular hemlines, deep decolletages, startling color contrasts—none of these should be found in the clothes chosen for the jeune fille.

OUR little dissertation today was prompted by the delightful picture presented by a young French girl, who judging by the eager, happy expression on her face, was just out of school and enjoying wholeheartedly the experience of lunching at the Ritz. We were ever so happy to be able to sketch her outfit for you, and feel that it will be of much interest to all readers of this page. The frock is of dark brown velvet, and the long tunic is belted at the natural waistline and fastens at the extreme side. A rounding collar of rose-point lace peeped out beneath the beige fox scarf. The skirt, of course, was narrow and straight as to hem and pleasingly short. The accessories, the gloves, purse and stockings were selected to match the beige fur. The close toque of shiny fur-felt, matching the dress in color had a jade clasp at the edge. Don't you agree that this is an outfit admirably adapted to the young girl just out of the schoolroom?

ELEGANT sophistication is at its best in the other costume shown here today, which forms an interesting and eloquent contrast to the schoolgirl frock. It was worn by Mrs. Erskine Gwynne at Ciro's last Friday night, and attracted much attention from the fashionable and distinguished gathering there. It is of beige with jade jewelry, a color combination admirably designed to complement Mrs. Gwynne's red gold hair and lovely coloring. The frock was of beige georgette with a long full skirt, dipping at the back.

RIOTS IN CHINA BRING U. S. SHIP

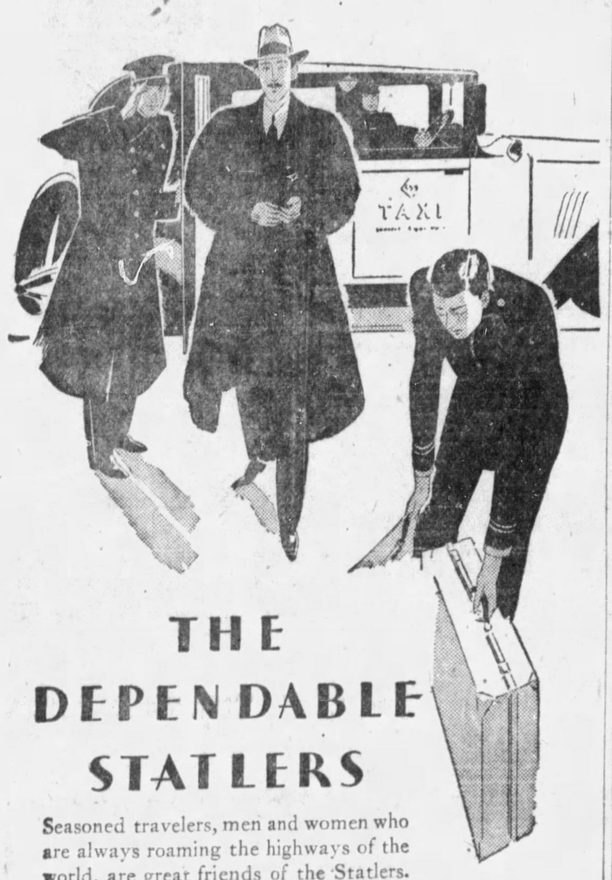
SHANGHAI, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The United States destroyer MacLeish was headed for Hoibow, port city of Hainan Island, today to protect 1,500 Americans who reported that Communists had launched a campaign of slaying and looting there.

The destroyer was dispatched from Swatow upon orders from Rear Admiral Charles McVay, commander of United States naval forces in Chinese waters. Canton authorities also sent five gunboats in an effort to regain control of the city.

The Americans wirelessed that the Communists, who for years have been using Hainan Island as a stronghold, had seized the city and that there was much disorder.

Torch Cutter Killed By Fall of Steel

Joseph Stewart was standing under a large steel girder in Luria Brothers scrap yards at the north end of the Manchester Bridge this morning, playing an acetylene torch on the steel. Without warning, a large piece of steel dropped from the girder, striking Stewart on the head, workers say. Rushed to the Presbyterian Hospital, Stewart was pronounced dead of a fractured skull. He was 26 and lived at 435 Justice avenue, Carnegie.



THE DEPENDABLE STATLERS

Seasoned travelers, men and women who are always roaming the highways of the world, are great friends of the Statlers.

Statler Hotels, they'll tell you, are dependable. You know what to expect of them; they're the trade-marked, full-measure, known quality of hotel merchandise. Their rates are posted in their rooms—rates which do not change with the flow of business. And what's more (travelers will tell you), Statler values are away out in front—"values" meaning the relation of what you get to what you pay.

The radio in your room, your own private bath, circulating ice water in every room, a morning paper under your door, good food in well-planned, well-run restaurants, and cheerful, helpful personal service from well-trained employees—those things are dependable in a Statler—where your satisfaction is guaranteed.

Toss-Toss-Toss All Night Long!

Sleepless Nights a Penalty of Acidity

When you go to bed at night tired and exhausted and still can't sleep and you toss fitfully on your bed all night long, trying first one position and then another, it's almost a sure sign that you are "acid." Acidity not only causes acid-indigestion with sourness, burning and gassy fullness, but it plays havoc with our nervous systems, making us jumpy, fidgety and so restless at night that we can't sleep soundly.

Magnesia Oxoids, developed in Germany by a famous, 100-year-old pharmaceutical house, correct acidity in the right way! Upon contact with the acid in the stomach, Magnesia Oxoids generate nascent, or active, Oxygen. The "live" oxygen stimulates the alkaline gastric mucus, checks putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal and stimulates the activities of the intestinal walls, which aids the natural movement of the bowels. All three effects are necessary to the true correction of acidity.

5-Day Acid Test

To ascertain just how "acid" you are, make this 5-day test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxoids at small cost from Dow Drug Co., or any other good druggist. Take two after each meal for a few days and see how much better you feel—how much more soundly you sleep and how much more energy you have. If 5 days' use doesn't tell you volumes return the balance of the Oxoids to the druggist and he will cheerfully refund your money.

BOGGS & BUHL

FRIDAY—Day After Tomorrow!

REMNANT DAY

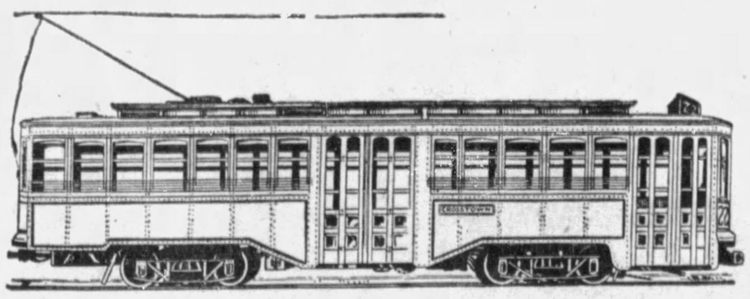
The Greatest Thing of Its Kind in America

The very mention of these words—"Remnant Day"—and the date—means the greatest out-turning of shoppers this community ever witnesses. "The Greatest Thing of Its Kind in America"—for good and definite reasons.

The first Remnant Day we know of was held at this store nearly half a century ago—a novelty in those old days—and the novelty and supremacy of this store's Remnant Day has never waned.

It's an occasion that needs no demonstration---thousands of folks come from miles around---hundreds wait for weeks ahead for this day---the store's most conspicuous event---when Goods and Prices from every department in the store tell a story of dollars saved by everybody who attends---a sale of unusual appeal.

From the opening of the doors to store closing, values are picked up at first sight---Red Ink (Remnant Day) B & B prices mean just one thing ---radically slashed. Friday---Remnant Day will speak for itself---no matter where you live, it will pay you to come---to arrive early---prepared to stay and make a day of it.



Special Increased Street Car Service FOR REMNANT DAY

The Boggs & Buhl store is already served by street cars every half minute from the heart of downtown and from points on this side of the river. To make it still more readily accessible, special extra trolley service will be maintained all day Remnant Day on the Crosstown and the Pennsylvania Station (No. 7) routes.

Your transfer from any city car is good on these routes or on any of the other five routes passing the B & B door.

Remember the following lines all come directly to the store—several others only a block away.

SPLENDID MOTOR PARKING FACILITIES

The Logical Store for Every Motorist

Automobile parking facilities that are practically unparalleled by any other metropolitan store of which we know. Large spacious streets surrounding the park on the Diamond Street side of the store—other streets available for parking within a block.

Even should the immense throngs of Remnant Day crowd these places, the door attendants at the Diamond Street entrance will aid you in obtaining space for your car in the immediate neighborhood.

It will pay to come a long distance to this sale—and to make a day of it while here.

ADDITIONAL CLUB NEWS

SEVERAL bits of news are current in the Crafton Woman's Club, chief among them being the announcement of the annual play to be given by the juniors. The girls have chosen "The Family Upstairs," a comedy by Harry Dels, for their production, which will be given Thursday and Friday evenings, February 20 and 21, in Crafton High School. The cast includes Helen Carothers Lehew, Lawrence A. Orrill, Eleanor Ward, William C. Lehew, Frances Trent Patterson, Finley A. Weisenberger, Grace Hershberger, Mary Florence Taylor and John F. McGhee. Miss Mary Kate Ford is coaching.

The seniors will hear Dora Bryan Moorhead, soprano, accompanied by Grace Blenko Martin, at Friday afternoon's meeting, the literary portion of the program consisting of three-minute talks by members on Mexico, its customs and people. The new program committee is comprised of Mrs. E. V. Carothers, Mrs. L. B. Perrin, Mrs. E. W. Steinmetz, Mrs. Sherman Massingham and Mrs. D. E. Culley.

The advisory board is preparing for a food sale to be held the afternoon of January 30, and the juniors are sponsoring a movie the evening of January 29.

TOMORROW afternoon the parent study group of the Parent-Teacher Association of Morningside School will meet in the school for the discussion of "Environment," the third topic in the series on "Home Backgrounds." Mrs. J. F. Virgin, president, will lead the discussion.

A benefit party will be given by the organization on Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. Howard Sowash, Chislett street. There will be bridge, "500," and other games. Mrs. Walter R. Toerge, Villanova road, is chairman of the ways and means committee, under auspices of which the party is to be held.

Mrs. Paul V. Kline, chairman of the program committee, announces for the annual benefit entertainment, February 20 and 21, two one-act plays, "Appearances" and "Great Moments."

MRS. E. M. BALSINGER, president of the Pittsburgh Conference Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will preside at the all-day semi-annual meeting to be held in the Crafton Church tomorrow. The morning session, opening at 10:30, will be devoted to business. The principal speaker in the afternoon will be the Rev. Dr. John Benjamin Magee, who will assist in a Pentecostal retreat in co-operation with the entire conference.

* * *

THE annual benefit bridge party of the Margaret Morrison Alumnae Association will be held Saturday afternoon, February 8, in the Schenley Hotel. The committee in charge of arrangements includes Miss Helen Eyster, chairman; Miss Margaret Nuttall, vice chairman; Miss Mary Hulsman, Mrs. Jane Caldwell Harrold, Miss Jean Mather, Miss Marguerite Spilman, Miss Frances Keiser and Miss Mary L. Stolzenbach. The proceeds go toward the scholarship fund of the association.

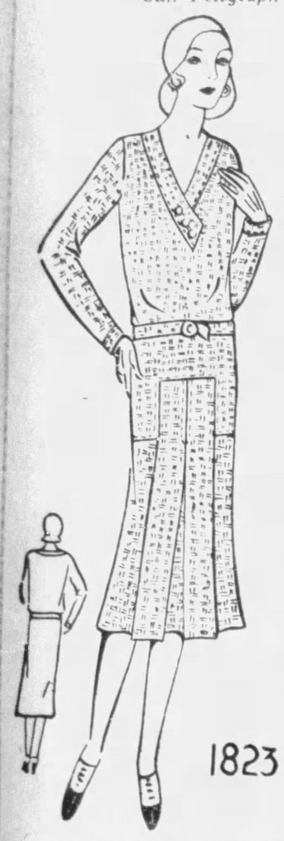
The Mode in Tweed

Pattern 1823

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS



Woolen fabrics in colorful mixtures continue to be fashion favorites. The model presented today is unusually simple, yet extremely smart. The bodice is trimmed with stitched banding at neck and cuffs. The two front skirt pleats, stitched part way, are cut in interesting manner where joined to the bodice.

Design 1823 uses light weight tweed, jersey or wool crepe for its development. Seasonal shades are brown, green, red and grey mixtures. The belt may be made of the fabric, or a leather belt may be used.

May be obtained only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3⅛ yards of 54-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model. The pattern has ample and exact instructions. Yardage is given for every size. A perfect fit is guaranteed.

Patterns will be delivered upon receipt of FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins, carefully wrapped, or stamps. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

The NEW WINTER FASHION BOOK is FIFTEEN CENTS, but only TEN CENTS when ordered with a pattern. Address all mail and orders to the Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West 17th Street, New York City.

DRINK WATER TO HELP WASH OUT KIDNEY POISON

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drinks lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

A GLORIFIED CLEAR SKIN

A CLEAR, smooth, lovely skin enhances personal attractiveness! Men admire it. Women praise and secretly envy. More happiness and friends may depend upon it.

Healthy skin is clear, smooth and lovely. It is Nature's outward reflection of internal healthfulness.

The way to the skin is through the blood. Rich, red, healthy blood nourishes the body and aids in protecting it against infection and disease.

Skin troubles and sallow complexion are usually but symptoms of a deeper, a more dangerous trouble—a lack of the normal count of red-cells in the blood.

When you take S.S.S. to get rid of these outside blemishes you are building up the system to ward off the graver diseases of which these blemishes are Nature's warning.

S.S.S.

If you are one of the embarrassed—and men are not exceptions—with skin blemishes that linger, and sometimes leave scars, you will want to possess body power to clear up your skin.

S. S. S. will help Nature give you this power. Internal healthfulness will then reflect in your skin a natural loveliness—a skin glorified.

Millions of people have taken advantage of the wonderful medicinal properties in S. S. S. It gives to Nature what it needs to build you up so that your system may throw off the cause.

When your system is filled with rich, red blood, the body's power of resistance to infection and disease is raised. Your appetite should improve. Firm flesh should take the place of that which was once flabby. You should sleep soundly. You should feel strong. Your nerves become steady.

Take S. S. S. daily at mealtime. It promotes healthy body building. Seek energy, vitality and a clear skin through the great blood tonic which is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and has stood the test for over 100 years. All good drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

More Miles From Tires.

Make your old tires help you pay for the new! It may be economy for you to buy new tires when the old ones show wear, but it's needless waste to throw the old ones away.

There are many purchasers, even thousands of miles of service still in them—and many auto owners who have the time and mechanical ability are selling just such as you have been throwing away.

So advertise your used tires in the Classified Ads—it's economy for you and economy for those who come to buy.

OLYMPIC GETS TIFFANY FILMS

Another large moving picture producing company will make its bow to Pittsburgh Saturday when Tiffany Productions, Inc., will take over the Olympic Theater and present first-run pictures, day and date with Broadway. The first film to be exhibited, under the new policy, will be "The Lost Zeppelin," a production of adventure and romnace. The picture, featuring Virginia Valli, Conway Tearle and Ricardo Cortez, is based upon Commander Byrd's Antarctic exploration expedition. It is an all talking production, as are all of the Tiffany films.

The supporting cast includes Duke Martin, Kathryn McGuire and Winter Hall.

Following "The Lost Zeppelin," Tiffany will exhibit "Party Girl," with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.; "Fascination" and "Peacock Alley," with Mae Murray; "Kathleen Mavoureen," with Sally O'Neill and Charles Delaney; "Journey's End," moving picture version of the stage play of the same name, and many other films. All will be shown in the Olympic, coincident with their release in New York.

KNEE DEEP IN WATER STAND PLAYERS MAKING FILM OF 'JOURNEY'S END'

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLWOOD, Jan. 15.

WHILE shooting trench scenes for "Journey's End," the sundry players were compelled to stand in knee deep water. And the water was plenty cold. One chap in the film, Tom Whitely, didn't seem to mind the experience so much. Investigation revealed that Whitely is among the few Titanic survivors. When that ship crashed an iceberg and sank, Whitely was in the water 7½ hours before he was rescued.

Ricardo Cortez

Ricardo Cortez is en route to New York aboard ye good chugger Chief. Purpose: A voodvil jaunt with headquarters in Manhattan.

A local, a prominent, and a respectable actor was arrested because he had a little liquor in his home. Shades of '76.

Bobbie Harriman, daughter of the famous Harriman who cartoons "Krazy Kat," has an exhibition of colored pen and ink drawings at the Braxton Galleries in Hollywood. And extraordinarily clever and amusing they are, too. She's only twenty.

Henry Victor, W. K. screen-ite, is en route to Hollywood from London. Henry returned to John Bull's country umpty ump months ago. Made a few pictures there. And is now traipsing back to sample the talkies.

To this bureau drifts the news that next month Alma Rubens will appear in a play here with Edward Everett Horton. Mr. Horton has closed his current play and is taking a six weeks' rest. He then plans to resume board stepping.

Von Sternbergs To Return Home

JOSEPH VON STERNBERG is nearing the completion of the outloud he is making in Berlin, starring Emil Jannings. The Von Sternbergs are expected home to ye gold coast some time in March. Joe brings with him 150 or more pieces of art. His duplex apartment is chuck full of sculped these-and-those, paintings, et cetera. With the added collection, 'pears as though he may have to take a large house.

Emil Jannings

SCREENALITIES: From England comes the news that "Rio Rita" is the current talky London hit. . . . Ken Maynard refused to go into a dressing-room where a camel-back trunk reposed. Maynard used to be with a circus. Seems all circus performers are superstitious about this type trunk.

Pauline Garon, Arthur Rankin and others in the "Bad Babies" kumpy trail to San Francisco next week to debut there. Pauline is playing the part of Jobyna Ralston created here. . . . Dick Arlen wants it known that he is proud to be mayor of Tuluca Lake. All right, Dick, hold the hardware. . . . Some time ago Gary Cooper had some pictures taken strumming a steel guitar. He took a liking to the dern thing and has strummed around until he can actually play it . . . and—that's all.

Helped at Change of Life
"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a wonderful medicine at the Change of Life. I would get blue spells and just walk the floor. I was nervous, could not sleep at night, and was not able to do my work. I know if it had not been for your medicine I would have been in bed most of this time and had a big doctor's bill. If women would only take your medicine they would be better."—Mrs. Anna Weaver, R. F. D. No. 2, Rose Hill, Iowa.

. . 240 New Grand Pianos . . . . . to be sold for $435 each

There is no thrill to match her glow of pride when first she sees her living-room touched with the glory of a Grand Piano . . .

12 leading retailers throughout the country, operating 100 music stores, are cooperating with the AEOLIAN COMPANY, international makers of fine pianos, in a great Selling Plan which will begin in Pittsburgh with the opening of our store tomorrow morning. Our quota of the instruments to be offered is just 240 —no more—no less. So 240 persons will have this opportunity and no one has ever been able to obtain a good, durable Grand Piano at a lower price; upon easier terms; upon fairer or squarer conditions; or upon a more economical plan.

These instruments were contracted for and this Sale planned and arranged many months ago. (This will be told of fully in another advertisement.) They are all of one quality, and will all sell at the same price —$435. A piano of this grade at this price is only possible through the vast resources and facilities of the Aeolian Company who are known the world over as manufacturers of pianos of high-grade only.

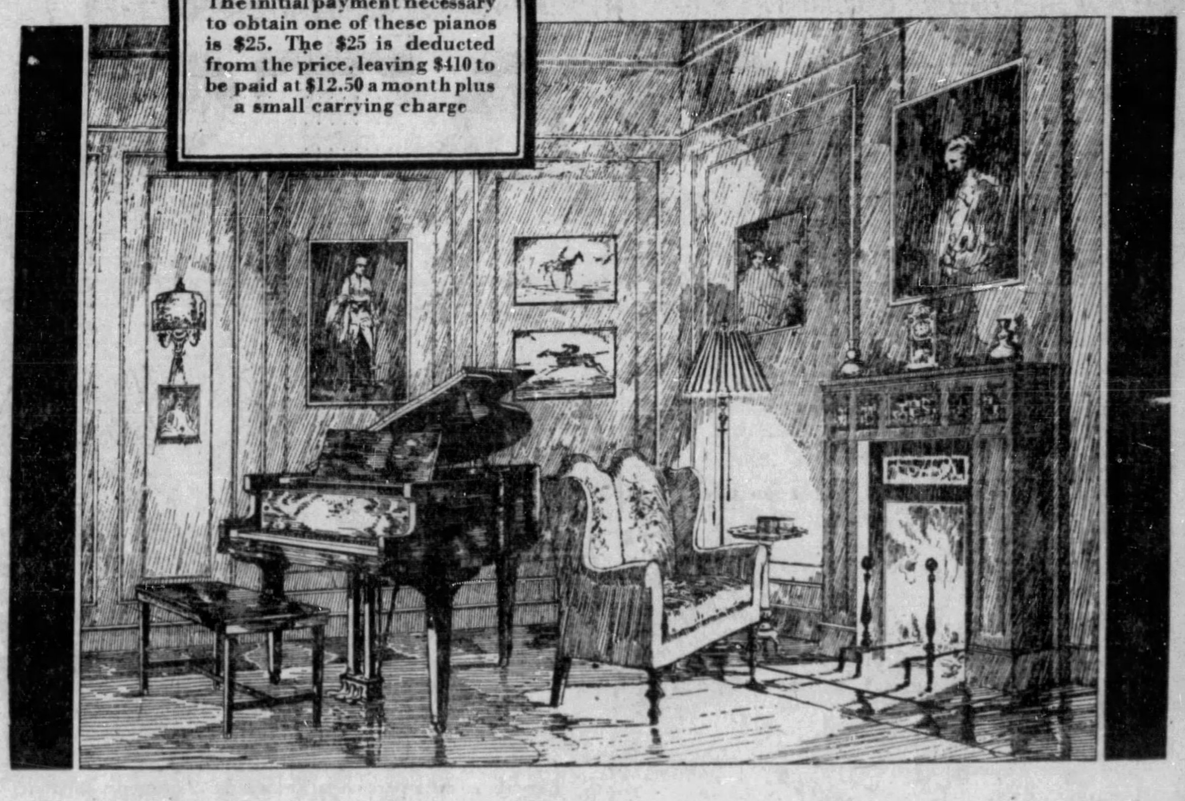
We have entered into this plan enthusiastically because we believe it makes a rare opportunity available to you.

In Wood, Ivory, Felt, Strings, Tone and Workmanship. These Pianos are worthy of a place in any Home

The pianos that go into this Sale would grace any home. The materials are excellent; the woods that go into the case; the ivory that goes into the keys; the felt that goes into the hammers; and the steel wire that goes into the strings, and so on. They possess a beautiful, resonant tone, smooth, well balanced action and for downright durability they are as good as any piano made. They are made by The Aeolian Company, the world's largest international producers of fine pianos, and the renowned manufacturers of the incomparable Duo-Art. They are made in one of the Aeolian Company's extensive factories in Boston, where only the most complete equipment, and the abundance of capital and resources to produce the best that is to be had, make it possible to "back up" our guarantee—the strongest ever placed upon a musical instrument.

12.50 Monthly

The initial payment necessary to obtain one of these pianos is $25. The $25 is deducted from the price, leaving $410 to be paid at $12.50 a month plus a small carrying charge



Some day someone may discover a gift that is dearer to the heart of a woman than a Grand Piano. But not yet.

The Cooperative Plan Through Which These Pianos Will Be Sold Is the Most Economical Selling Plan . . . for You

If it were possible for 240 persons to walk into this store tomorrow morning and each buy one of these pianos—spot cash—we could cut a great, big slice off the regular selling price.

But such a thing is impossible. The best that can be done is to come as nearly to this condition as possible. And that is just what is being done through this cooperative plan.

First of all, we are cooperating with the manufacturers themselves. We have paid cash for these 240 pianos. They stand on our floors at as small cost as 240 pianos of like grade can be produced. This plan will save big sums of money on such items of expense as rent, light, clerical help, insurance, salesmen's salaries, advertising, etc.

Selling so many pianos of one grade would regularly be spread over a period of several months, while, under this plan, the sale of these 240 instruments will be narrowed down to a few weeks at the longest.

And it is the purpose of this advertisement (and others to follow) to find 240 persons who want Grand Pianos in their homes.

Here Are the Advantages You Share As a Result of this Cooperative Idea

1 . . . . The Aeolian Company, the makers of this fine Grand piano, have heretofore never manufactured a Grand piano to retail at less than $645

2 . . . . Instead of paying $50 to $100 as a first payment, and $20, $30 or $50 a month as you will in the regular way, during this cooperative sale you pay but $25 to join in this cooperative movement and then but $12.50 a month, plus a small carrying charge.

3 . . . . You get the strongest guarantee ever put on a piano; a joint guarantee signed by the manufacturers—The Aeolian Company—and ourselves, giving you protection for five years that is as safe as a government bond.

4 . . . . So confident are we as to the value of these instruments that within one year from the day you get your piano through this cooperative plan, you may exchange it for any of the celebrated makes of instruments we handle without so much as a penny's loss.

5 . . . . All payments remaining unpaid are voluntarily cancelled in the event of your death—thus leaving the piano free of encumbrance to your family.

6 . . . . You are given opportunity to secure others to cooperate in this plan. This still further reduces the cost of your instrument.

HOW TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE COOPERATIVE PLAN

To take advantage of this unusual sale, all you have to do is to send or bring in $25, for which we will at once give you a receipt.

The cooperative plan then allows 34 months in which to pay the balance.

You can select your piano at once—tomorrow—next day—next week—or any other time convenient to you. It will be delivered immediately—next week—or next month. The time you select your piano and the date of delivery is wholly optional with you.

If not convenient for you to personally select your piano, we will make the selection for you under your instructions.

FATHER OF 7 'TAKEN FOR RIDE,' SLAIN

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

WHEN Lieut. Eddie O'Rourke, now chief of the motorcycle division, joined the police force a dozen years ago, he was assigned to a beat in Soho. Nobody doubts that Eddie was an excellent policeman, but he was handicapped more or less by his size.

He was patroling his beat one day when a tall, wide woman hurried by. She seemed excited. Ten minutes later she returned with the policeman from the next beat. Eddie hailed them. The woman complained that her husband had been beating her and she wanted him arrested.

"You saw me standing here!" Eddie exploded. "Why didn't you tell me about it?"

"Why, Officer, I thought you were a messenger boy," the woman explained.

Sir: As I entered the County Commissioners' office this morning, I put the customary query of the alert reporter, "Is there going to be a meeting today?"

One of the wiseacres frequenting the outer office replied: "Sure, Battling McGovern's in his office now, putting on his tights."

POISON PEN O'BRIEN.

WE WANT to reprint a poem to prove two points: that we are not ag'in' the younger generation, and that Miss Catherine Wyland, of 1413 Juniata street, despite her tender years, is coping with the traffic problem. Miss Catherine sent her poem to Mr. Burton W. Marsh, the city traffic engineer; Mr. Marsh hurried it to Mr. A. M. Lee, of the Better Traffic Committee, and Mr. Lee, to complete a triple play, rushed the lines to Sidewalks. Here is the rhyme:

If you cross on green,
You'll always be seen.
If you cross on red,
You'll soon be dead.

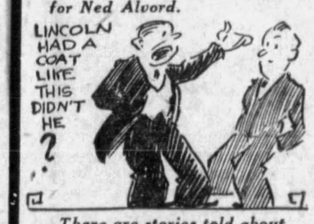
Ned Alvord, one of the country's best press agents, was in town last week with the gloomy message that the show business ain't what it used to be, because the movies are spoiling all the actors by giving them high salaries. Mr. Alvord has been wearing a swallowtail coat (not the same coat) for 30 years simply because Abraham Lincoln wore a swallowtail coat, and what was good enough for Abraham Lincoln is good enough for Ned Alvord.



There are stories told about Mr. Alvord who used to distribute window posters in this town 30 years ago. As manager of a revue some years ago, he wired his producers to send him another billposter. The producers wired back that the show was already top-heavy financially with an expensive cast and that they couldn't afford another billposter. This is what Mr. Alvord replied: "Fire a couple of actors and send me a billposter right away."

William Penn Hotel Manager to Leave

H. F. Moore, manager of the William Penn Hotel for the last 18 months, will leave for California within a few days, having tendered his resignation to officials of the hotel company yesterday. Mr. Moore and his wife will remain in California for the remainder of the winter, the hotel man said.

E. C. Eppley, president of the Eppley Hotels Company, operators of the William Penn, said that a new manager would be named within a week.

Will Rogers Says:

ABOARD S. S. BREMEN, Jan. 15

BEFORE the war, Germany led the world in knowing how to build passenger boats. She lost all of them. Now here she is back where she was. Its a great argument against war.

It just shows you can lick a nation, but when you let 'em up they can still beat you at the same things they could before, which takes away about the only reason left for having war.

THREAT PUTS CARREN IN PRISON

Paroled Embezzler at Westinghouse Gets Term On Charges of Official

His parole revoked, Milton Carren, 43, who stole $15,000 from the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, today was sentenced to serve from one and a half to three years in the penitentiary.

Testimony taken by Judge H. H. Rowand was to the effect that Carren on Sunday demanded $2,000 from James L. Doschell, 752 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, after threatening him.

A letter demanding a similar sum was received by Doschell on Monday.

Carren denied the charges.

Taken in custody yesterday by county detectives, Carren was arraigned before Judge Rowand today.

Doschell, executive superintendent of the Westinghouse plant, detailed Carren's visit to his home on Sunday. He said Carren announced that he was not hunting a job and had "joined the 'Red' Moran Chicago gang and am a bandit."

He demanded $2,000, Doschell testified.

CAR MIRED, 3 BOYS CAUGHT

Three Pittsburgh boys were under arrest today because an automobile which they were alleged to have stolen stuck fast in the mud in Rochester, Pa., yesterday.

Rochester police attracted by the youth of the motorists took them into custody.

The car, police said, was owned by Frank Funfore, of 218 Alpine avenue.

Detectives left for Rochester today to return them here, they announced.

Keystone Club Plans Smoker on Friday

A smoker for members of the Keystone Athletic Club will be held in the club gymnasium Friday night. Members of the committee in charge of the event are H. S. Garrett, William H. Patterson, Dr. Charles A. Hill, Frank Stulen, Leonard Gardner, and L. W. Depuy.

South Hills High To Present Play

"A Prince There Was," by George M. Cohan, will be presented by the senior class of the South Hills High School in the school auditorium at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow, under the direction of Miss Stella Price, instructor of expression at the school.

Elected

LORETTA GEARY

Miss Geary, 337 Twelfth avenue, elected secretary of the Homestead School Board to succeed the retiring Miss Sara Weis.

Seek Power House At Allegheny Dam

Permission to build a power house at United States Dam No. 8, on the Allegheny River at Armstrong, Pa., has been asked by the West Penn Power Company, of Pittsburgh. Application for a permit was made to the Federal Power Commission.

It is said that the power capacity of the plant will be 4,000 horse-power and the installed capacity is estimated at 31,000 horsepower. No details of the cost of the project were available.

Glassport Trade Body to Celebrate

Plans for an open meeting and entertainment to be held February 10 were formulated at the January meeting of the Glassport Business Men's Association held last night in the borough council chambers.

Reports of committees, particularly that which was in charge of the Christmas treat for children, and a discussion of the borough's financial difficulties, were heard

LOVEJOY

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Happiness and love have remained steadfastly with Tom and Lovejoy Nicholson during their first year of married life. The arrival of Tom, Jr., brought more joy to the little green bungalow. Then comes Mrs. Aline Alderson, rich but childless neighbor, to sow the first seeds of discontent.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VII.

THE more Lovejoy saw of Mrs. Alderson the more discontented and dissatisfied she became.

And she saw a good deal of her in the next few weeks.

Sometimes she would come dropping in during Lovejoy's busy morning, to say "Hello" to her on her way to a riding lesson.

At such times she would be beautifully and plainly dressed in a black habit and shiny boots, and she would talk carelessly of "English saddles" and "Kentucky five-gaited horses" and other things that were Greek to Lovejoy.

One morning in early December she came to the house, all wrapped up in silver fox furs and black cloth that brought out her golden blondness.

"Just look at this," she said to Lovejoy, and held out a big diamond ring in the palm of her gloved hand. "Yesterday was my birthday, and my husband gave this to me. I'm on my way downtown to change it for another, and I thought perhaps you could go with me."

"But why do you want to change it?" Lovejoy asked, her big eyes bigger than ever with her amazement. "That ring is the loveliest thing I ever saw in my life—"

"No, it isn't. It's old-fashioned," Mrs. Alderson broke in. "I wanted one of the new baguette diamonds instead of this thing. They aren't cutting diamonds like this any more. You ought to know that."

She dropped the jewel carelessly into her gold mesh bag.

"How about going downtown with me?" she asked again. "Can't you find some one who'd take care of the baby for a couple of hours? It would do you good to get away from that infant for a while. I'll be glad to let one of my housemaids come over here and look after it while we're gone, if it's all right with you."

But it wasn't all right with Lovejoy.

She wouldn't have even dreamed of leaving the baby in the house with a maid.

On the rare occasions when she went shopping, she always wrapped Thomas, junior, up in his little coat and bonnet and took him to Aunt Em for the afternoon. And even then she was worried about him every minute she was away from him.

"No, I can't leave the baby," she answered. "But it was nice of you to ask me to go along."

From behind the net curtains of her little living room she watched Mrs. Alderson get into her shining black closed car and drive away . . . She didn't envy her exactly, she told herself. But it must be wonderful to be free to go wherever she pleased at any time of day . . . with a car to ride in and plenty of money in her pocket.

For the first time it struck Lovejoy that the little house had become a kind of prison for her, these days.

She never got out of it any more unless it was in the morning when she took the baby in his little buggy to do the marketing for the day. Or on the day when they all went to Aunt Em's for dinner.

And yet it was a pleasant prison.

The days were peacefully pleasant for the most part.

It was fun to get up in the chill of the early morning to put on the breakfast coffee while Tom laid the wood-fire in the living room.

Fun to sweep and dust and go to market in the morning. Fun to bathe and dress the baby late in the afternoon so that he would be fresh as a rose for Tom's home-coming.

And it was pure pleasure to put the dinner on to cook, set the little table, and then rush into the bedroom to make herself pretty for him.

For they were still sweethearts.

Tom never had loved her in the early days of their marriage as he cared for her now.

He couldn't get home soon enough at the end of his day's work to see her and the baby.

And there was scarcely a night when he did not bring some small present with him—a rattle or a teething ring for the baby, who was still too young for such things; or a new egg-beater or an armful of magazines.

He and Lovejoy always did the dishes together after they had had their simple dinner.

The baby quieted down for his night's sleep—and then the nicest part of the long day began for the two young Nicholsons.

They would settle themselves in two deep comfortable chairs in the living room, with a wood fire singing to itself in the grate, and a cheerful yellow lamp glowing between them.

There were always books from the library two blocks away, and there was always a stack of new magazines to read.

Lovejoy often brought home a little bouquet of late winter chrysanthemums or a bundle of holly from the market, and Tom always had a big tin of cigarets on the mantel-shelf.

Sometimes at midnight when they were ready for bed he would go out into the tiny cozy kitchen and make sandwiches and hot lemonade for a "snack."

"This certainly is the life!" he said with great appreciation one stormy night, from the depths of his single-bed where he was reading. "You know, Lovejoy, I never felt really sure of you until we came here and had the baby—I was always half-sure that some day you'd get tired of me and walk out on me. I thought you'd on regret you hadn't married someone with a little more money than I have. . . ."

"Tom Nicholson, please stop talking like a perfect fool," Lovejoy answered, swinging around from the dresser where she stood, brushing her shining red hair.

She always took her bath late at night, when the house was

MADAME J. R. HERTER SHOWING FINE TAPESTRIES

Priceless Tapestries Are Shown at Schenley

By PENELOPE REDD

Madame J. R. Herter, of Paris, has brought to Pittsburgh a collection of tapestries dating from the fifteenth through the eighteenth centuries, and also modern reproductions of famous museum tapestries, together with examples of modern "transparent" tapestry, for exhibition in the Hotel Schenley during this week.

The older pieces most engage the imagination, recalling the legendary aspects of tapestry-making when great ladies and their attendants whiled away the time their lords were off to war, in tapestry weaving. There was Penelope in Greek legend, the Lady of Shalott in the Arthurian cycle, and Queen Mathilde, whose famous embroidered illustration of mediaeval life still exists as the "Bayeaux Tapestry."

Penelope Redd

Madame Herter's collection includes a late Gothic tapestry of the fifteenth century, showing a pheasant on a background which combines the capricious "mille fleur" or "thousand flower" design and the homely but decorative "cabbage leaf" pattern.

An early sixteenth century tapestry from the period of Louis XII, of France, shows a hunting scene with the cabbage leaf again prominent as the motif. One of the desirable Brussels tapestries of the seventeenth century is designed from a painting by David Teniers, showing a group of huntsmen pausing to imbibe good cheer at an inn.

Biblical subjects were also employed in the earlier tapestries. One depicts the story of the Pharisee, richly garbed, chiding Jesus for allowing His famished disciples, to pluck corn on the Sabbath. This tapestry demonstrates the transition from the more austere Gothic period to the richer Renaissance.

One of the most luxurious tapestries is from the government-controlled Beauais looms, and dates from the seventeenth century. It tells the tale of Arethusa, who, when pursued by the river god, Alpheus, called upon Artemis to protect her. The tapestry pictures Artemis or Diana throwing a cloud about Arethusa, just before she turns the frightened maiden into a fountain.

Madame Herter's transparent tapestries are adaptable to modern homes where a hanging which does not exclude the light is necessary. The transparent tapestry, probably first woven by the ancient Peruvians is also a modern Scandanavian peasant art.

The Herter tapestry looms at Pont Croix in Brittany have developed this type of tapestry into a supple, informal fabric, vivacious in color and vigorous in design appropriate for modern decoration.

Madame Herter's collection was shown at the Seattle Art Institute and in the Rochester Memorial Art Gallery prior to its exhibition in Pittsburgh.

'Y' Worker Here Goes to Indiana

Joseph A. Mears, for the past two and one-half years religious work and dormitory secretary at the Allegheny Branch Y. M. C. A., has accepted a call to the First United Presbyterian Church of Indianapolis, Ind. He will take up his new duties Sunday, January 19.

J. A. Mears

Mr. Mears was a member of the original Allegheny Hi-Y Club. He graduated from Muskingum College in 1919 and served in the American Army during the World War. He later graduated from the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary and did graduate work at Princeton Theological Seminary and held two pastorates, one in Omaha, Neb., and one in Canton, O., before entering Y. M. C. A. work. Prior to his work at the Allegheny Branch he was associate religious work secretary at the downtown branch for one year.

BODY FOUND FLUNG IN STREET

McKees Rocks Worker on Hunt for Day Job When Close Range Shot Kill

Fred Melynczuk, 40, of 117 Ella street, McKees Rocks, who had worked night turn at the Pressed Steel Car Company for years, wanted to spend his evenings at home with his wife and seven children.

Unable to secure a transfer to the day turn, he quit his job, his wife said. That was last week.

Every day since he has looked for a "day turn job." This morning he resolved to get an early start—he had many places to try—and he left home at 5 o'clock.

At 8 o'clock his body was found between Roznowsky's butcher shop and Sample's garage, Robb street, McKees Rocks, lying face downward, arms and legs grotesquely spread. A bullet through his heart had killed him.

Officers thought at first he had killed himself because the bullet had been fired at close range, but Police Chief Edward Rider was unable to find a gun, or anyone who had heard a gun fired.

The only theory police have formed is that Melnyczuk had been "taken for a ride" by someone who returned to McKees Rocks after shooting him and tossed his body into the street.

Cherry Bottles, Negro, of McKees Rocks, residing in the vicinity of the spot where the body was lying, made the discovery when she went to a store.

The case was reported as a probable murder.

'NUMBERS' MEN EVADE ARREST

Writers of clearing house numbers were still busy this morning collecting the pennies, nickels, dimes and larger coins of thousands of Pittsburghers, although a general order for a drive against the lottery was received at all police stations late yesterday. No arrests were reported during the night or early today.

The order was sent out by Director James M. Clark, of the Public Safety Department, Monday and it reached the office of Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh yesterday. It was sent to the various stations and to the detective bureau late in the day.

It is understood that all officers were directed to arrest writers and operators who conducted business on their beats. The rush hours of the operators and agents is from 7 until 9:30 o'clock in the morning.

Eddie Cantor Rises to Say:

DETROIT, Jan. 15.

MR. HOOVER might be right. Why not give prohibition a fair trial? Many years ago, this writer appeared in an "Amateur Night," and half way through the first joke the gallery started yelling "Get the hook—he's rotten—throw him out."

Then someone, with a louder voice, said, "Give the kid a chance."

They did, and I made good. Ask Ziegfeld.

The President's plan will help solve the unemployment situation. We will need additional judges, federal attorneys, marshals, clerks, chemists, L. L. T. (Large Liquor Tasters), "stool pigeons," undertakers, etc.

Remember, prohibition is 10 years old. "Give the kid a chance." It will cost about four or five millions of dollars to carry out the President's plans.

P. S.—In Chicago, they are going to close down the schools for lack of funds.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Should jaywalkers be arrested?

CHARLIE HAGUE, East End, artist: "No. If they were arrested and compelled to pay fines the entire population of this dear old town would soon go broke, for every one of us does a little jaywalking once in a while. It takes a mountain of imagination to picture coppers rushing madly back and forth handing tags to cross on the red light."

Charlie Hague

ANNA SINGER, downtown, clerk: "The jaywalker should be cautioned instead of arrested. A good tongue warming from a police officer would make the jaywalker feel silly and curb his future action in that field. If police arrested these law breakers there would be a howl about freedom and so forth."

Miss Singer

FRANK KORTNER, Mt. Oliver, artist: "This city of our is one mass of jumbled traffic and seems to have an unwritten law favoring the strongest bumpers and fastest drivers. To combat this the pedestrians have developed quick action legs and keen sight. An incessent war between the bumpers and quick legs is being waged. Wouldn't it be a shame to stop it by giving tags to the quick of foot? I think it would."

Frank Kortner

DOROTHY WOLOVITZ, South Hills, stenographer: "It wouldn't be right to arrest one jaywalker and not the other. If a person is silly enough to step in front of an automobile let him do it. If he is killed he has himself to blame. It is my opinion that the problem takes care of itself. Anyhow, our city has enough to do handling really serious crimes."

Miss Wolovitz

ELLIS SHIPMAN, East End, agent: "The attempt to arrest jaywalkers would be foolish. How would it be possible? They have no numbers pinned to their clothes and would give their name as John or Mary Smith. John and Mary would be given a tag telling them to see the local police magistrate, but neither John or Mary would report or send in their money to cover the fine."

Ellis Shipman

EVELYN BURSTON, East End, secretary: "Pedestrians should not be arrested just because they happen to violate some idiotic traffic ordinance. If those who walk were compelled to wait until a traffic policeman allowed them to cross a corner it would be just to bad. Police give the motorists every possible break and the motorists seem bent on breaking something that belongs to the pedestrians."

These are the first pictures of the royal splendor to be received in the United States.

GREAT THRONGS THAT GATHERED IN ROME TO CHEER THE PRINCESS AND CROWN PRINCE HUMBERT OF ITALY As cheers thundered, secret police moved through this monster throng in Rome guarding against another attempt on the life of Prince Humbert such as was made on his recent visit to Belgium while he was riding in a carriage with the Princess.

SCOUT LEADERS HOLD ASSEMBLY

More than 500 men will attend the annual assembly of the sponsors and leaders in the work of Allegheny Council, Boy Scouts of America, in Kaufmann's tomorrow. A feature of the meeting will be the awarding of the Scoutmaster's Key to three graduates of the local training school for Scout leadership.

They are Howard E. Love, R. Gordon Schell and Tom Campbell. Each has completed a five-year course of intensive study which qualifies him for Scout work in any section of the country.

Following the dinner, the Rev. Dr. Carl Wallace Petty, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will speak on "Scouting." Visiting speaker will be Dr. George J. Fisher, of New York, deputy chief Scout executive of the National Council, and widely known in scouting circles throughout the United States. His subject will be "The Volunteer in Scouting."

Medals will be awarded to the Pittsburgh contingent of Scouts and Scoutleaders who participated in the International Jamboree held at Birkenhead, England, in July and August. The contingent consisted of E. N. Gilling, Robert Fairley, Clark Johnston, Morris Rosenbloom, William J. Knotts, Baldwin Curtis and H. Lee Moore, Jr.

Harmar D. Denny, Jr., president of the Allegheny County Council, will preside at the meeting.

Truck Line Permit Meets Opposition

James E. Doverspike, Vandergrift, who wants to operate a freight trucking service between Pittsburgh and that town, met opposition when he appeared before the Public Service Commission for a certificate. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company, Joseph A. Grimm and others were protestants on the ground that there was no need of additional service, because the railroad company already provides all the accommodation necessary.

Aid of Amateurs Asked to Trace Meteor Here

In an attempt to trace the path of the meteor or "fireball," which attracted much attention on the morning of January 3, Heber D. Curtis, director of Allegheny Observatory, has appealed to amateur astronomers for their observations. The meteor, Curtis says, was unusual in that it was not only bright, but proceeded over a path parallel to the earth's surface for many hundred miles. He asks for information from observers as to the apparent height, length of path, brightness and especially the direction of the fireball. The observatory will forward the descriptions to Ann Arbor, where an attempt will be made to compute its orbit.

CARVES WOOD IN SPARE TIME

John B. Lauer is a police signal service operator with a propensity for wood carving and cabinet making. Though still quite young, theaters, entertainment and social amenities secure but little of his leisure.

Perhaps Lauer does enjoy recreations that detract from the exactness of working hours, but his woodwork has a stronger appeal and consequently occupies most of his time at home.

Blonde little Dorothy, his 4-year-old daughter, and Bill, his son, just as blonde as Dorothy, but aged only 18 months, present the demands that keep Lauer at his workbench.

Book stands, cigaret cabinets, foot stools, toy furniture, chairs, picture frames and numerous other articles have taken shape at the work bench where Lauer labors joyfully with jig saw, knife, fine wood chisels, paint brush and glue.

2 Women, 32 Men In Tech Air School

Two women and 32 men have registered for the ground school courses for aircraft pilots which began last week at Carnegie Institute of Technology. The women are Miss Christine L. McKelvy, and Miss Helen Bartlatt. The courses are designed to give the required ground school instruction to candidates for pilots' licenses. The classes, which are being given in the evening, are divided into three groups.

TAXES REFUND PROVIDED

Money for the refund of twice-paid taxes was set up by the County Commissioners at the suggestion of County Treasurer John Francies at the budget hearing yesterday.

Heretofore the retiring treasurer has retained the twice-paid and over-paid taxes and paid them on demand, even 10 years after leaving office.

An act of the Legislature passed at the last session provided for the setting up of a special fund to take care of the refund of taxes.

Francies turned over checks totalling $8,207.50, the total amount of these taxes held by the treasurer for 1927, 1928 and 1929. County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong had Assistant Chief Clerk James E. Routley produce the bank book of Armstrong's account from the time he retired from the treasurer's office in 1924.

Armstrong's account shows a balance of $366.89 from which $14.83 was paid out in August as a refund for taxes overpaid in 1921, Routley said.

Under the new act the refunds will be made in the future on warrants issued on the incumbent treasurer by the county controller.

N. Borough Churches Arrange Rally Day

Churches of Bellevue and Avalon will join in a rally service in the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church, Sunday evening, in celebration of the tenth anniversary of prohibition. The Rev. Dr. Clarence True Wilson, of Washington, head of the temperance board of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will speak. Combined choirs of the different churches will sing.

Brotherhood Class Will Hear Claudy

The Rev. Dr. J. W. Claudy, secretary of the Pittsburgh Council of Churches of Christ will address the monthly dinner meeting of the Men's Brotherhood, Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church, in the church social rooms at 6:30 p.m., tomorrow.

EX-PATROLMAN FOUND GUILTY

Former Patrolman James J. McDermott, 35, of 354 Thirty-ninth street, is to be sentenced later on a serious charge, of which he was found guilty in Criminal Court before Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff, of Armstrong County. Regina O'Neil, a 15-year-old girl, of Clyde street extension, was the prosecuting witness, testifying that McDermott, wearing his policeman's uniform, had mistreated her last August 24. McDermott was attached to the Oakland Police Station at the time, but was suspended when the charge was brought against him by the girl.

LIGHTED AIRWAY FUND PROMISED

Congressman Harry A. Estep late yesterday notified the Chamber of Commerce that 50 per cent of the money for lighting the New York-Pittsburgh-St. Louis air mail line will be carried in the Department of Commerce appropriation bill when it comes up for passage in Congress.

When the bill was in the formulative stage, the chamber wired Congressmen Estep, Stephen G. Porter, Clyde Kelly, Patrick J. Sullivan and Guy Campbell, urging that Pittsburgh's need be satisfied.

31,500 Killed by Autos During Year 1929

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(INS.)—Automobile accidents claimed 31,500 lives in the United States during 1929, figures compiled by the National Safety Council revealed today.

Drawn from a survey of 31 states, the 1929 death list shows an increase of 13 per cent over 1928. California showed the greatest increase, 20 per cent, according to the figures.

More than half of the persons killed were pedestrians, the records show.

DELAY HEARING IN RICH SEIZURE

Counsel yesterday agreed on an indefinite postponement of a hearing on D. B. Heiner's petition for authority to open a safety deposit box of Sam B. Rich, former kleagle of the Ku Klux Klan of Pennsylvania, alleged by Heiner, collector of internal revenue, to owe $98,821.59 for income taxes for 1923, 1924 and 1925.

The accused has left the jurisdiction of the United States district court here, Heiner said, and the government's only hope lies in opening the box, which, he told the court, is in the Diamond National Bank.

AUTO SHOW CONTEST

$300 PRIZES

Best slogans and finding of errors to be rewarded with cash in gold.

(The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph co-operating with the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association, is donating these prizes for the best answers and slogans).

HERE is the Sun-Telegraph Automobile Puzzle Contest, based on passenger cars to be exhibited in the forthcoming annual Automobile Show to be held at Motor Square Garden, January 18 to 25, inclusive.

Three separate puzzle pictures, in each of which will be concealed the name of an automobile and in each of which the artist has made at least 10 errors will be published for 10 days in the daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Readers of the Sun-Telegraph are invited to find the names of the automobiles and five of the artists' 10 errors in each puzzle and send them to the Auto Show Contest Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, 612 Grant street, together with a good slogan, descriptive of the Automobile Show. YOU MUST SEND ALL YOUR ANSWERS AT THE SAME TIME IN ONE ENVELOPE AT THE COMPLETION OF THE CONTEST. ACCURACY, NEATNESS AND CLEVERNESS OF SLOGAN WILL BE CONSIDERED IN AWARDING THE PRIZES.

Prizes totaling $300 in gold and 200 show tickets are to be awarded the winners in the contest. Be sure to put your name and address with the slogan at the top of the first page. Your name should appear on each page you send in.

The final pictures will be published January 16. All answers must be in the hands of the Auto Show Contest Editor no later than midnight Friday, January 17. The winners will be announced at the Automobile Show, Monday evening, January 20 and in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph on January 21.

Your slogan must accompany the answers. It may be either rhyme or prose and should be applicable to the Automobile Show. It must be short, snappy and clever. Remember it is an important factor in deciding the winners.

Any person is eligible to enter this contest, except employes of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph or members of their families.

CONTESTANTS ARE NOT TO SEND IN THEIR ANSWERS UNTIL THE COMPLETION OF THE CONTEST, AND THEN ALL PUZZLES MUST BE MAILED IN THE SAME ENVELOPE AT THE SAME TIME. ANSWERS SHOULD BE SUBMITTED IN THE FOLLOWING MANNER: ELEVEN SHEETS OF PAPER WILL BE NECESSARY. ON THE FIRST SHEET MUST APPEAR THE CONTESTANTS NAME, ADDRESS AND THE SLOGAN. ON THE REMAINING SHEETS WILL APPEAR THE CONTESTANT'S NAME AND THREE SEPARATE PARAGRAPHS, EACH ONE DEVOTED TO ONE OF THE PUZZLES WHICH APPEARED ON EACH DAY. THE NAME OF THE CAR, FOUND IN THE PICTURE MUST BE LISTED AND UNDER IT THE FIVE MISTAKES MADE IN THE DRAWING. MAIL IT SO THAT THE AUTO SHOW CONTEST EDITOR WILL RECEIVE IT NO LATER THAN MIDNIGHT, JANUARY 17, AT 612 GRANT STREET.

LIST OF PRIZES

For the best list of correct auto names, discovered mistakes, and the cleverest slogan, the following prizes will be awarded:

First prize—$100 in gold.

Second prize—$50 in gold.

Third prize—$25 in gold.

Five prizes of $10 each, $50 in gold.

Fifteen prizes of $5 each, $75 in gold.

And 100 prizes of two tickets each, good any afternoon at the Auto Show.

In case of ties, equal prizes will be awarded tying contestants.

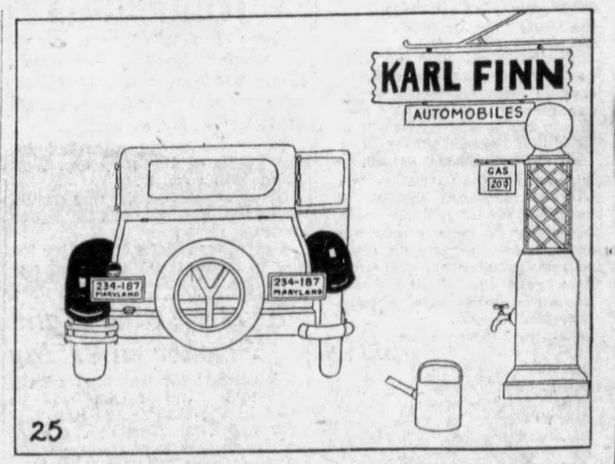
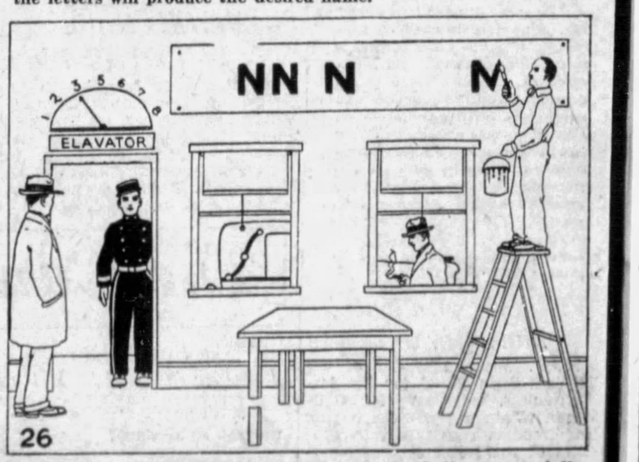
Auburn	La Salle
Blackhawk	Lincoln
Buick	Marmon
Cadillac	Marquette
Chevrolet	Nash
Chrysler	Oakland
Cord	Oldsmobile
Cunningham	Packard
De Soto	Peerless
Dodge	Pierce-Arrow
Duesenberg	Plymouth
Durant	Pontiac
Elcar	Reo
Erskine	Rolls-Royce
Essex	Roosevelt
Ford	Studebaker
Franklin	Stutz
Gardner	Viking
Graham	Whippet
Hudson	Willys-Knight
Hupmobile	Willys
Jordan



Find 10 mistakes in this picture. Only five of these mistakes need be listed. The name of a make of automobile is found in the name of the proprietor of the service station. A rearrangement of the letters will produce the desired name.



There are 10 mistakes in this picture. Look it over carefully for some of the mistakes are unusual ones. You need list only five to have a correct list. The painter is printing the name of a make of automobile. So far he has made nothing but the letter N—and the last N is crooked—perhaps there is a reason. Try to fill in the spaces before the last letter with letters that will form name of car.

There are 10 mistakes in this picture that were planned and placed there by the artist. Can you find five of them? The sign over the window is not a mistake. It is designed for a special purpose. It must be filled with letters to spell the name of a make of automobile. This is not easy; but there is a clue to help you. Each block requires a letter of the alphabet. When two blocks are joined, the same letter goes in each of the two blocks. Properly filled, the blocks will make two horizontal words that spell the name of a make of automobile.

WILBUR CITES NEEDS IN CITY

Calling the rattlesnake a toy compared with the automobile in its menace to American children of today, Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, addressed the Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania and its guests at Carnegie Music Hall, Oakland, last night.

Dr. Wilbur's subject was "The Child in Civilization."

"The child of yesterday was busy in the wholesome environment of the small communities throughout the country," he said. "Today, however, with increased industrialization, better medical care, and better educational methods, the child lives in crowded districts and plays on the sunless streets. What do we know of the mental and moral development of this new child, the child of the great city?"

CROWDING CHILDREN

With the longer school hours and the substitution of the teacher for the mother over much of the day, he said, we are crowding in upon the child's moral and mental development with no knowledge of what the final result will be.

"The inspiration of President Hoover," Wilbur said, "a man who has probably saved more children from disaster and retarded growth than any man who has ever lived, is responsible for the appointment of a commission of experts to investigate child development. This White House conference, divided into committees to investigate every phase, will no doubt deliver a report shedding much light on the problem. Let us watch the findings with care."

DR. FRAZIER SPEAKS

The meeting was opened by Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., who introduced Dr. Charles H. Frazier, of Philadelphia, president of the association. Dr. Frazier, in turn, told of the history of the organization from its birth in 1913 as an organization to help improve the efficiency of Pennsylvania charitable laws and institutions.

DESERTER HELD IN AUTO THEFT

Armed with a revolver and flashlight and caught stealing an automobile, police say, Jonas L. Jacobson, 26, of Ironwood, Mich., was lodged today in the Edgewood police station. Jacobson is said to have confessed to Police Chief John Dyer that he was a deserter from the United States Army.

Chief Dyer and Lieut. Frank Link arrested Jacobson last night at the Edgewood station of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company as he was about to drive away in a car that had been parked by its owner.

When searched at the Edgewood police station the weapons and a United States Army furlough dated October 1 to 31, 1929, were found in Jacobson's possession. When Chief Dyer asked his prisoner to show discharge papers, the man admitted, the police head said, to having deserted from the Fifteenth Observation Squadron, stationed at Salisbury, Mich.

REVUE GIRL RUN DOWN BY TRUCK

Elvira Giersdorf, one of the three Giersdorf sisters, appearing in a song act in the "Match Box Revue" at the Stanley Theater, is in Mercy Hospital today as a result of being struck by a truck at Sixth avenue and Wood street, last night.

She suffered lacerations on the forehead and leg when a truck driven by Joseph McCabe, of 13 Clearview street, Crafton, struck her, according to hospital authorities.

Miss Giersdorf's home is at 2 Ambrose Court, Baldwin, L. I.

BERKEY TRIAL WRITS ISSUED

A writ of habeas corpus was issued in United States District Court today by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker ordering the authorities at the Somerset County Home to produce James Turnbull, an inmate, in Federal Court on February 3. The action was taken at the request of United States District Attorney Louis E. Graham, who says Turnbull is a necessary and material witness in the case against Judge John A. Berkey and 15 others accused of conspiracy in violation of the prohibition laws.

At the same time, Judge Schoonmaker issued an order directing Ira Friedlin, clerk of courts in Somerset County, to produce three court dockets which Graham said he needed as evidence against Berkey and the other alleged conspirators.

SEEK MUNHALL BLAST FACTS

Attaches of the coroner's office and county detectives today were rounding up additional witnesses whose testimony is needed by Coroner W. J. McGregor in the inquest he is conducting into the Munhall Postoffice explosion which killed six persons and injured a score of others last December 5.

The inquest was opened yesterday and after a half dozen witnesses had been heard, a postponement was announced until additional witnesses could be subpenaed. McGregor wishes to question plumbing contractors and other workmen who can tell of the condition of gas lines from which escaping gas is believed to have accumulated, causing the blast.

It is expected that half a hundred witnesses will testify before the inquest is ended. Among others to be subpenaed will be representatives of the gas company, investigators of the United States Bureau of Mines, postoffice employes and relatives of the victim.

Politics in Police Shakeup Denied

Denial that the shakeup in the Wilkinsburg police department ordered by the council of that borough Monday night, was of a political nature, was made by Burgess William M. Turner, who declared the move was to secure greater efficiency. The order, made by council on motion of Councilman A. R. Rowland, included 14 members of the department, the entire force, with the exception of Chief Wallace R. Bishop, who was reappointed. All other members of the department were ordered to submit their resignations before January 27.

Says Bed Dirty, Meals Unfit, Asks Divorce

His home was dirty and his bed too filthy for a hog to sleep in, Frederick Hanlon, Washington avenue, Bellevue, testified in Common Pleas Court in an effort to obtain a divorce from Mildred Hanlon.

Hanlon told the court that his meals were never ready, that his wife could not cook and he had to eat in restaurants.

Judge A. B. Reid who heard the testimony, admonished the witnesses, saying they were too embittered in their testimony. He warned that a divorce cannot be granted on prejudiced testimony.

DOUBT SLAYER 'BURIAL'

Sergt. Samuel Wheeler, of the homicide squad, does not place much credence in a report circulated today that a Negro suspected as one of the trio that murdered Patrolman James Hughes, died and was buried with an official report being made that he had three bullet wounds in his body.

Wheeler said, however, that he will investigate the report. He has been unable to determine the origin of the rumor. Physicians at the Passavant Hospital, in which the man died, said he had been suffering with pneumonia.

None of the physicians saw any bullet wounds, Wheeler said. The undertaker pointed out that if there had been bullet wounds, embalming fluid would not have remained in the body, according to Wheeler.

LAND DAMAGED, WINS $6,700

His dissatisfaction with an award of $1,362 granted for damage by regrading at his property on Hodgkiss street, caused litigation that resulted in a $6,700 verdict today for E. P. George, of Hodgkiss street, against the City of Pittsburgh.

After the viewers recommended a $1,362 award for damages caused by regrading, George filed an appeal, contending his property was damaged in excess of $5,000.

Benjamin Steinberg, recently appointed in charge of such suits against the city, defended the case, which was his first since assuming office. The suit was heard by Judge James B. Drew in Common Pleas Court.

Travelers Oppose Daylight Time

A resolution condemning the continuance of daylight saving time and recommending a return to a uniform time schedule has been passed by the Fort Pitt council, United Commercial Travelers of America at their January meeting. The members of the council found that a dual time schedule was interfering with their business and resulting in loss of time, money and duplicating of trips.

Scouts Arrange Patrol Contests

An inter-patrol contest continuing for ten weeks will begin next Friday evening when scouts of Troop No. 97, David B. Oliver High School meet for a drill. The winning patrol will receive patrol equipment and the ranking scout will also be given an award. The scouts of Oliver High School also have planned to entertain parents and friends Friday, January 31.

DAILY TRUE STORY

NO TRESPASSING!

"WHAT Dave needs is rest," said his father. "He's been down in Brazil three years—reorganizing our rubber interests."

"What he needs is to get out of this rotten climate," Doc Janifer informed him. "It's too much of a change from the damp tropics to zero weather—he ought to be down in Florida for the Winter."

"I can fix that," Peter Bristow said, eagerly. Bristow was Dave's father.

"A man with your finances can fix about anything—except pneumonia, and you can avoid that," the doctor agreed.

"I mean, Dave owns an island off the coast of Georgia, down near the Florida line. He can go down there and fish and loaf until spring."

So that was arranged.

Dave Bristow was quite willing to go. He got out the deed and read it. He had never seen the island. It had belonged to his maternal grandfather, who had left it to his mother so that he had fallen heir to it. He jotted down the longitude and latitude.

Then he hunted up Kirby Jones, his best pal.

Sure Kirby would go. Kirby could stay until the middle of March, when he had to go back and get ready for a little ceremony in which he was to play the all-important but inconspicuous part of the groom.

They went down by rail to Darien and Dave bought a sturdy launch. His tents and other camping necessities had gone down ahead of him. Mose Jackson, a colored boy of reliability, was engaged, and the trio set out, down through Altamaha Sound, headed for Dave's island.

Dave studied the directions as to longitude and latitude and presently they came to the island, a mighty attractive piece of property, about a mile long and half of that in width.

"I never did know who owned that islan' befo'," Mose said, "but I run in thar offen when a sto'm come up," and so Mose piloted them down to the southwest and into as handsome a sheltered cove as any campers could wish.

"Two Robinson Crusoes and one man Friday," Dave said as they were making camp.

But Dave Bristow was wrong. A week before this, Miss Alicia Morgan, her mother, her maid and the butler had landed on the north end of the island. They came in their yacht and remained aboard until the crew had put up the portable houses—one for Alicia and her mother and the maid, another for kitchen, dining room and quarters for Buckley, the butler. Then the yacht had sailed away.

It seems that Dave Bristow was not the only person in need of complete rest and a warm but not hot climate. Alicia had been far too prominent and energetic in her exclusive but lively young social circle. Turning night into day for so long had left her considerably frazzled as to nerves.

Nor was Dave Bristow the only one to own an island down that way. Alicia Morgan owned an island. She had bought it from a real estate man because she approved of the pictures.

Mose was getting along all right now that the tents were up. He had the portable stove sheltered and was cutting wood for an open fire, as well.

Dave and Kirby put out in the punt and boarded the launch.

A few hours of fishing that was sport and another hour of fishing for food fish and they were back to await a fish dinner.

There was quite a high bluff running up from this cove. But it wasn't so high that it entirely hid the smoke from the campfire.

Alicia, taking the daily walk her doctor ordered, saw the smoke and decided to investigate.

Very carefully she approached and peered down the bluff.

There was the moored launch, the beached punt, the potatoes baked in the coals, as only Mose knew how.

All her life Alicia had been brought up in an atmosphere of privacy—strangers could never presume to trespass either on her property or her company.

But she knew that she would cut a poor figure scrambling down the bluff to the beach and might even have to be assisted up, so she watched for a few moments and heard a voice say, "Why leave a paradise like this, old man, just for such a trivial thing as getting married?"

And the other voice replied: "I've got to be back by the fifteenth. Don't tempt me to stay."

The fifteenth was two weeks away. Alicia Morgan scowled as she heard this. Not only were both of them to stay until the fifteenth but the other planned to stay indefinitely!

"Not on my private island," she muttered.

She went back to the pretty portable house and wrote a note:

"Gentlemen: I regret to ask you to leave, but this is a private island and no trespassing is permitted.

"A. Morgan."

"Just leave that and come back, explain nothing, Buckley," Alicia said to the Butler.

But it was then too dark. She told him to take it down in the morning. When he got there Dave and Kirby were out fishing. Mose took the note and asked, "Whar yo' all frum, Mister?"

"Never mind, my good fellow, just deliver the note to your master" the butler said and got away with as much dignity as possible.

When Dave got back and read the note it gave him a laugh. He wrote a reply, which was:

"Friend Al, or Alfonse or Archibald or whatever the 'A' stands for—sorry to disappoint you, but you'll have to take that run-out powder yourself as this is my island and no trespassing is permitted.

"D. Bristow."

He sent Mose over with it. Mose came back and reported that there were two "po'tuble" houses there and that a young lady took the note.

Before dark the considerably disturbed butler appeared with a reply. He said, "I can answer no questions, sir." The note he delivered was:

"Mr. Bristow:—You have added impertinence to trespassing. Leave my private island at once or I shall resort to the law.

"Miss Alicia Morgan."

"Hot doggie," said Dave. "I wonder if she's the little society queen? I don't care if she is—she can't Ritz me. I'll investigate."

"Want any help?" asked Kirby.

"It's my funeral. I'll settle her," Dave said and he trailed the butler back, discreetly in the rear. He got up close and got a look at Alicia.

He took a second good look. Alicia was standing by a big lawn chair listening to the butler's report, and she was so amazingly pretty that he continued to stare. He forgot that he had stepped out into the clearing and was visible.

Alicia saw him and stared, then she beckoned haughtily.

Dave advanced.

"Is it perfectly clear to you, sir, that you must leave my island?" she asked.

"Why—er—Mr. Bristow didn't say, Miss Morgan—I'm only his guest, you know."

Miss Morgan unbent considerably.

"In that case you are not responsible. Kindly explain that he must go elsewhere, Mr.—er——"

"But, Miss Morgan, Mr. Bristow feels that this is his island. In fact, he navigated here from Darien by compass, taking the directions from his deed to the property."

"He has made a stupid blunder—tell him that he must leave," Miss Morgan answered.

"I will do so, Miss Morgan."

Dave swept off his clumsy big shade hat, made a formal old-world bow, bending from the hips, and departed, chuckling to himself all the way back to camp.

More notes passed. Nothing was done. Just before the fifteenth Kirby packed up his few belongings. Mose was to take him to Darien and come back with more supplies.

Alicia Morgan came down that day to personally confront this brazen Dave Bristow. She watched them get ready to go. Kirby shook hands with Dave.

"Thanks for the fun, Dave," Kirby said, "and I'll be wondering all the way back what the ritzy Morgan girl will say when she finds that you own the island."

"She's welcome to stay, Kirby—and if I thought I could make her say 'Yes' to me I'd go back with you for a double wedding," Dave told him.

Mose and Kirby disappeared around the point of land. Some stones rattled down. Dave looked up.

Alicia Morgan, in high boots and knickers, surely looked like a beautiful picture—the answer to a lonely man's innermost thoughts. But her eyes were flashing and she was scowling when she confronted him.

"So you are Bristow—you lied to me!" she said, sharply.

"Miss Morgan, you were so beautiful—you are so beautiful—what I mean is that if I didn't have the heart to explain that it is my island—I didn't want to drive you away—"

"You are stupid and insulting—this is my island and I want to see that you leave as soon as the colored boy returns and you can strike camp."

She turned away.

"Now don't be like that, Miss Morgan—you see it happens to be my island, but I am not selfish. You are welcome to stay on it forever—"

"I've given you more than fair warning, Bristow," she snapped at him.

"You are welcome to stay—Morgan," he called back at her, so much nettled that he couldn't resist the "Morgan."

Then as she was almost up the bluff he called, "Are you by any chance related to old Morgan, the pirate? Not that it matters, for I'd love you anyway—"

Alicia Morgan disappeared over the top of the bluff, her face burning, her eyes gleaming, and at the same time her heart pounding.

When Mose got back Dave sent him to the mainland again with a telegram to his father which read:

"Send down deed to island—my ownership questioned. Alicia Morgan, the society girl, claims it. "Dave."

When he got back there was a note pinned to the tent:

"I have sent my yacht for the authorities. If you are here when they arrive you will be arrested for trespassing."

Dave was hungry. He waited around until Mose had prepared his dinner. By that time it was quite dark, but he set out for the Morgans' portable home. He was going to explain that he had sent for his proof to the property.

When he got there he saw three men. One of them was telling Alicia Morgan, her mother and her servants to get in the house and stay there.

"It's my island, get me?" said the man. "Furthermore, what you don't see won't hurt you. I'm hiding some liquor. Mind your own busines and you can stay here—"

Alicia Morgan ran down the steps to him.

"Is everybody claiming this island? Get away at once as the authorities are coming now to arrest a trespasser camping below. Get away—do you hear?"

The man started to shove Alicia back. The butler ran behind the house. The maid screamed. Dave picked up a bit of gnarled root and stepped forward.

"Hands up—and back into your boat!" he ordered, pointing the dark bit of broken limb at the spokesman.

They put up their hands. Two of the men started on a run for the boat. Alicia's mother foolishly brought a flashlight—it showed that Dave's "gun" was just a stick. With a big solid curse the man was on him but Dave knew his stuff and the man ran into a left hook that sent him down. Dave took his gun.

The small boat from Alicia Morgan's yacht arrived on the little beach just then and held up the other two men.

The man Dave had floored was Jake Simmons—and he did own the island.

"Chances are," he said to Dave, "you didn't have your compass set right. The Marriweather island (Dave's grandfather's name) is that one to the southward. Th' island you bought offen Huckins, th' real estate guy, is th' first one to th' noreastard"—he had turned to Miss Morgan.

Simmons was recognized by the authorities. They backed up all he said and advised him to get off shore with his "stuff" until they had gone—they weren't interested in his bootlegging.

The authorities were taken back. Simmons came ashore and Dave promptly bought the island.

Alicia Morgan watched the transaction without a word, but with a curiously flushed face.

Dave took her down to the little moonlit beach.

"Alicia," he said, "let's go to the mainland and get married—leave everyone here except my colored boy for cook—then we'll come back and put up a lot of signs here."

"What signs?" she asked.

"NO TRESPASSING. Per Order

Mr. and Mrs. David Bristow."

If you had happened on that island a week later you would have found Dave and Alicia making a love-nest of the portable house—and a lot of those signs put up all about the island!

Good Manners Best Credentials, as Fay King Aptly Points Out

THE PROPER WAY TO IMPRESS A NEW FRIEND OR DITCH A VAMP!

THE FIRST AND LAST DANCE ALWAYS BELONG TO THE GIRL YOU BRING!
EVERYONE NOTICED HOW RUDE YOU'VE BEEN TO ME!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

A YOUNG couple who start out to spend an evening together must show each other the proper attentions until the evening is ended.

They may be only chums who enjoy dining and dancing together. But it does not mean that should they meet others they like better they have the right to neglect each other.

Good manners are always the best credentials one can present in public. A new friend may be attracted, but if you are rude to your friends it only cheapens you in their estimation.

Some sheiks and vamps you will meet are more interested in spoiling your companion's evening than they are in you.

The best impression you can make on those you wish to impress is—proper consideration of your companion.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Harry Gives Drastic Orders to Hotel 'Prisoners'

IT IS always Lillian's way to grow calm in time of stress, and I knew by her quiet, measured responses to her husband's telephone messages that something serious was afoot. I was breathless with anxiety by the time she hung up the receiver, but I had been trained in her school, and I asked no question.

She waited for a second or two before speaking, standing straight and still. Then she pointed to a chair.

"Wait for me here, please," she said as she hurried out of the apartment.

I obeyed her words and gesture, and she was back again within the minute.

"I simply told them not to leave the apartment until we came in," she said. "That is all they need to know now."

She settled herself in her chair and clasped her hands behind her head,, a seemingly careless gesture, but I knew that it masked tense anxiety.

"Here's the dope," she said crisply. "That note was a message from those fiends. Harry didn't go into it, of course, but his instructions were most specific.

"You and I and Dicky, with the four young people, are to remain strictly within these two apartments until further developments. Dicky will not leave for the office today. Shifts of Harry's own men—you know he could raise a regiment of weather-beaten trusted soldiers of fortune in this city alone—are to be constantly on guard in the corridor leading to the apartments and on the balcony outside. Purnell and another trusted boy are the only ones to be allowed to bring the meals or answer calls from here. This ought to be the safest place in the world for a few days, don't you think?

"It looks that way," I said, trying to emulate her matter-of-fact manner. "Will Harry be back soon?"

"Harry isn't coming back all day," she returned quietly, and only by the deepening of the little lines etched around her mouth did I know what that part of her news meant to her, in anxiety for the husband, whose utter carelessness to danger she knew so well.

"He says it is vitally necessary that he stay on the job. But, praise to Allah, he has spared us one thing—he is keeping old Phil Veritzen down there with him. Noel, of course, stays up here. But can you imagine the lovely time we'd have with that old Phil holding a mental barometer and thermometer and all the rest of the meters over those hapless young people? I always said Harry was a superman, and now I know it. But I don't envy him your respected employer sticking close to him."

"Neither do I. But I suppose it wouldn't be good policy to offend him at this critical juncture in Noel's affairs, to say nothing of the rest of them."

"Right you are. Besides, I have a secret conviction that old Phil is putting up for the expense of all this safeguarding and espionage stunt. I haven't asked Harry about it, but I know he hasn't it, and, of course, the hotel is being paid, instead of paying for anything extra. So that rather puts it up to Phil. It's just the sort of thing he'd like to do. There isn't a stingy hair in Phil Veritzen's head, whatever his other faults."

I nodded an agreement to her comment, for I, too, had noticed Philip Veritzen's liberality. The next second she unclasped her hands, sprang to her feet and pulled me with her.

"Come on. Let's tell them about this."

I went with her to the other apartment, where we found the four young people engaged in a game of their interminable bridge.

"What is up?" she demanded. "We're simply thrilled pink with all this. Only it's a shame we can't go to the roof. Will we have to stay away from it long?"

Her face was glowing, her eyes alight, in contrast to the seriousness of the other three. Not that there was any hint of fright in any of the eyes turned upon us. But Mary was the only one who saw the affair only as a glorious adventure. The rest were treating it as a grave problem.

Lillian repeated the directions her husband had given, and again only Mary's face was gay and untroubled.

"No imprisoned princess in a tower had anything on you or me, Olina," she laughed. But, though Olina smiled, it was a wan effort, and she came over to my side speaking for my ear alone.

"But if Mr. Underwood won't be here, what shall I do about my letter to Maman?"

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Love—in the Modern Manner

A man may run from danger—but nothing bores him so much as a game or a woman that is perfectly safe.

Nearly everything one does is a "gesture," these days—from wearing a monocle to shooting your husband.

Some men step out of their responsibilities as carelessly as they step out of their shoes—and just leave them around for a woman to pick up after them.

Where is the husband who used to have a brain-storm because his dear little wife WOULD insist on washing his "horrid pipe?" He is probably rummaging through his wife's desk, to see if he can borrow one of her cigarets, till she gets back from the bridge club.

The kind of love that can't survive a few disappointments and shattered illusions is too flimsy to stand the wear and tear of matrimony.

To a woman a love-affair is like a mystery story, she always wants to see "how it is going to turn out." But a man is usually satisfied to give all his attention to the current chapter, the current emotion—and the current kiss.

It is always the skilled swimmer who is eventually drowned, and the man who has gracefully escaped from so many love affairs that he thinks he bears a charmed life, is usually the one for whom Fate is preparing the next breach-of-promise suit.

* * *

The kiss was probably invented by the first man, as a labor-saving device for ending

an argument or filling in a conversational pause.

Every breach-of-promise suit is another nail in the coffin of masculine chivalry. When lovely woman stoops to law suits, and seeks to make her sweetie pay—she changes heart-beats into dollars, and washes all her charm away.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

A Clean Skin Means a Good Complexion

YOUR good looks depend to a large extent upon the appearance and condition of your skin. A perfect complexion is of more importance than perfect features. Everyone admires a beautiful skin.

Absolute cleanliness of the skin is the first consideration. Your complexion cannot be kept clean by merely dabbing a little water upon it. Plenty of soap of a fine quality is essential in order to keep it in good condition. An abundance of water is required to wash away dirt and germs which accumulate in the day's work.

DR. COPELAND

A general bath should be taken at least twice a week. But in these days, most people could not think of letting a day pass without a bath. A brisk rub will stimulate the circulation of the blood, and a bad complexion will show amazing improvement with outside cleanliness.

That is not all, for cleanliness within is also essential. You cannot have a beautiful complexion if your system is clogged with waste materials from undigested food, or poisoned by the evil effects of constipation. You should drink plenty of water, not too much at mealtime, but before or after eating. This will help to cleanse the system.

There are germs in the air and germs in the dirt with which we are in constant contact. Of course it is the skin that suffers first.

The skin is one of the most important organs of elimination of the body. The dead cells are constantly cast off, carrying with them the waste substances of the body as well as the dirt and germ accumulation. Many poisons of the system are thrown off through the skin. You can see why the skin should be kept in good condition. Cleanliness is the great essential to its proper action.

Physical exercise of a vigorous nature stimulates very greatly all the functions and organs of the body. The heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, bowels, the mysterious "ductless" glands, and the skin all are stimulated by energetic exercise.

You have often noticed how much better your skin looks after a vigorous walk out in the bracing air, or after a strenuous game in the open. The air is a tonic for the skin and nobody is going to look or feel well who does not take his daily exercise. If you are the fortunate owner of a car, do not let its possession cause you to forget the normal uses of your feet.

A good complexion means that you must avoid excessive sweets, fats and starches. Eat plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables. It is good to drink milk with your meals if you like it.

Rest and sleep are great restorers. In a restless age we disregard the warnings of our bodies either to abstain from taking too much of the wrong food, or for lack of rest and sleep. Abundant sleep has almost instant good effect on the skin.

Advancing age will bring wrinkles. Well, many a beautiful face is made more beautiful by the lines chiseled by time. Character is shown by these signs. But everyone wants to look as young as he feels.

Cleanliness is the first requisite to a good skin, and good health depends upon this one thing to a great extent. It works both ways for a good skin depends on good health.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

An Interpretation of Hospitality

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it correct for a young lady to invite a gentleman to spend the evening with her? Or should she wait until he expresses his desire to come?

IT is quite correct for the young lady to invite the gentleman to come to see her in her home. This is an interpretation of the fine old expression "extending the hospitality of your home." And it is just as correct for him to ask if he may come to see her. Both the invitation from the young lady and the request from the young man are the natural procedure in this friendly world!

The Letter, a Picture

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

How should a married woman register at a hotel: Mrs. Mary Jones or Mrs. John Jones?

2. How should a young girl register?

3. What is the customary dress when dining in the hotel dining room at noon? In the evening?

L.

A MARRIED woman signs the hotel register with her formal name—the name that appears on her visiting card—Mrs. John Jones, Pittsburgh.

2. A young girl would register with the Miss: Miss Grace Jones, Pittsburgh.

3. This depends on the hotel and the circumstances under which you are stopping there. For instance, if a woman is stopping at a hotel alone, she would not dress formally for dinner, but would wear a long-sleeved dress or an ensemble, and a hat. On the other hand, if she were entertaining, she would, if she were entertaining formally, wear evening clothes and no hat.

At the middle of the day meal a woman always should wear street clothes and a hat.

Serving Bon Bons

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. When is it proper to put bonbons on the table? After the dessert has been served? Then do you just pass the bonbons? READER.

ORNAMENTAL dishes of bonbons are put on the table before the guests sit down, if you wish. Then they are passed after the dessert. Or they may be kept on the side table and passed after the dessert.

Visiting Cards for the Young "Miss"

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is my daughter, at 13, old enough to have visiting cards, and may she, by any stretch of the imagination, include the "Miss" on them?

MOTHER.

THE 13-year-old lady may indeed have visiting cards, for there are many times when she would use them—in sending flowers, in sending a present, and so forth.

Too, I strongly recommend that she use the "Miss" on them, for they are formal details. They should be of a small size; should, of course, be engraved carefully, and should have no abbreviations on them. Especially with her charming first name. And remember that she crosses off the "Miss" with a pencil or pen when she writes a message on her card. If you wish any help in planning them please let me know.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, January 16

THE astral mutations for this day are rather negative in their influence upon mundane affairs. However, there may be some exciting or unusual developments, with an occurrence or experience out of the customary routine. With good management these may be turned to advantage, although there may be encountered slight delays or obstacles. In personal affairs there may be a tendency to be sedate or introspective.

Those whose birthday it is may not have an active or constructive year unless they forge ahead and make it for themselves, surmounting some obstacles and delays as well as a personal tendency to caution and conservatism. However, there are likely to be some unforseen occurrences or events. These may involve change of environment or a journey.

A child born on this day may have some unusual qualifications, possibly leaning toward invention or research of an occult or scientific nature, being personally disposed to solitude and introspection rather than constructive effort.

LOVEJOY :: By BEATRICE BURTON

warm. She had just come in from the bathroom now and the curly ends of her hair were damp and pearled with water.

Her skin, fresh from a scrubbing, was rose-white and as smooth as silk. Her eyes shone.

Everything about her was dainty and fresh and alluring . . . everything but her hands. They were stained and bruised and hardened from days of housework of all kinds.

"You could have married Steve Oglebay. You could have married anybody . . . with your looks," Tom added, his steady eyes on her. "And here you are shut up in a little furnished house, working like a kitchen-mechanic from dawn to dark—for me. Gosh! you must regret sometimes that you ever married me, Lovejoy."

His wife came across the room, sat on the edge of his bed and laid one of her small-work-hardened hands across his mouth.

"Please don't say things like that to me," she said. "Sometimes I can't help wishing that we had a little more freedom—just so that we could go to the movies once in a while, or something like that—But I don't regret marrying you, Tom, any more than you're sorry you married me. You aren't, are you?"

He didn't answer. But he laid his hands on her shoulders and drew her towards him. She lifted her eyes and felt his breath on her face as he bent down to her lips.

That was the way all of their arguments ended in those first wonderful days — in love-making.

And so things went on smoothly and peacefully, until the first day of the new year.

On the last day of the old year the postman brought a big white envelope to the little house in Stallings Lane.

"It's an invitation for a New Year's afternoon party at the Aldersons," Lovejoy said, her eyes running over the engraved card. Tomorrow afternoon—Tom, we can go because Aunt Em and Uncle James will be here to look after the baby."

Aunt Em and Uncle James were bringing goose and cranberry sauce and other holiday delicacies to the house for dinner the next day, because the weather was rainy and cold and Lovejoy was afraid to take the baby out in it.

"But I don't know those people," Tom objected, looking at the back of the Aldersons' house through the kitchen window. "And I haven't the right kind of clothes to wear to a shindig over there. You go and I'll stay home."

He hated the thought of leaving the house, once he was in it, and Lovejoy knew it. He loved to "putter" around the little place.

"Don't try to trump up a lot of excuses, Tom Nicholson," she said sharply, "because there is not a real reason why you shouldn't go to that party—and I want to go! Heavens to Betty, I haven't seen a thing but the four walls of this horrid little place for I don't know how long. It's been ages since I had any fun, or went anywhere. And I'm getting sick and tired of it, let me tell you."

She knew that she was hurting him. But she went right on with what she had begun to say. . . . Suddenly it came to her that she was having a miserable kind of life. . . . Miserable and dull—and lonely, too!

"Since I discovered what wonderful suds Rinso makes, washday never worries me at all.

"Why, those thick suds just soak out all the dirt. I never have to do a bit of hard rubbing or even boiling—the clothes come out so snowy.

"And Rinso is great around the house—for dishes, floors, etc. It goes almost twice as far as some soaps I've tried!"

BAPTIST SCHOOL ORDERED SOLD

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Des Moines University, Baptist fundamentalist institution which closed last fall after a long series of events rocked its student body and administration, was ordered sold to satisfy a $225,000 mortgage held by the Boatsman's National Bank of St. Louis.

The order was made by Federal Judge Charles A. Dewey, who directed that the real estate, buildings and equipment be sold, after the bank asked foreclosure and judgment for $207,070.

Des Moines University became involved in difficulties last spring shortly after the board of trustees met to hear criticisms of three of their number against Dr. T. T. Shields, board president, and Miss Edith Rebman, secretary-treasurer. They were exonerated, but when the board, at the suggestion of Dr. Shields, passed a resolution ordering the entire faculty dismissed, a hundred or more students staged a demonstration which culminated in the throwing of spoiled eggs and rocks at the room in which Shields was meeting with the board.

Dr. Shields thereupon ordered the school closed at once, but a court order reopened it two days later and under protection of that decree, Dr. Harry Wayman, school president, directed the faculty to conclude the year's work.

Tenth Anniversary Of Dry Law Observed

A luncheon today by the Pittsburgh Chapter of the W. C. T. U., and the ringing tomorrow of the school and church bells will feature Pittsburgh's observance of the tenth anniversary of prohibition. The luncheon today will be held in the ballroom of the Penn-Lincoln Hotel, Wilkinsburg, and will be addressed by the Rev. James E. Wagner, of the Mt. Lebanon Methodist Episcopal Church. Mrs. E. J. Gibson and Mrs. W. T. Larimer also will speak at the occasion.

YOU BUY TEA BY THE POUND BUT

YOU DRINK IT BY THE CUP

Stop thinking of tea as so much money per pound and begin drinking it as so much pleasure per cup. Brew a pot of Tetley Tea and you'll learn a lot you never knew about flavor and fragrance. Don't think from this that Tetley Tea is expensive, it isn't. It costs what it's worth, but, better yet, it's worth what it costs. Properly brewed you get more than 250 cups of delicious tea from every pound. • Buy Tetley Tea in pounds, half pounds, quarter pounds, and in tea bags for individual service. Follow the fine old English recipe on the package.

85% of America's Leading Hospitals

now use the same absorbent of which Kotex is made

Here is medical approval which dictates every woman's choice of sanitary protection . . . it must be hygienically safe, it must be more comfortable than any substitute

KOTEX absorbent has replaced surgical cotton in 85% of America's great hospitals! Surgeons used 2½ million pounds of Cellucotton absorbent wadding last year. That is the equivalent of 80,000,000 sanitary pads!

Hospitals realize that comfort is most closely related to health during the use of sanitary protectives. Then is when women must have perfect ease of mind and body. And Kotex assures such ease.

This unusual substance—Kotex absorbent

Remember that Cellucotton is not cotton—it is a cellulose product which, for sanitary purposes, performs the same function as the softest cotton but with 5 times the absorbency.

It is made up of layer on layer of the thinnest and softest absorbent tissues . . . each a quick, complete absorbent in itself.

These many air-cooled layers make Kotex not only safer, but lighter, cooler to wear. They also permit adjustment of the filler according to individual needs.

As one hospital authority puts it: "Kotex absorbent is noticeably free from irritating dust, which means increased hygienic comfort."

To women who still make their own sanitary pads of cheesecloth and cotton, these facts will be of interest.

Kotex absorbs (by actual test) five times quicker, five times greater, than an equal amount of surgical cotton. It takes up 16 times its own weight in moisture and distributes that moisture evenly, not all in one concentrated place.

For perfect daintiness, Kotex deodorizes completely and thoroughly.

Kotex may be worn on either side—doesn't have to be used in a certain specified way. That makes adjustment easier, protection safer. Any way you use it, Kotex is always comfortable and safe.

Since it is so easy to buy Kotex and the price is so low, no woman need consider using anything else. Her choice is made for her by the medical profession. Surely, if they find Kotex absorbent best—even in the most dangerous operations—it cannot fail to be best for constant use.

Why smart women prefer Kotex

It is significant that 9 out of 10 women in smarter circles today use Kotex. They find that it permits a freedom and poise hard to acquire otherwise. That's because Kotex really fits. It is designed, you see, to conform . . . shaped at the corners and tapered.

And here is the reason so many women first began to use Kotex: it is easily disposable. That fact alone has helped to change the hygienic habits of millions of women the world over!

KOTEX IS SOFT . . .

1 Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, fleecy softness that lasts for hours.

2 Safe, secure... keeps your mind at ease.

3 Rounded and tapered corners—for inconspicuous protection.

4 Deodorizes... safely, thoroughly, by a special process.

5 Disposable completely, instantly

Regular Kotex—45c for 12
Kotex Super-Size—65c for 12

At any drug, dry goods or department store, or singly in vending cabinets through West Disinfecting Co.

Thousands of women first learned about Kotex in hospitals, then discovered they could buy it at their corner drug store! The price of the Regular size is never more than 45 cents.

A few months' trial will convince you that you owe yourself this modern, comfortable, safe, sanitary protection. Kotex Company, Chicago, Illinois.

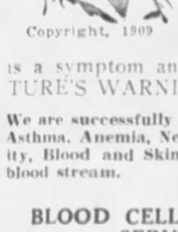
High Blood Pressure Shortens Life



Copyright, 1929

Relief for high blood pressure and other health-destroying ailments that have kept thousands of sufferers in misery and doubt, is now seen in the modern discovery—BLOOD CELL PROTEIN SERUM—the importance cannot be denied when the life insurance companies refuse to issue policies to applicants with high blood pressure, because it tends to shorten life. No warning is given and until certain symptoms appear, you are not aware of it. Remember, that High Blood Pressure is a symptom and not a disease in itself—IT IS NATURE'S WARNING to take notice.

We are successfully treating High Blood Pressure, Rheumatism, Asthma, Anemia, Neuritis, Nervous or Stomach Troubles, Debility, Blood and Skin Diseases and other ailments affecting the blood stream.

BLOOD CELL PROTEIN SERUMS

This institution specializes in correcting blood troubles, making a complete diagnosis and laboratory analysis of each case, and administering the proper serum to remove the cause. One serum often brings immediate relief.

LEONARD REJECTS OFFER OF $150,000

OFFICIALS of the Pittsburgh Professional Hockey Club who claim to be still in control of the local ice outfit and franchise took an entirely new step yesterday to discredit the report that the team is to be transferred to another city next season and to show their confidence in the future of the sport in this city under professional major conditions. At the same time they gave evidence of an abiding faith that the proposed Town Hall soon is to become a reality in spite of the continued delay in the selection of a site. They stepped out and made an offer of $35,000 annual winter rental for the right to use the Town Hall for hockey purposes on a basis of 22 games per season.

Benny Leonard

The proposal was made in a formal communication to the county commissioners. The interests behind the move are headed by President J. F. Callahan, it is understood.

"OF course it may seem rather premature to try to rent a hall that has not yet been built, but we are merely looking to the future," explained one of those interested. "We want to set at rest those stories that the team is to be taken away, and to assure that professional hockey will have a satisfactory home here in the seasons to come.

"The rental paid at Duquesne Garden at present is about $500 per game. The rate we are offering for the use of the proposed Town Hall when it has been erected is close to $1,600 per game. That ought to show our confidence that major league hockey can be operated here at a profit and that we mean to keep the franchise right in this city. Reports have been circulated time and again that the club is to be moved. To what city could it be moved and who would do the moving? There is no better city available, and no person has any authority to talk of selling or transferring the franchise.

"WHAT are we going to do, you ask, pending the building of the Town Hall? Even if this should be delayed beyond expectations, there is nothing to prevent the club from continuing at Duquesne Garden.

"It has been said that hockey cannot be operated at a profit at the Garden. That is incorrect. The expense is not as great as is popularly supposed. The upkeep of the Pittsburgh club does not exceed $90,000—$62,000 for the payroll, $11,000 for rental, $3,000 for uniforms and equipment, and the remainder for incidentals.

J. F. Callahan

"IT is hard to understand how the impression got abroad that the Pittsburgh club is such a losing proposition that it will have to be moved elsewhere. Why, only recently, a group of outside sportsmen offered Benny Leonard $150,000 for the franchise and club. That's $25,000 more than Benny paid for the whole thing. Yet he turned it down and has set $225,000 as his price. Surely that ought to kill the rumors that hockey is in a bad way here and that Pittsburgh is in danger of losing its professional major league team."

POLO, gaining in popularity throughout the country to such an extent that an Argentine team is to play in Southern California early this year for the first time, is no piker's game. The financial outlay represented by the staging of a big international match runs into huge figures. Even the bringing of five men, 55 ponies and 12 trainers to this country from the Argentine cost $20,000.

And that's only a side item, as was the loss of three horses that died during the 42-day trip and one other that died upon arrival. The value of the Argentine team's horses alone, bred of the best thoroughbreds and carefully trained, is $250,000. Last year the 42 mounts shipped by the same team for a match at Meadowbrook brought at sale an average of $6,000 per head, the top price for a single pony being $22,500.

IT'S just one physical ill after another for Del Bissonette, first baseman of the Brooklyn Dodgers. He started out with a flourish when he broke into the majors, but after turning in the healthy batting average of .320 in 1928, he began to have his troubles and last year his hitting mark fell to .281.

About six weeks ago he underwent a sinus operation and felt that after a hunting trip in the Maine woods he would be all set for a good baseball start in 1930. He had hardly left St. Mary's Hospital in Brooklyn, however, until he was forced to return.

THIS time it was mastoid trouble, and Bissonette had to undergo another operation. He is still in the hospital, receiving daily treatments, and wondering what is going to happen to him next. However, his doctor holds out the assurance that Del no longer will have any cause for worry. "How Bissonette ever played ball at all last year is more than I can understand," says the medico. "But he'll be in good physical condition by March, I am sure, and if physical condition means anything whatever on a ball field, he ought to have a great year."

Del Bissonette

FROM Allenport, Pa., J. A. F. writes: "Can you advise me, through your column, the height and weight of Lloyd Waner, Rabbit Maranville and Hack Wilson? Also how many active players there are in the National League whose weight exceeds 200 pounds? The object of this inquiry is to settle a friendly argument."

Lloyd Waner's height is 5 feet 7 inches and his weight 148 pounds; Maranville stands 5 feet 5 inches and scales 155 pounds, and Wilson measures 5 feet 6 inches, tipping the beam at 185 pounds. Though several are near the mark, the only actual 200-pounders in the National are Jumbo Elliott, of the Robins, 235; Eppa Rixey of the Reds, 210; Harry Heilmann, of the Reds, 205; Virgil Davis, of the Phillies, 205; Bill Terry, of the Giants, 200, and George Kelly, of the Reds, 200. Another passed out when the Pirates released Earl Sheely, 205.

IT isn't only in his own city that Charley Hyatt, Pitt basketball star, is being praised for his brilliant playing. In the Cleveland "News" is being praised for his brilliant playing. In the Cleveland "News" appears a letter from Al Brown, of that city, who was here for the Pitt-Montana game and other Panther events. "I've followed basket-

P. A. A. Swim Team To Be Rearranged

Rearrangement of the Pittsburgh Athletic Association swim lineup probably will be in order for the important inter-city aquatic clash involving the Red and Gray host with the crack Baltimore Central Y. M. C. A. combination at the Winged Head clubhouse here Saturday night. The contest, the second affair in which out-of-town talent has opposed P. A. A. luminaries in the local tank this winter, has been selected by Coach Mullen as fitting occasion to inject big Tim Crannon, powerful crawl stroke veteran, back into action in the 50-yard free style dash and to slip Fred Wenk opportunity to try his fortune in the 220-free style grind.

TRINITY ROYALS COP

The Trinity Cathedral Royals defeated the Wagner A. C., 45 to 20, on the latter's floor last night. Reidenbach and Scherr were the stars. The lineup:

BARBOURSVILLE, W. Va., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Morris Harvey defeated the New River State, 40 to 21, here last night.

COOK STARS AS BUCS ARE HUMBLED

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—The Chicago Blackhawks clung to their one-point grip on second place in the National Hockey League race last night by swamping the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6 to 2. Arbour, Cook, Graham, Gottselig and Dutkowski scored for the Blackhawks. Cook, back in the game after being absent because of an injury, was the individual star of the evening, getting a pair of goals in addition to being mixed up in almost every scoring attack.

Bill Tobin, for several years business manager of the Black Hawks, has been placed in charge of the team by Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, the owner. Maj. McLaughlin also announced Dick Irvin would direct the team on the ice.

Tobin and Irvin will succeed Tom Shaughnessy, whose resignation as manager of the Blackhawks was announced Monday night. Shaughnessy will remain on the job until after tomorrow's contest with the Boston Bruins. The lineup:

Chicago—6.		Pittsburgh—2.
Gardiner	G	Miller
Ripley	L. W.	Darragh
March	R. W.	Lowrey
Adams	C	Milks
Wentworth	R. D.	Spring
Graham	L. D.	MacKinnon

PIRATE HAWKS FASTEST IN BASEBALL

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

The 1930 Pirates are apt to go into battle with the fleetest set of outfielders in baseball.

Manager Jewel Ens appears to face some trouble in other departments, but when Jewel gives his outfield hawks the "once over" he turns on his other side and dreams on merrily.

Ens will take no less than nine fly-chasers to Paso Robles and at least eight or nine of them are sprinters. The players are, Paul and Lloyd Waner, Adam Comorosky, Jimmy Mosolf, Fred Brickell, Ira Flagstead, Mel Ingram, John Stoneham and Larmon Cox.

Jimmy Mosolf

Pirate fans already are acquainted with the Mercury doings of the regular outfield—the Waners and Comorosky. Brother Lloyd, one of the greatest outfielders in the game, is like the wind; his brother is faster than the average player, and the Polish Flyer is just that.

SPEED, MORE SPEED

The second backfield, consisting of Mosolf, Brickell and Flagstead, might well challenge the 'varsity and get away with it. Mosolf, the fine Russian lad who came to the Pirates from Wichita of the Western League, is a sprinter and so far as Brickell is concerned, there are those who think he can run as fast as Brother Lloyd. The veteran Flagstead has been a swift one for many years.

The third set of pasture boys holds at least one player whose speed is a known quantity. Mel Ingram, of Gonzaga University, is a 10-second ball tosser and those who may wish proofs can get them by sending a stamped envelope to his alma mater.

Stoneham and Cox are rook-

Millionaire's Club Presents Plaque To Carey

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden, was dined and toasted last night at a huge testimonial banquet by the "600 Millionaires Club," famous organization of wealthy business men organized by the late Tex Rickard. Big Bill, who succeeded Rickard as the head of the Garden activities, was presented with a large plaque by the "Millionaires" Club in appreciation for his labor in promoting the heavyweight match, last February in Miami Beach, Fla., between Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling.

HONUS WOULD BOX SHIRES

Pittsburgh's Boy Friend, John Honus Wagner, dubbed by many experts the greatest baseball player that ever lived, may be growing old and gray—but he has young ideas!

Last night, J. Honus got on the band wagon and challenged (of all persons) Arthur (The Great) Shires to a six-round bout in Pittsburgh.

Honus Wagner

Wagner was one of the speakers at the testimonial banquet and dance staged at the Chartiers Heights Country Club for Octavius (Toby) Uansa, Pitt halfback star; Charles Winoski, member of the Dukes' grid squad, and Frank (Dundee) Rodgers, star baseball player, all of McKees Rocks, under the auspices of the Sto-Rox Testimonial Association.

The baseball veteran told some reminiscences of the diamond, stressing the difference between the rough and ready days when he was breaking in and the more effete days of the present. After

MOUNTAINEERS, ALLEGHENY, BISONS WIN

MEADVILLE, Pa., Jan. 15.—Playing ragged ball except for periodic flashes, Allegheny College passers last night downed Thiel on the local floor, 29-12.

Thiel kept pace with Allegheny in the first 10 minutes of play when the score stood 5-5, but after that the Alligators pulled ahead to gain a lead of 16-6 at the half. The lineup:

Allegheny—29.		Thiel—12.
Baird	F	Morris
Dennison	F	Frampton
Conn	C	Lawson
Garbark	G	McCoy
Berger	G	Bell

Substitutions—Allegheny: Mills for Baird, Brown for Conn, Heffrin for Garbark. Thiel: Harter for Frampton, Frampton for Bell. Field goals—Garbark 3, Berger 3, Baird 2, Dennison 2, Conn, Morris, Frampton, Lawson, McCoy. Foul goals—Baird 2-2, Con 2-3, Berger 1-2, Dennison 0-1, Garbark 0-1, Frampton 1-1, Lawson, 1-4, McCoy 2-3, Bell 0-1, Harter 0-1. Referee—Fitting.

W. VA., TRIPS BOBCATS

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 15.—With Captain Little Sleepy Glenn again cast in the star role, West Virginia last night won its third game in four starts, by tripping West Virginia Wesleyan, 33-27. The lineup:

W. Virginia—33.		Wesleyan—27.
M. Glenn	F	Battles
Cubbon	F	Watson
Bartrug	C	Hagerdon
Ratcliffe	G	Hartman
Plaster	G	Bachtel

Substitutes—West Virginia: Lapera, Taylor, Doyle, Fox. Wesleyan: Edmundson, Williams, Follo. Field goals—M. Glenn 5, Cubbon 2, Bartrug 2, Ratcliffe, Plaster, Lapera, Battles 6, Hartman, Edmundson, Williams, Follo. Fouls—West Virginia, 9 out of 14; Wesleyan, 7 out of 9. Referee—Daugherty. Umpire—Kennedy.

BETHANY VICTOR

BETHANY, W. Va., Jan. 15.—A valiant uphill fight fell short of its intended mark here last night when Bethany College, by virtue of a big lead, nosed out the Waynesburg floormen, 37-34. The lineup:

Bethany—37.		Waynesburg—34.
Baker	F	Ullam
Rush	F	Patsch
Telfair	C	Smith
Danschroeder	G	Vpema
Slading	G	White

Substitutes—Bethany: Ronalds, Waynesburg: Avery. Field goals—Ronald 2, Rushburg, Avery, Danschroeder 2, Slading 4, Telfair 2, Danschroeder 2, Slading 4, White 3, Avery 3, Vpema, Smith, Patsch. Fouls—Bethany, 8 out of 19; Waynesburg, 8 out of 10. Referee—Watkins.

WAGNER STOPS PHISTER

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Ralph (Kid) Wagner, Sunbury's ball player-boxer, knocked out Eddie Phister, of New York, in the third round here last night. Wagner scaled 160, Phister 157.

State Commission Recognizes Bass As Champion

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania State Boxing Commission has decided not to concur in the decision of the New York Boxing Commission to eliminate the junior-lightweight class and will recognize Benny Bass, of this city, as the junior-welterweight champion.

Bass recently knocked out Tod Morgan, holder of the championship, in Madison Square Garden and shortly afterward the New York Commission announced that the junior-lightweight title would be abolished.

Wiener told the sport writers an injustice had been done Bass and that the Pennsylvania Commission would not concur in an injustice.

Wiener said the junior-welterweight class, also abolished by the New York Commission, would continue to be recognized in Pennsylvania. Mushy Callahan holds the title.

LOCAL AMATEUR MITTMEN WIN

DETROIT, Jan. 15. mateur Loxers from Pittsburgh carried off the honors in their inter-city matches with Detroit rivals before a large crowd at the Cadilla Athletic Club last night.

Members of the Duke O'Hara Athletic Club, of McKeesport, Pa., displayed a better knowledge of ring tactics than their Detroit opponents and because they kept punching at every opportunity they piled up enough points to win five of the seven bouts. The summary:

Bantamweight—Tony Marino, McKeesport, won referee's decision over Joe Szeegi, Christ Church, in four rounds.

Featherweight—Joe Gaudy, McKeesport, won judges' decision over Paul Miller, Christ Church, in three rounds.

Mike and Joe Flaherty, McKeesport, won decision over Billy Stewart, Christ Church, in three rounds.

TECH PINS HOPE ON NEASE IN TILT TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER

Carnegie Tech and Wash-Jeff gather in the lion's share of the college basketball limelight tonight, clashing as they do in a Big Four battle on the home court of the Presidents in Washington, Pa.

George Nease

This contest, and the W. Va. Wesleyan-Broddus affair in West Virginia, are the only college games set for tonight in the tri-state district. Neither Wash-Jeff nor Carnegie has defeated a sectional rival to date, so one is certain to break over into the win column this evening.

WATCH NEASE

The Tartans will pin their hopes on George Nease, captain of the Skibo quintet, against the Prexies. Capt. George has been going guns in the Skibo attack so far, sparkling with exceptional brilliance against Penn State last week. He is one of the fastest men in the district, and a corking good shot.

A year ago, you remember, Tech broke a losing streak that had extended from the 1928 season by beating Geneva here in Pittsburgh early in the year, and then, a few weeks later, beat W. and J. to shove the Red and Black into the Big Four cellar. The probable lineups:

Tech.		Wash-Jeff.
Nease (C)	F	Umberger
Webster	F	Lewis
Merton	C	Martin
High	G	McNeil
Schumacher	G	20 minutes.
Time of periods—		Butler

TO HONOR UANSA AGAIN

Tonight will be "Uansa Night" at the Roxian Theater in McKees Rocks, with Tumbling Toby booked to make a speech to the folks from the stage. Charley Edwards, Tom Parkinson and other members of the Pitt squad will be guests along with the Rox halfback.

This Chamber of Commerce banquet tomorrow night gives promise of being a wow. Both Pitt and Schenley High will be honored, sharing the city's championships and being in line for the trophys emblematic of their respective titles. The fact that Messers Very, MacMillan, Quailey and others of the like will be scattered about the hall, is bound to add zest to the evening.

Announcer

A. G. (RED) COFFMAN

Announcer at the boxing bows in Altoona and Johnstown, who makes his debut at McKeesport as master of ceremonies at the Bud Gorman-Ike McFowler show tomorrow night. He comes highly touted and the fans are said to be in for a treat when they hear him do his stuff.

DENNY SHUTE COPS LOS ANGELES OPEN TITLE

COLUMBUS PRO LEADS FIELD BY FOUR STROKES

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Over the same flooded fairways and rain-soaked greens that proved a golfers' graveyard for America's greatest, there tramped yesterday a little-known disciple of the royal and ancient game to win the championship of the $10,000 Los Angeles 72-hole open.

Young Denny Shute, from Columbus, O., former West Virginia amateur champion, whose brief two-year career as a professional hardly rated him the honor of a gallery, hunched his shoulders into the wind and braved the torrential rains to post the respectable and winning score of 296. It exceeded by four strokes the efforts of such notables as Horton Smith, Joplin (Mo.) star, and Bobby Cruickshank, of New York, winner of the Los Angeles open in 1927. They tied for second place with 300.

Trying conditions that failed to bother Shute spelled the doom of such luminaries as Walter Hagen, one of the world's most prominent golfers, and Bill Mehlhorn, of New York. MacDonald Smith, of Long Island, winner of the title for the last two years, was unable to meet the climatic test and tied with Chet Beer, Bakersfield, Cal., for eighth place at 306.

Al Espinosa, of Chicago, posted a 303 for fourth money, while Tommy Armour, of Detroit, former national open titleholder, had a 304 for fifth position. Leo Diegel, winner of the Professional Golfers' Association crown for the last two years, tied with Mortie Dutra, Tacoma, Wash., with 305.

Johnny Farrell, of St. Augustine, Fla., also a former national open champion, chalked up a 310, while Harry Cooper, of Buffalo, was forced to be content with 312.

Former Local Church, Later Basketball Hall, Now Becomes Boxing Arena

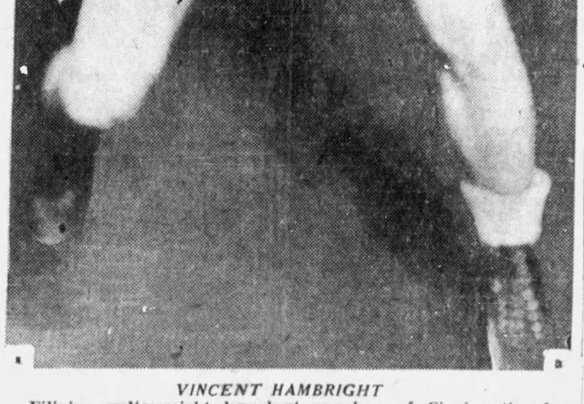
OLD COLUMBUS TEMPLE, NOW THE COLISEUM, PITTSBURGH'S NEWEST BOXING ARENA

Years ago, a church was located at Locust and Van Braam streets, hard by the downtown section. The building, now probably 75 years old, finally was vacated as a church and came into use for social and athletic functions, being especially a center for basketball games, and was known as Columbus Temple. Recently it was taken over by the Meyers Brothers and Francis Flynn and the interior remodeled into a cozy boxing arena, which will make its debut Friday night under the name of the Coliseum. Note the church background in the picture of the Coliseum as it stands today, all but ready for the ring battles.



VINCENT HAMBRIGHT

he had concluded, and as the toastmaster, Frank J. Lanahan, was preparing to introduce the next speaker, Honus returned to the microphone to broadcast, through the loud speakers, his challenge, as if it were an afterthought, and he brought down the house as he said:

"I only hope that if Art Shires ever comes to Pittsburgh some one will arrange a six-round bout for me with him."

STARS GIVEN WATCHES

Art evidently has managed to get under the skin of Honus, famed as one of the mildest-mannered of baseball characters, just as he has burrowed his way under the epidermis of other persons by his bombastic actions and words.

Other speakers included Wally Wickline, chairman of the committee, who introduced the toastmaster; Rev. Dr. C. Wallace Petty, Senator Frank J. Harris, Burgess Joseph G. Steedle, Coach Jock Sutherland, of Pitt, and Coach Bob Waddell, of Carnegie Tech. Coach Elmer Layden, of Duquesne, was prevented by illness in his family from attending. Sutherland made one of his best talks as he spoke with feeling of the deep regard he had for Uansa as a player and student.

Inscribed watches were presented the three honor guests and Uansa also received two purses from his townsfolk. Capt. DiMeolo, Tom Parkinson, Charley Edwards, Paul Collins, Tom MacMurdo, Eddie Baker and Ralph Daugherty, of the Pittsburgh varsity squad, were among the guests, as were also Tony Trappazano, of W. & J., and Joe Luffrano, of Waynesburg, along with Tony Sweet, former Tech star, and the complete Rox Rangers squad, coached by Uansa during the past season.

"THROUGH," ART SAYS

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15—(INS.)—Arthur (The Great) Shires now will devote his attention to basketball.

"I'm through boxing," he told 500 wildly cheering fans last night at the twenty-fifth annual banquet of the Philadelphia Sporting Writers' Association.

"I never was anything but a greenhorn in there. But I was not so dumb. You notice I never took on anyone but a greenhorn like myself. Maybe I was a sap, but not any bigger than those who paid to see me. I got paid for it at the rate of about $3,000 for 15 minutes' work."

Shires was one of the guests of honor at the dinner, and, running true to form, he couldn't refrain from talking—mostly about himself. He stole the show.

Shires announced today that he would play for the South Philadelphia Hebrews' Association basketball team, commenting that with an Irishman in their midst the Hebrews should prove a great team. He will make his debut against the Wilmington (Del.) team in an Eastern League contest here tomorrow night.

MONTGOMERY HONORED

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 15.—Ray Montgomery, all-America guard at the University of Pittsburgh, was presented a wrist watch, bill fold and $200 by approximately 1,000 residents of Warwood, a suburb of this city, who honored him at a banquet here last night. Montgomery resides in Warwood.

Dr. P. V. (Packy) McPartland, of Pitt, pinch-hitting for Coach Jock Sutherland, and Judge Ritz, of the Ohio County Court, praised the Panther star in stirring speeches.

Gustafson's Death Held Accidental

OLEAN, N. Y., Jan. 15—(INS)—Excusable homicide was the verdict filed here today by a coroners' jury which investigated the death of Evan Gustafson, 24, of Mount Jewett, Pa., who died yesterday after sustaining injuries in an unsanctioned amateur boxing bout. Augie Carlson, of Jamestown, N. Y., the dead man's opponent, was not held.

Tilden, Hunter Quit Davis Cup Play

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter are not yet ready to hang up their racquets and retire from the courts, although both are definitely committed not to engage in another Davis Cup campaign. Hunter said yesterday at his office in New Rochelle.

ED BRANNON SUSPENDED

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—The State Athletic Commission tonight announced the following indefinite suspensions of boxers:

Jack McGraw, Philadelphia; Tony Russo, Atlantic City, N. J.; Henry Stezar, Scranton, Pa., Tiger Jack West and George (TNT) Gibbons, Monessen, Pa., and Eddie Brannon, Pittsburgh. Jack Hennessy, Philadelphia, a manager, also was suspended indefinitely.

WEAVER VS. WARREN

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(INS.)—Buck Weaver, Kansas City heavyweight, was signed today to box Add Warren, North Carolina callegian, in one of the 10-round bouts on the Primo Carnega—Big Boy Peterson card at the garden, January 24.

FIGHT SHOW OFF

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—The New York Coliseum has called off the boxing show it planned for tonight. Big Bill Hartnett, of Kansas City, was to have met Arthur Dekuh, of Italy, in the feature bout.

SMOKER BOUTS CARDED FOR TONIGHT

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Two star boxing smokers are scheduled for the local fans this evening, one of them under the auspices of the Ninth Ward Republican Club in Forrester Hall, 4310 Butler street, Lawrenceville, and the other under the auspices of the Homewood-Brushton Baseball Boosters' Association in the Penn Armory.

Skipper Manning (In His Boxing Days.)

The Ninth Ward show will be featured by the appearance of a number of veterans on the card, including James (Red) Mason, in the role of announcer; Skipper Manning, former Lawrenceville boxing star, as referee, and Jack Burke, former heavyweight notable, in the main bout with Harry Williams, Negro, who boxed a draw with George Panka at the Moose Club last Friday night.

Twelve bouts, amateur and professional, are listed for this show and there will be vaudeville acts besides, including numbers by radio artists, dancers and others. Tony Herrera, Mexican lightweight star, of Chicago, who knocked out Tommy Crawley in the first round at Motor Square Garden last Monday night, is staying over to appear in an exhibition as an added attraction.

Amateurs exclusively will perform at the armory. The proceeds of this show will go to the Homewood-Brushton Baseball Club, of the County League. The program: 112 pounds, Paul Monar, Homestead Library, vs. Alphonso Sfizondo, Duke O'Hara Club; 118 pounds, Freddie Smith, Carnegie, vs. Joe Bazzone, Duke O'Hara Club; 126 pounds, L. Benedict, unattached, vs. George Mahalic, Duke O'Hara Club; Don Asto, Uniontown, vs. J. Montabano, Braddock Library, and Tom Nicholas, Triangle Club, vs. L. Comfort, Hogan A. C., 147 pounds, John Smeltz, Wilmerding Y., vs. Pete Tugalia, Hogan A. C.

Between Rounds

The card has been completed for the opening boxing show in the new Coliseum Friday night with the signing of Georgie Chambers, of the East End, to box Harry Spencer, formerly of Washington, Pa., and now of Pittsburgh, in the second bout and Roy Minteer, of New Castle, to oppose Jimmy Thomas, of the Hill, in the opener. Tom Malco, of Soho, and Vincent Hambright, of Cincinnati, box the main bout and Mickey Duris, of Johnstown, and Ken Hargraves, of New Kensington, are in the semi-final.

Reservations for the show at the Coliseum Friday night may be obtained at Flynn's gym until 6 o'clock on the evening of the show and after that they may be arranged for by calling Grant 9837.

Fight Results

At Allentown, Pa.—Ralph (Kid) Wagner knocked out Eddie Pilster, 3 rounds; Jack Portner defeated Joey Diaz, 8 rounds; Georgie Mallick defeated Johnny DeMarco, 8 rounds.

At Carbondale, Pa.—Joe Grady defeated Frank Petrolle, 6 rounds.

At Jacksonville, Fla.—Puddy Runkus-Joey Edwards fight stopped in fifth round; no contest.

At Indianapolis—Emmett Curtice knocked out Alex Schragel, 9 rounds.

At Alliance, O.—Mickey Solmen knocked out Tom McCafferty, 6 rounds.

At Los Angeles—Fidel LaBarba defeated Ignacio Fernandez, 10 rounds.

At New York—Buff Freeman defeated Jim Bennett, 10 rounds; Ben Nabors defeated Dick Scalza, 8 rounds; Charley Raymond defeated Ray Cummings, 6 rounds; Sammy Nelson defeated Tommy Quinn, 6 rounds; Jimmy Ahner knocked out Jerry Granton, 1 round; Jackie Chassin and Danny Landon drew, 4 rounds; Sid Bliss knocked out Andy Parsons, 4 rounds.

Promoter Flynn announces for the convenience of his patrons, who were accustomed to picking up their pasteboards at the Moose Temple, which has given way to the Coliseum.

Freddie Edwards, of Huntington, W. Va., will meet an opponent to be selected in the main bout of the second show at East Liverpool, O., Thursday night of next week. In the windup of the opening show, last week, Mickey Solmen knocked out Leo Genet in two rounds.

DEUTSCH SELLS ROBERTS

Johnny Deutsch has sold the contract of Hans Roberts, his German welterweight.

Lew Massey, Philadelphia star, meets Battling Battalino, the featherweight champion, at the Arena in Philadelphia next Monday night. The title will not be at stake.

An amateur boxing show will be held under the auspices of the North Boroughs American Legion Post in the Avalon Borough hall Friday night of next week. Seven bouts are carded.

Promoter Jim McGirr, of McKeesport, ought to get a break with his Tony Herrera-Johnny Mellow show, listed for Thursday night, January 30. After Tony's one-round knockout victory over Tommy Crawley at Motor Square Garden last Monday night, he ought to pack 'em in for McGirr, who has found the pickin's fairly lean so far this season.

McGirr has completed the program for his show in the Palisades arena tomorrow night. He has Ike McFowler, Johnstown Negro, against Bud Gorman, of Kenosha, Wis., in the 10-round main bout; Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, with Tommy Heilman, of Donora, in the six-round semi-final, and Sammy Madison, of Wheeling, boxing Louis Stosito, a welterweight protege of James (Red) Mason, and Young Judy, of Charleroi, opposing Paul Ballut, of the North Side, in the preliminaries.

Because of an injury suffered by Tiger Griffiths in training, Pete Landini, of West Newton, will take his place against Sparky Ewalt, of McKees Rocks, in the main bout of the amateur boxing show under the auspices of the Pastorious A. C., in Lithuanian Hall, McKees Rocks, Friday night.

MICKEY SOLMEN WINS

ALLIANCE, O., Jan. 15.—Mickey Solmen knocked out Tom McCafferty in the sixth round here last night.

Long's Sport Comment

ball for years," he writes, "and I've yet to see the equal, bar none, of Charley Hyatt. He is worth double the price of admission.

"Here is a marked man in every game, but they can't stop him. In the Montana game he was up against a powerfully built team that played Pitt to a standstill, but Hyatt was too much. Take it from me, he is a wonder, and right now he would be the sensation of professional basketball, even against Na' Holman. He is not one of those overrated individual stars. He is a great field general, team player, and as smart as they make 'em—and a fine boy besides."

Ed Minnick

ANOTHER who continues to stand out prominently in basketball in this section is Ed Minnick, coach of the Duquesne Lafayette team in the County League. Minnick has made a remarkable record in that league, and one that stamps him a coach of exceptional ability. For three consecutive seasons his team has won both the first and second halves of the County League race, and now, after a poor start, his boys are out in front again, and it will be hard to stop them from being second-half winners. Minnick takes the home boys year after year, molds them into perfect machines and they bowl over the rival teams just as often as they are organized.

Cheer Up, Wall Street, Things Aren't Hopeless

— By B. C. FORBES —

THE cry was, "Take the stock market off the front page."

It's off. The market is deader than at any time since mid-1928.

It is so lifeless that bulls can't make any money, bears can't make any money, brokers can't make any money, nobody can make money—except you reason that they are making money who are not losing money by staying away.

FROM President Hoover down, the exhortation was, "Let us return to normalcy."

Wall street is back to normalcy—to normalcy plus, or, would you say normalcy minus?

Yet—such is human nature—having got what it thought it wanted, Wall street is quite satisfied. It wants action, it wants ginger. It wants fluctuations. It detests stagnation.

EVERYBODY and every corporation and every institution was asked to do everything possible to avoid causing unemployment. If a census were taken, it would be found that the ratio of unemployment among "Wall Street houses" is greater than in the motor industry or steel industry or textile industry or lumber industry or building industry or any other industry, save, perhaps, lobbying.

Not only have Wall Street houses slashed their forces right and left, but they have become so white-livered that many of them have drastically cut down their sales efforts, including advertising.

The indigoness of Wall Street's funk was revealed in an indirect but emphatic way. Wall street was amazed that $150,000,000 new American Telephone bonds could be disposed of faster than hotcakes and that investors should scramble to get some of them even at a premium over the issue prices. Wall Street had imagined that nothing could be sold, that everybody had lost everything (including heart), that the whole financial and investment outlook was bleak, bleak, bleak. Wall Street gets that way; it doesn't do things by halves; it is either up in dizzy clouds or buried in the doldrums.

CONSIDER Wall Street's attitude toward investment trusts. There you have an ideal example of how Wall street has performed a mental somersault.

Before the gay boom broke, it was sufficient for any first-rate or second-rate or even third-rate Wall street firm to announce a new investment trust offering to send the stock 10 or 20 or 30 or 40 points above the figure the insiders were privileged to subscribe at. No easier way had ever been discovered to make profits in half the twinkling of an eye. It was notoriously a case of "trust" rather than investment.

Lo, nothing is more distrusted today than these sorecently alluring securities. They are now selling ex-trust, ex-glamor, ex-vapor. More than one respectably-sponsored investment trust stock has been selling for less than the amount of actual hard cash reposing in the treasury.

Wall street gets that way. It sees either the doughnut without the hole, or the hole without the doughnut.

OF COURSE, Wall Street will regain its senses, including its sense of perspective and proportion. It will by and by realize that everybody wasn't ruined in its panic. It will realize that the heaviest losses befell those best able to afford them.

Wall Street may not believe it, but the truth is that the total number of individuals owning stocks has greatly increased during recent months. Corporation head after corporation head has looked up the facts and informed me that his stockholders' list is much longer today than it was when shares were selling at fancy heights. Increases have ranged from a few thousand to almost 50,000.

President Alvan MacAuley, of Packard Motors, tells me that even such a staid company as his has added 40,000 stockholders "during the past few weeks, an increase of 150 per cent."

Does not this suggest that hundreds of thousands of citizens and families of moderate means, instead of losing their all in the debacle, were in a position to seize the opportunity afforded by the panic to acquire attractive stocks at extremely attractive prices?

That's a phase which has been generally ignored. Yet is it not a most interesting and encouraging phase? It suggests that humble folks had a sounder grasp of the realities than many multi-millionaires had. Some of the latter have had their fortunes pruned to the extent of from $50,000,000 to as much, it is understood, as $250,000,000 in two or three cases.

CHEER up, Wall Street. America's tangible wealth is as great today as it was when stocks were soaring skyhigh. Money in abundance is still available for investment. Only, you must now go after it and not expect it to seek you out.

Get busy!

STOCK MARKET UNSETTLED BY BEAR DRIVE

Irregular Recovery Sets In After Warm Attack On Montgomery-Ward

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Renewal of selling attacks against the merchandising issues, particularly Montgomery Ward, which was hammered down more than 5 points to a new low record for the present stock at 38⅝, unsettled today's stock market after an opening period of moderate strength.

RECOVERY STARTS

Early declines in most of the active issues ranged from fractions to 3 points, although a few specialties for which there is a thin market dropped 4 to 13 points, but an irregular recovery set in during the early afternoon.

Weakness of Montgomery Ward, which sold as high as 156⅞ in the "bull" market last year, was attributed in some quarters to the liquidation of a stale, weakened speculative account, and in others to "bear" attacks based on the disappointing nature of some of the recent earnings statements. Rumors that one of Wall Street's largest "bear" operators had received a 300,000 share liquidating order in that issue were denied. Sears, Roebuck dropped 3 points in sympathy, and J. C. Penney 2.

NEWS CONFLICTING

The day's business news was again rather conflicting in character. Iron Age estimated that operations of the U. S. Steel Corporation were now running at 70 per cent of capacity, stating that "the demand for steel continues to grow and production has made another gain, but prices have undergone further reductions." Freight car loadings in the week ended January 4 showed a large gain over the preceding week, but were 18,753 cars below the corresponding week of 1929.

Foreign trade figures for December showed a drop of $41,602,000 in exports and a drop of $28,030,000 in imports, as compared with the same month of 1928, whereas for the full year exports increased $119,674,000 and imports $309,514,000. The Humble Oil Company announced a decrease in crude oil prices, due to the continued over-production of the commodity.

Midland Steel Products preferred broke 13 points, Auburn Auto and Colorado & Southern yielded 6 points each, Columbian Carbon 4½, American Woolen preferred and J. I. Case 4 and Brunswick - Balke - Collender dropped 1½ to a new low record at 13⅛. Atchison, St. Louis Southwestern, Republic Steel and Brooklyn Union Gas yielded 2 points or more.

AMUSEMENTS STRONG

Amusement shares were again in good demand. Warner Brothers Pictures was marked up more than 3 points, Loews 2 and Radio, Fox Film, Radio-Keith-Orpheum and Paramount Famous Lasky advanced a point or more.

A good demand also was noted for a few railroad shares, Atlantic Coast Line, Canadian Pacific and Delaware and Hudson rising 2 to 3½ points.

Call money renewed at 4½ per cent but dropped to 4 in the early afternoon.

Fox Film to Pay Dividend in Scrip

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Fox Film Corporation directors have voted to pay the quarterly dividend of $1 on the class A stock, payable today in scrip instead of cash.

William Fox, president, says the company has a surplus of $22,000,000 and that permanent funding of temporary financing has not yet been accomplished.

Fox Film Corporation common dividend scrip opened on the New York Produce Exchange Securities Market at 75 cents and later sold at 72 cents.

Montgomery Ward Denies Rumors About Closing More Stores.

MONTGOMERY WARD officials state that there is no foundation for rumors that the company is going to close several of its stores. The company is in no way diminishing its mail order promotive efforts and will continue to open additional retail outlets. Out of a total of 550 stores there has been only one or two closed and those for the reason that their location was found to be unsatisfactory. In well-informed quarters, the weakness in Montgomery Ward stocks is attributed to the expectation of an unfavorable showing in the 1929 report due around January 25. Owing to inventory adjustments necessitated by price cuts on mail-order lines during December it was figured that the company would do well to cover its dividend requirements at the present $3 rate in this report.

For the first time in many weeks the amusement shares were the center of brisk buying movement led by Warner Brothers. The group, which has been held in check by the complex situation unfolded in Fox affairs, shared the bulk of attention during the early hours with the utilities. Strength was undoubtedly stimulated in a measure by the report of Loews, Inc., and subsidiaries for the 12 months ended November 22, last, which showed net profit after depreciation, taxes, etc., but before subsidiary preferred dividends of $3,151,954 as against $2,102,033 in the nearest corresponding period of 1928. This showing by the Fox controlled company apparently acted as an offset to the decision of that company to pay its dividend due today in "scrip."

THOUGH the meeting of Fox directors yesterday was called primarily for the purpose of deciding upon the manner of payment of the dividend due today, it was evident from the duration of the gathering that more than the question of dividend payments had been discussed. The meeting lasted for more than three hours, but brought only a statement relative to the dividend situation. No information was given out bearing on any contemplated changes in the board or of provisions made or being made for the funding of that part of the company's floating debt which matures as of April 1 next.

According to well informed interests, there was no appreciable slowing up in operations of Columbia Gas & Electric in the final quarter from the record breaking pace set in the first nine months of last year. Estimates place earnings for the year in the neighborhood of $3 a share with gross revenues around $115,000,000. Considerable talk is heard about the probability of natural gas playing an increasingly important part in the earnings of Columbia Gas.

PRESENT indications are that Delaware and Hudson earned over $16.50 a share from its railway operations and about $1.80 a share from its equity in the Hudson Coal Company. At current prices stock is selling around nine times earnings and paying $9 a share in dividends yield 5.4 per cent. In the past production and shipments of anthracite coal have played an important part in the earnings of company, and since these have been larger this winter than for some time past, it is thought that current earnings will be maintained at a satisfactory level, at least during the first few months of this year.

A prime favorite with investment trusts appears to be Air Reduction since reports of these organizations recently reveal the fact that a great many of them are carrying blocks of the stock. In 1929, Air Reduction enjoyed the most prosperous year in its history and ended the period with its unusually strong financial position strengthened still further. Report of the company for 1929, which will be made public within a month, is expected to show earnings of between $7.50 and $8 a share on the 769,000 shares of common outstanding, compared with previous record earnings of $4.61 a share on 696,794 shares in 1928.

Pgh. Plate Acquires Schoonover Company

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—The W. J. Schoonover Glass Company, with headquarters in this city, and warehouses at Wilkes-Barre, Allentown and Utica, N. Y., was sold today to the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company of Pittsburgh, Pa. The consideration was a half million dollars. It was announced that the Pittsburgh company will maintain all the plants of the Schoonover company at their present locations. Mr. Schoonover is retiring from the glass business.

New Construction Under Year Ago

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—In the first eight business days of this year the 37 states east of the Rocky Mountains reported new construction contracts awarded to the amount of $124,721,300, according to the F. W. Dodge Corporation. This is a daily rate of contract letting of 1 per cent below the daily rate for January, 1929. The largest single contract was for a railroad electrification project from Hoboken to Dover, N. J., costing about $15,000,000.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—The curb market was inclined to sag today, under profit taking on yesterday's advances in the utilities. Several shares were in continued demand, however, and crept higher. On the whole, price changes continued narrow and of little significance. Trading was still in scant volume.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Crub exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

TRUCE IN WAR OVER MONEY DESIRED

Co-Opertaion of Users of Credit With Bankers Asked by Chase Head

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14. A. W. Wiggin, chairman of the Chase National Bank, asks for a truce in the eternal warfare between borrowers and lenders on interest rates.

In his annual report, Mr. Wiggin indicates that farmers and business men are deluded by the notion that they are helped by cheap money in excessive supply. He asks for the co-operation of users of credit with bankers in the fight for a sound money policy.

"Sound financial policy," he insisted, "has to be fought for and the leaders in this fight must necessarily be the banking community. But the business men and farmers must support the bankers. An alternation of excessive speculation and sharp breaks does not help legitimate business Agriculture gains nothing by getting deeply into deot in periods of cheap money and later facing periods when money is almost unobtainable and maturing mortgages bring sleepless nights."

There is sound sense in what Mr. Wiggin says, but perhaps not until the millennium will lenders and borrowers agree on what is a fair interest rate.

BEAR COFFEE MARKET

There is a major bear market on in coffee, as the Brazilian scheme of valorization, a device for keeping prices artificially high, has been knocked into a cocked hat by the operation of the old-fashioned economic twins—supply and demand.

The slump of silver to the lowest level in history is another striking incident in the commodity markets. The adverse effect of this deflation will be felt chiefly in China, whose wealth is largely in silver. The purchasing power of the Chinese will be curtailed. Silver mining districts are also hurt.

The break in silver reflects a declining demand for the metal. Its use as money has been on the down grade. As a measure of war economy, nations turned to cheaper metals or paper currency for subsidiary coins.

Stocks at the new post-boom price levels are again paying their board. That is, the average yield on selected shares is higher than the 60 to 90-day rate on time loans. During the earlier months of rising prices, yields were far below carrying charges. Other things being equal, the tendency of yields to outstrip carrying charges tends to encourage discriminating security buying.

Modern psychologists ridicule the superstition that a person is too old to learn. Believing one is never too old to learn, Mrs. James W. Thayer has enrolled as a journalism student at the University of Oregon. Having raised seven children, Mrs. Thayer figured that that phase of her life was finished. Accordingly, she decided to set out upon new ventures. There is doubtless a suggestion in this for other unemployed mothers.

BUILDING DECLINES

The average daily value of building contracts awarded in 36 states in December reached the lowest ebb since July, 1924. The declining tendency of interest rates had not yet fully spilled over to the mortgage field, and there was still a scarcity of second mortgage money. By the spring,

Follansbee Production At Capacity

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE Follansbee Brothers Company is operating its plants almost at full schedule. This follows a seasonal decline in production to about 50 per cent of capacity in December.

Officials anticipate further improvement in demand but state that there has been little ordering for future needs. The fact that the price situation is unstable has had much to do with the hesitancy of consumers to buy.

The present outlook is for a fairly satisfactory first quarter although profits are not likely to attain the levels of the corresponding period of 1929 when demand was heavy and prices were firm.

Profits for Year

THE annual report is expected to show a sharp decline in earnings in the final quarter of 1929 but, in spite of this, net profit for the full year may be expected to exceed the amount of $1,535,732 reported for 1928. After deducting dividends on $3,000,000 of 6 per cent preferred stock, this was equivalent to $7.53 a share on the 180,000 shares of common stock.

Net profit in the first nine months of 1929 of $1,391,798 or $6.98 a share on the common was not far below the showing for the entire preceding year. It compared with $1,080,223 or $5.25 a share in the first nine months of 1928.

Earnings Gain

WITH the single exception of the final three months, each quarter of 1929 showed a gain over the corresponding quarter of 1928 as is shown by the following table of net profits and earnings per share:

	1929		1928
Quarter	Net Profit	Per Share	Net Profit	Per Share
First	$ 402,572	$1.98	$243,855	$1.10
Second ...	597,088	3.07	447,457	2.24
Third .. .	392,138	1.93	388,911	1.91
Fourth ...	.....	....	455,509	2.28
Total	$1,391,798	$6.98	$1,535,732	$7.53

The Follansbee Brothers Company makes steel sheets and tin plates at plants located at Follansbee, W. Va., and at Toronto, O. Superior quality is claimed for the products since the sheets are made from bars which have been forged instead of being reduced by the usual process of rolling. The company also makes a line of specialities which includes milk cans, stove pipe and other fabricated articles.

Improvements Finished

THE work of electrifying mills at the Follansbee, W. Va., plant is nearly completed. This will result in substantial economies in operation in thre future. In addition to this, a new mill was installed at the Toronto, O., plant last year which increased total finishing capacity about 10 per cent and made it possible for the company to roll sheets up to 66 inches in width.

Rapid strides have been made in the reduction of funded debt. The balance sheet of September 30, 1929, showed that $500,000 of the issue of first sinking fund sixes had been retired and that $177,000 of the bonds in addition to this were held in the treasury. This reduced the amount of the issue actually outstanding to $2,573,000 from an original issue of $3,250,000.

The balance sheet also showed physical properties carried at $8,913,403 after depreciation. Total assets amounted to $16,018,168. Current assets of $5,972,500 were over 6.5 times current liabilities of $911,183. The company had $608,617 in cash, $790,628 in government securities and $313,323 in other marketable securities.

it is expected that mortgage money will be more readily available, acting as a spur to the construction industry.

Although 1929 was a year of record breaking speculation, participation in the market was by no means universal. Some at least followed a surer road to thrift. Thomas I. Parkinson, president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, reported a growing tendency on the part of individuals to insure against poverty in old age through the purchase of annuity contracts, either individually or in groups. The annuity business alone reached $107,000,000 last year for that one company. Annuities are investment devices, rather than protection against premature death.

They involve investing by proxy through the experts employed by insurance companies. Annuities constitute an excellent hedge against the speculative blunders of individuals who ordinarily manage their own estate. Some of the largest professional speculators have freed themselves from utter dependence on the turn of the wheels of chance in Wall street by taking out substantial annuity policies. For individuals over 60, nonrefund annuities offer a substantially higher return than ordinary investments, but of course the principal is extinguished at the death of the annuitant. In a country where pensions are not general, annuities offer an alternate means of assuring a comfortable old age.

Livermore Denies Liquidating Ward

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Montgomery Ward's decline to a new low record for the present common stock made this morning was accompanied by widespread reports that Jesse Livermore had been given a liquidating order for 300,000 shares. Mr. Livermore stated to Dow, Jones & Co. that there is no foundation for these rumors.

General Electric Split-Up Approved

SCHNECTADY, N. Y., Jan. 15.—Stockholders of the General Electric Company have approved the split-up of the common shares on a 4 for 1 basis.

Directors propose to pay in April a quarterly dividend on the common stock of 40 cents, or $1.60 per year. The present stock is on a $6 basis.

Petroleum Institute Reports Output Up

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 — The daily average gross crude oil production in the United States increased 36,950 barrels for the week ended January 11, totaling 2,689,250 barrels, according to the weekly summary of the American petroleum industry. The daily average production east of California was 1,959,550 barrels, an increase of 37,750 barrels.

School & Instructions 16

$100 to $300 Per month is a fair salary for junior executives. They earn $100 to $200 more than they did a year ago as stenographers, bookkeepers, typists and office workers because they have a command of English and can answer satisfactorily correspondence.

COMMERCIAL CORRESPONDENCE comprises a knowledge and skill in letter forms and punctuation, choice synonyms, sentence structure, rhetorical principles and the psychology of pleasing your correspondent in the 35 different types of business letters. A new course of 12 lessons taught by J. L. Zerbe, formerly assistant professor of English at the University of Pittsburgh, will begin the week of January 16.

Classes will convene one night a week from 6:40 to 8:40. Students will be admitted as applications are received.

On Broadway

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.

Vagrant

OH, I have tried to change and mend my ways,
And make myself a worthy lad for you;
I know it to be true that virtue pays,
That wine and revelry will never do;
But I have failed you time and time again,
And lost the lure that I once held you by;
The phrases that were soft as April rain
Now waken in your heart no answering cry.

Well, better so, a lad will come for you
Alice with all the virtues that I lack;
You will be glad that I have proved untrue
Nor own the least regret in looking back.

You loved me once—you thrilled when I was near—
And that is quite enough for me, my dear!

—John.

GAG

HARRY REICHENBACH forwards the one about the old Jewish merchant who was traveling in a Pullman berth from Chicago to New York. During the middle of the night he suddenly awakened, and after tossing for 15 minutes, decided to look out the window to find out why the train had paused so long.

He got the attention of a towner. "Say, listen!" he cried. "wot fur we are stending in diss tonn so lung?"

"There's been a wreck," was the reply.

"Oy!" yelled the dialectician, "my leg's broke!"

MERCILESS TRUTH

Two wags standing in front of the Palace Theater were discussing the talkie invasion and about the better known passersby. "Who's that bird?" asked one as he pointed to a chap dashing into the Palace building. "What does he do?"

"He's a booking agent in the Radio-Keith offices," said the other.

"I get it," was the retort. "That's the same as being out of work some place else!"

NONSENSE

FRED ALLEN, of "The Little Show," will now sing: "When the roll is called up yonder what'll we dunk in our coffee?"

AS WHO ISN'T?

Joe Flynn, the press agent, was complaining about the extremely cold weather the other night.

"I'm not takin my morning bath these days," he chirped.

"I'm using a feather duster."

THE COMEBACK AWFUL

A monologist who played at the Palace Theater probably will not toy with a spectator in the audience again. During his act he paused to stare at a tardy arrival who slowly ankled down the aisle to his second row pew, and before the customer sat down the actor said: "You're a little late."

"Wha'?" growled the man, still standing.

"I said you are a litte late," chirped the actor who realized that he was dealing with no chump.

"Listen, you!" was the retort terrible, "if I thought you were on the bill I wouldn't have come at all!"

IN CASE YOU DON'T KNOW

WALTER NEALE is offering what appears to be a swelegant book for authors and others who would improve their style. Neale is the publisher of "Write It Right," by Ambrose Bierce, a book pointing out hundreds of errors of locution frequently made by the most practiced and eminent authors. We theft this much of it for your edification.

Given: "The soldier was given a rifle." What was given is the rifle, not the soldier. Nothing can be given anything.

Got married for married: If this is correct, we should say, also, "got dead" for died.

Fail: "He failed to note the fact." That implies that he tried to note it, but did not succeed. Failure carries always the sense of endeavor; when there has been no indeavor there is no failure. A falling stone cannot fail to strike you, for it does not try; but a marksman, firing at you may fail to hit you, and I hope he always will.

Executed: "The condemned man was executed." He was hanged, or otherwise put to death; a man is never executed; it is the sentence that is executed.

BY WAY OF REPORT

RECENT arrivals from Florida assert that the state roads are choked with government representatives who halt all cars entering or leaving the province to search for the "Fruit Fly," a menace to Florida crops. One motorist who observed the officers ignore his supply of liquor, asked: "How come you don't ask me about the laughing soup I got there?"

"We ain't supposed to worry about no hooch," was the stiff retort. "All we are told is to watch for fruit flies—keep goin'!"

ACCORDING TO CONTRACT

The case of Brock Pemberton, producer of the smash-hit, "Strictly Dishonorable," who was unable to control a brokers' buy of seats for his own attraction, emphasizes the fact that to a remarkable degree any Broadway show, because of the way the contracts are drawn, is in the control of the theater rather than the producer. It is only when the attraction is in a theater controlled by the producer that any of the brokers' gravy goes to the producer, and until recent years it was unheard of that the producer cut in the agency kickback. Which accounts also for the fact that a $50-a-week treasurer recently was able to loan $500,000 to his boss who, for more than a decade, has been producing hits in his own house, but who is currently broke just the same.

TOMB IT MAY CONCERN

"ALL criticism is personal, and and neither academic nor impressionistic criticism should be taken too seriously. Anatole France has proved that one may be wise and witty while sailing his soul in quest of masterpieces. The main point is—particularly in dramatic criticism—whether the writer holds our attention. Otherwise his work has no excuse for existence."—James Huneker.

A FORM OF CRITICISM

When George Bernard Shaw and William Archer were defending dramas in London they tiffed with each other via their columns to the delight of many. Archer, frinstance, once argued that Shaw's opinion of "Henry IV" was not a criticism, but purely theoretic deduction from Shaw's race, diet and politics—in short, Shaw's nature and environment. "And," continued Archer, "it is a monstrous injustice that Mr. Beerbohn Tree should be made to suffer from Shaw's environment."

"What outrageous nonsense!" yipped Shaw in rebuttal. "Mr. Tree is infinitely obliged to me; for all London, it appears, is flocking to the Haymarket to see whether he is as rotten as I said he was!"

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d." to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

FARM RELIEF DELAYED BY TROUBLE IN RUMBLE SEAT

(Flora, Illinois, Journal-Record)

Tom Griffey sure had two hard fights with his buck sheep. The first fight Griffey throwed corn and clubs at the sheep till John Carroll could come and beef the old sheep. Del Swaney told Giffey to lay flat on the ground when the sheep got after him, but Giffey got tired of staying down on the snow and every time he tried to raise to finish the feeding, the old sheep made for him so he let into hollowing for John Carroll. When John heard the calls he rushed for the garage and out with the car. His folks in the front and John in the rumble seat. But from all reports when Giffey fetched a scream that was heard above the roar of the car, John said by the eternals I'm out and helping Tom but one of John's legs was fast in the rumble seat and they had to call up Del Swaney to get John loose so he could help fight the old sheep. Dell pried off the rumble seat. John lit for the feed lot and the hell set. In cussing and throwing snow balls and clubs by Del and John till Tom got up and tried to cut his throat but his neck was to tough. It almost froze Griffey while on the snow flat on the stomach.

Transcontinental Railroads Should Be Fostered by Government

Why have we no real transcontinental railroads from coast to coast?

It is an obvious lack, for which no remedy is offered in the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission suggesting railroad consolidations.

Our first "transcontinental" was built from Omaha to San Francisco. Every "transcontinental" today ends at the Missouri River—the Union Pacific; or at the Mississippi River—the Missouri Pacific and the Southern Pacific; or at Chicago—the Santa Fe, the Milwaukee, the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific. The nearest approach to a true transcontinental is the Southern Pacific, with its steamer lines from Galveston and New Orleans continuing its route to New York.

Every traveler from coast to coast, over American railroads can testify to the inconvenience of our having no transcontinental line. Changes of cars and tedious waits characterize the required shift from one road to another at Chicago, St. Paul and Omaha. Through lines under single ownership would bring benefits to cross-country passengers and freight alike.

The history of American railroads is the story of hooking up short lines into long routes under one management. The present New York Central from New York to Chicago is compounded of over a dozen once independent lines. There used to be a change of gauge at Dunkirk, N. Y. Its inhabitants rioted in protest against any improvement that would let cars run straight through and deprive Dunkirk citizens of their profitable transfer business.

Why should the extension of the New York Central stop at Chicago? Why not continue it to Seattle or San Francisco or Los Angeles?

Canada, north of us, with a population of eight million, has two real transcontinentals: the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National. The strength of the Canadian Pacific, and its services to Canada, are known to all. Indeed, it is the author of the world's most effective national transportation system, extended by railroad-owned steamship lines to all the great ports of Europe and Asia.

We have transcontinental communication by telephone and telegraph under single ownership. We shall soon have transcontinental highways. We need transcontinental railroads. Their formation should be authorized and encouraged by the government and its agents, the Interstate Commerce Commission.

This is the third of a series of editorials on the proposed merger of American railroads. The fourth will appear tomorrow

Y.W.C.A. Budget Appeal Should Not Be in Vain

The annual budget appeal of the Y. W. C. A. "For Girlhood and Womanhood" is a plea for $140,000 in order that the fine work outlined by this commendable organization for 1930 may not be curtailed. Its various activities for the year call for an expenditure of $342,614, but income from operations and other sources are such that it can carry out its program if only $140,000 more is provided.

It is assumed that the amount will be speedily pledged, inasmuch as the social activities of the "Y. W." are those that have a recognized high value. Among them we note a camp for girls near Zelienople, where, from June until the end of October last year, vacation and week-ends were enjoyed by 283 girls. Besides the home and employment and other help for girls who come to the city as strangers, there are the character-building and body-building opportunities for our home girls, including a branch for colored girls and activities for foreign women.

The Y. W. C. A. is an institution that we can be proud of. It takes care of the "girl problem" for us and we should support it handsomely in its work.

Threat of Air Mail Loss Spurs Drive to Expand

Civic pride should prompt general support of a campaign going on to keep in service the Pittsburgh-Cleveland air mail route and to have the route extended by establishing one between Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Washington and Norfolk. The need of special activity is seen in the statement of Postmaster General Brown that aerial routes would have to be abandoned where they could not compete on a cost basis with railroads.

With a Pittsburgh-Norfolk route in operation, promoters state there would be economy of operation, with flights between Norfolk and Cleveland, serving Washington, Baltimore and Pittsburgh with an airway for mail connecting with the transcontinental East-West route in Cleveland.

The most convincing argument with the government likely would be the quantity of mail handled. If that passing between Pittsburgh and Cleveland is so light that the postoffice department is considering its abandonment we shall have only ourselves to blame if the service is discontinued. If we wish to keep something established for our convenience we must give it our patronage.

From the Heart

None Will Scoff.

Out of the hurly burly at Washington comes a strain of old-fashioned music as strange and poignant as a bar of "Home, Sweet Home" in a jazz concert. And from the last person you would expect to be articulate, the hard boiled, high tariff Senator from Utah, Reed Smoot.

It renews your faith in American life and the American home, still sound and wholesome despite the divorce statistics and the booze overflow.

"I am drawing dividends on the life I have lived since boyhood," says Senator Smoot at 68. "I've never drank liquor. I never was lazy. I've wronged nobody.

"I was fortunate in marrying as perfect a young woman as ever lived.

"My children have had a marvelous mother, a superb homemaker.

"Of all the blessings received by me, she was the greatest."

That voices a naive pride in years well spent, a touching tribute to a wife now dead. It is the unstudied, rarely uttered thought of a plain American husband and father. There are millions like him.

Let no cynic scoff at this little glimpse into a typical American household, where honesty, decency, work and affection still are enshrined, purifying and transfiguring this poor mortal life into something that approaches the sublime.

ONCE OVERS

—By J. J. Mundy—

YOU are very fond of criticizing those who find fault with you.

As soon as you find they differ with you, you try to justify your position rather than take a broader view of things.

By putting up that little fence of stinging back at those who see fit to let you know that they do not agree with you, you prevent yourself from learning a lot that might be helpful.

You resent a direct denial of your position.

You don't give yourself time to find out whether you might not be of the same opinion as your personal critic if you could see from the other side.

It just raises resentment to be questioned in any way; when it comes to the exercise of judgment or display of knowledge.

Then you are very likely to make some positive statement, thinking it will put a quietus upon your erstwhile critic.

But in so doing you are more than likely to say something recklessly and so weaken your side from all angles.

Don't "get your back up" as quickly when you hear something detrimental to your line of reasoning.

It is because you want to show that you are just as full of knowledge as the next one that you won't take a correction gracefully.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. W' 3

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

THE tubes are muscular. They can be stretched out or drawn into the grooves or waved from side to side, and by movements of these hundreds of "tube-feet," gripping the ground by means of their suckers, the starfish crawls along.

Inside its body it has an elaborate system of pipes and reservoirs containing a watery fluid and opening to the exterior through a porous, sieve-like plate, the madreporite, that is placed near the anus; the tube-feet are stretched out by forcing water into them from this system and drawn in by allowing it to flow back.

H. G. Wells

This "water-vascular system" is quite unlike anything found elsewhere; it is one of the many unique and characteristic features of these echinoderms.

A very common little starfish of our shores, the Asterina, crawls along.

One of its five arms—it does not matter which—is a temporary head; it is curved upwards so that the little scarlet eye on the tip may (albeit very dimly) perceive coming dangers, and the two or three end pairs of tube-feet are extended in the water like the antennae of an insect. The other arms are subordinate; they are simply walking, and not sitting up and taking notice.

If we tap the front end of the leading arm, or if for any other reason it occurs to the animal that the direction in which it is proceeding is not desirable, that arm ceases to act as a head and becomes passive; one of the other arms holds up its eye-spot and waves its tentacles like antennae, and the animal follows the new head in a new direction.

It may be noted that at any one time the many hundreds of tube-feet are all pulling together, some working in a direction parallel with the groove in which they sit, some, in other arms, working across their grooves at various appropriate angles.

The starfish feeds on animal prey—colonial sea-squire or polyzoa or small worms in the case of Asterina, oysters, mussels, scallops and so on in the case of some larger forms, other starfishes in the case of the seven-armed Luidia. They have no masticatory apparatus.

A few starfishes take their victims whole into their bodies and there digest them; others hold them by means of their tube-feet and turn their own stomachs inside-out through their mouths on to the prey, digesting it outside the body.

Sometimes Asterina may be seen to browse slowly over colonies of sea-squirts by means of its everted stomach.

The starfish has no internal skeleton, but his integument is made hard and stiff by a network of bony plates and spines. Scattered over the surface of his body are little pincer-like structures, the "podicellariae"—tiny groups of two or three-toothed jaws mounted on a muscular stalk.

By means of these gnashing pincers the starfish cleans his body and defends himself against his enemies; in one or two instances they have been seen to be used when attacking prey, and sometimes they secrete poison.

The echinoderm are an exclusively marine group. The sausage-shaped trepangs or bechede-mer are an important luxury food among Eastern peoples, and there exists a large industry for collecting them from the reefs of California and the Eastern Archipelago.

And the spawn of certain sea-urchins is eaten in Mediterranean countries. The chief trouble caused by echinoderms is that some of the larger and more voracious starfishes wreak havoc on oyster beds.

There are five living classes. The starfishes we have already mentioned.

The second comprises the brittle-stars—surprisingly active animals with round, button-like discs and very thin, serpentine arms, by 'ashing movements of which they move along.

The third class, the sea-urchins, cake-urchins and sand-dollars, have no arms.

The last two types nourish themselves like earthworms by shoveling mud into their mouths and digesting out any nutritious matter that it may contain, while the prickly urchins are mainly browsers upon seaweed.

A sea-urchin is a hollow, bony ball, bristling with spines, tube-feet and pedicellariae. Below, on the side on which it crawls, is its mouth, provided with five sharp teeth; the teeth are moved by an elabarote engine of bones and muscle called "Aristotle's lantern."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

—By O. O. McIntyre—

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—The legitimate theater may be wobbling but at least one may enjoy reading the programs. They provide an appetizer before curtain time that makes up for the abandonment of orchestral overtures. Out of what was once a "throw away" a literary treat is provided.

The business of making programs entertaining is the idea of Frank V. Storrs, who supplies most of the theaters free and realizes his revenue from heavy advertising. It started him off on his way to millions, a box at the opera and a place in the Social Register.

With some 90 theaters open during the season, a daily circulation of considerably more than 100,000 is assured. Instead of the usual statistical dryness that characterized the old program, it has been infused with a literary warmth—sparkling articles, bright sketches and sundry departments.

Weekly it has a short story of about 300 words, appropriately illustrated. The authors and artists are those of standing. In some instances as high as 50 cents a word has been paid. There is a poem, a touch of current events and a sprinkling of mots.

Two of the most popular features are "What the Women Will Wear" and "What the Men Will Wear," the latter conducted by the locally celebrated Beaunash. He is a flowery writer who sprinkles through his screed French and Latin phrases that sound grand and impressive.

A specialist is employed for a full page of comment on finance and among many speculators is considered an oracle. He predicted the Wall Street market collapse in the program long before Mr. Babson flew his storm warning. Noted chefs furnish an occasional recipe.

The latest touch to the program is the addition of a columnist who chats in the columnar manner. Also a page devoted to "Who's Who in the Cast" which sums up the careers of the various players in thumb-nail sketches. About the only thing missing is a Harrison Fisher girl on the cover.

Come to think of it, there are two paintings of ladies on program covers. One of Marcelle Carroll at the Earl Carroll Theater and one of Billie Burke at the Ziegfeld.

Dude ranching is responsible for copper riveted overalls being on display on the shelves of many smart department stores on the avenue.

Only a few lyricists and composers are left along that once volatile strip of bingo-bango land known as Tin Pan Alley. The rest have long since trekked to Hollywood and the migration leaves a void in Broadway life that is pronounced. The song writer, with his belted coat, bamboo cane and bowler, was a super-enthusiast of a rollicking area. While the rewards for the average were small, there was always an Irving Berlin or a Jerome Kern to spur them on. The song writer spent his money on the Good Time Charlies of the cafes when the going was elegant and when his roll vanished wrote another song.

The drab lot of the wife of the average song writer is the theme of a current play. She usually came from the chorus among members of which the song writer has a glamour. He is a familiar of the producer, the star and the director and has "a drag." Frequently his tune has "made a show." But when she marries, her life becomes one of walk-up apartment drugery. It is her job to live on the crusts and cheer him on while he is in the throes of creation. And when he puts over a song, she is still left at home while he goes out to celebrate.
